Marin Correction System Revamped

Supervisors Split On New Department

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A sweeping reorganization of Marin's correctional system was approved yesterday by county supervisors who voted 3 to 2 for a new department of corrections to oversee custody and rehabilitation of prisoners. (Other supervisors stories, page 8.)

The far-reaching decision moves Marin to the forefront of a struggle between those favoring and those opposing reform of the state's correctional system by creating small locally controlled facilities.

Under the "correctional master plan" endorsed yesterday, Marin will become one of the first California counties to establish a system that could lead eventually to local confinement and treatment of all prisoners — including those now sent to state prison.

The move, opposed by Supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., sets Jan. 1 for creation of the new department of corrections.

The new department will take over the present jailing functions of the county sheriff and the probation-rehabilitation functions of the probation department.

Between now and January, an 11-member advisory committee will be appointed to work out details of the reorganization with county officials.

The commission, to be made up of both private citizens and professionals in the criminal-justice field, will help chart the department's future course, including confinement and rehabilitation of felons.

Who will head the new department was left hanging. Nor was it clear whether the corrections department will fall under the Health and Human Services superagency, created last week to consolidate health, welfare and probation activities.

A budget and staff will be proposed in June by County Administrator John F. Barrows during budget hearings.

Strongest support came from Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini who moved adoption of the proposal submitted in March by the San Quentin Task Force.

Novato School Aid Sought

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Special legislation to bail the Novato School District out of a $1,257,000 deficit posed by the cutback at Hamilton Air Force Base has been drafted by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The legislation would appropriate $628,000 in state funds to cover half the deficit and allow the district to hike its tax limit for one year without an election to raise the other half.

The deficit has been threatened because the cutback at the base was announced after the March 15 deadline to fire teachers who will be surplus once students from the base have been transferred with their parents to other military installations.

(Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley estimated last night that if 10 per cent of the base students still are enrolled next fall, the district will have a surplus of 33 teachers. Twenty would be in elementary schools, four in junior high and nine in senior high school.)

Bagley's legislation would cut the drop in average daily attendance — the figure on which district financial limits are based — from a predicted 13 per cent to 2.5 per cent. The district's financial limit would be $8,246,000 if the anticipated 13 per cent cut proves true, but it needs $9,503,000 because of the surplus teachers, according to Bagley's office.

Bagley, citing the tough politics in the Democratic-controlled Assembly, said there are three tactics to get the Novato measure moving through the Legislature. Probably the most successful would be to stick it in the budget, a move he will seek through Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco. Brown, as chairman of the ways and means committee, is the prime mover of the budget in the Assembly.

Bagley acknowledged objections to this approach already have been raised by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, who said it would be irregular to make substantive law through the budget. Bagley, however, said he intends to pursue the possibility with Brown and to try to fend off similar objections expected from Legislative Counsel George H. Murphy.

A second approach would be to move a bill in the Assembly, but this was "practically impossible" becuase the Democrats are killing all tax bills except their own.

The third way would be to have the measure introduced in the Senate by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, and then have it tacked onto whatever final overall tax compromise bill is worked out in an expected two-house conference committee.

Bagley reported the legislation already had the support of the Department of Finance, so the "only" hurdle is the politics of the Legislature.

Council Is Under Fire For Lease

An attorney told the Sausalito City Council last night that a city lease of certain underwater streets granted to a private company in March was illegal and should be renegotiated. (Another city council story, page 7.)

Attorney Leonard F. Rappa told the council that he and some other unnamed Sausalito residents are considering a class action suit against the lease to Jens Investment Corporation.

The 50-year lease was an out-of-court settlement of a suit in which the firm had claimed it owned parts of Humboldt Street, Railroad Avenue and Donahue Street. In return, the firm acknowledged city ownership of the streets.

Rappa claimed that the lease failed to note terms of a state agreement which originally granted the streets to the city. The grant says that tideland streets can be used only for recreational purposes, as docks or for an airport.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan noted that state law "very strictly limited" development on the streets. He said he thought that the lease implied that nothing could be built there which violated state law.

Councilman Evert H. Heynneman said he wished that Jordan had included the limitations in the lease.

Mayor Robin Sweeny suggested attaching an "informational addendum" to the lease which

Proposal Amazes Planning Board

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael Planning Commission, reeling in amazement at news of a massive, $40-million development proposed for the northeastern tip of the city, last night cast a cold eye on the project.

One commissioner declared he will refuse to listen to plans by Smith, Gonzalez and Associates Corp. for 781 dwelling units and 26.6 acres of commercial development on a sprawling 189-acre parcel when the project comes up for a use permit under the city's building moratorium at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Commissioners also criticized city planning staff for not alerting them of the development plans and moved to "open up the lines of communication" between the commission and the San Rafael Planning Department.

Comments of commissioners came at an unusual, free-wheeling "study session" in city hall which no member of the planning staff attended, a move aimed at allowing commissioners to speak without inhibitions.

Although the commission last week adjourned to last night primarily to discuss commission functions and staff performance, attention initially focused on news of a proposal to develop Smith Ranch lands in northeastern San Rafael.

Commissioners said the first they had heard of the plan was a report appearing in yesterday's Independent-Journal, although the development firm had requested a use permit hearing several weeks ago.

Commissioner Albert J. Boro, citing what he called a lack of staff notice to the commission, said he read about the project in the press and called the situation "embarrassing".

Other commissioners backed Boro's view and said it is "ridiculous" to consider "a project that size when we have a general plan under review."

Commissioner Joseph J. Garbarino said he will "refuse to listen" to the plan when it is unveiled before the commission next Tuesday. "I'm going to tell him to send it back to the homeowners" in the area for review, Garbarino declared.

"There is no way we can consider a project that big at this time," said colleague Jorgen V. Lunding.

The commission unanimously agreed to ask City Atty. Fred C. Robbins to attend the Tuesday session, predicting that a "number of legal questions" will arise at the meeting.

The commission also said it will direct planning staff to prepare a "summary log" of significant development proposals pending before the city but not yet heard by the commission. Garbarino said that the "people in the streets" often know about a proposal before the commission does.

The commission, saying that it has failed to give proper direction to planning staff, also took a number of other actions on coordinating efforts of city leaders with city employees.

The commission asked that staff prepare an "organizational chart" showing the functions and duties of planning staff members and said it would like to take a look at the planning department budget, as well as keep closer tabs on the activi-

SEC Chairman Sends Resignation To Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — G. Bradford Cook resigned today as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) after a grand jury accused him of allowing himself to be influenced in a sensitive case by Republican fund-raiser Maurice H. Stans.

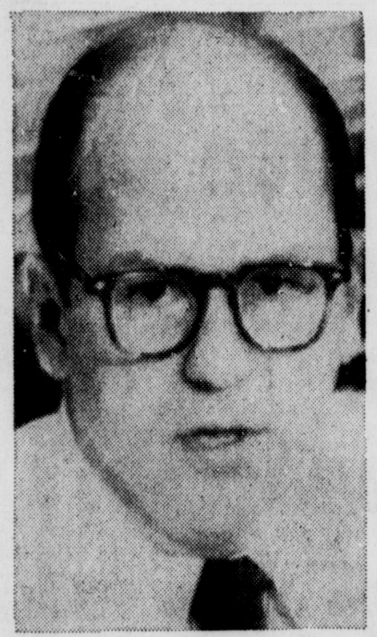
In a letter to President Nixon, Cook said he was resigning "in light of the unfortunate circumstances now prevailing."

Cook, at 36 the youngest man ever to head the SEC, was accused last week of yielding to influence in a case against international financier Robert L. Vesco.

The charge came from a federal grand jury in New York which indicted former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and Stans, former commerce secretary and chairman of the Finance Committee to re-elect the President. Cook was not indicted.

Cook was alleged to have deleted from an SEC complaint against financier Vesco the fact that Vesco had made a $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Vesco was accused by the SEC of illegal manipulation of a $224 million suit against him. Talking to reporters last weekend Cook acknowledged that he did delete what he called "the infamous paragraph." He underwent intensive questioning about the matter before Senate investigators Monday.



G. BRADFORD COOK
Resigns position

In his brief letter to Nixon, Cook said:

"I have reached this most difficult decision because of my complete respect for the Securities and Exchange Commission and its dedicated staff. I retain my complete confidence in my country, its institutions and myself."

Cook, while admitting he deleted reference to the Vesco contribution, denied altering the suit at Stans' behest. He said reference to Vesco and the GOP was not necessary in the document.

The Vesco money was later refunded to him after allegations appeared that Vesco had made the contribution in order to get the administration not to pursue the SEC suit.

Goldwater Urges Action By Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said today that Americans are losing confidence in their government because of the burgeoning Watergate scandal and urged President Nixon to reassert himself as the nation's leader.

Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential candidate and one of his party's foremost conservatives, made the comments as the White House disclosed that Nixon personally authorized FBI wiretaps on telephones of more than a dozen administration officials four years ago in an effort to track down news leaks.

On Capitol Hill, former CIA Director Richard Helms was called to testify before a Senate subcommittee heard the agency's deputy director swear earlier this week that three former White House aides tried to pressure the Central Intelligence Agency into blocking an investigation into the Watergate bugging.

In his statement about eroding public confidence in the government, Goldwater said:

"It is not easy for me to say this about my country or my President, but I think the time has come when someone must say to both of them, let's get going."

"We are witnessing the loss of confidence in America's ability to govern," he said, alluding to the soaring prices of gold on world money markets as one of several examples.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., head of the special committee that will open public hearings on the Watergate scandal tomorrow morning, predicted that Nixon would have trouble the rest of his term in office because of Watergate.

"The President will be handicapped even if he is not personally involved. It will be a very serious handicap," Ervin said in Brunswick, Maine.

On the eve of the Senate hearings, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica granted a request by the committee for limited immunity for convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy for testimony. But this was no guarantee Liddy would testify because he defied a previous similar order to testify before the Watergate grand jury.

The White House spokesman who disclosed Nixon's role in the 1969 wiretapping of more than a dozen members of his National Security Council Staff defended the action on grounds of "national security."

The wiretaps apparently were installed following a published report about B52 bombers attacking targets inside Cambodia in 1969 and other reports relating to U.S.-Soviet talks on limiting strategic arms. The White House had been described at the time as concerned about leaks to newsmen of confidential material on both subjects.

"It was a national security matter," a White House spokesman said today of Presidential approval of the wiretaps, first reported by The New York Times.

"The procedure was approved by the President and authorized in individual cases by the attorney general in coordination with the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation," the spokesman said.

The taps were said to have been legal at the time. The Supreme Court last year unanimously rejected administration claims to authority to conduct electronic surveillance without a court order in "domestic subversion" cases, but left open the question of whether the executive branch has such power in national security cases involving "foreign subversion."

Acting FBI Director William D. Ruckelshaus said Monday that records found in a safe in the office of former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman indicated taps had been placed on the telephones of 17 individuals, including four reporters.

The wiretaps first came to light last week at the Pentagon Papers trial in Los Angeles. It was disclosed that FBI agents had monitored a conversation by Daniel Ellsberg when he

SEOUL (UPI) — A bus carrying 85 persons, most of them students, collided with a commuter train early today about 150 miles northeast of Seoul. First reports said at least 23 persons died.

Police said 62 other persons were injured, 25 of them seriously, when the bus struck the train at a railroad crossing. They said a heavy fog in the area may have reduced visibility.

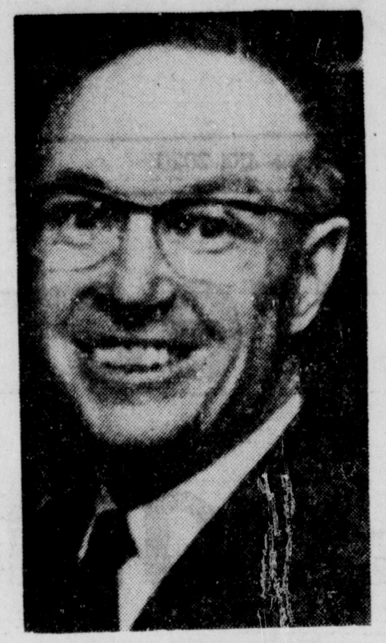
Search For Prosecutor Continues In Watergate



WILLIAM H. ERICKSON
Watergate investigator?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General-designate Elliot L. Richardson today carried on "mutual explorations" with the three remaining top candidates in his search for a special Watergate prosecutor.

As Richardson continued his search for the right man, six Democratic members of the Senate Judiciary Committee met to discuss their concern over his intention to keep "ultimate authority" over the prosecutor.

Some said they could not vote to confirm Richardson unless he granted the prosecutor "complete independence."

Richardson was conferring by phone with Warren M. Christopher of San Francisco, deputy attorney general in the Johnson Administration; Colorado Supreme Court Jusitce William H. Erickson, and David W. Peck, retired New York appellate justice.

"It wouldn't be helpful to keep a score board on who's turning it down," Richardson told reporters late yesterday, saying he would not reveal the order of his choices.

U.S. District Court Judge Harold Tyler Jr. of New York, assistant attorney general in the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, turned down the job yesterday, saying it was not appropriate for a sitting judge to take such a post.

Richardson said that persons may wish not to be considered because of such things as personal problems, a wife's health, finances, or they belong to a law firm that had a client with a connection to the Watergate case. He said for these reasons he wanted to confer with all three of them before announcing which one he was selecting.

How much authority Richardson will grant to the prosecutor remained unresolved in his hearing before the Senate Judiciary committee. After four days of hearings, the committee was in recess today, with no date set for reconvening.

Reasons For Soaring Gold Prices Offered

LONDON (UPI) — Gold soared and the dollar plunged yesterday and there were almost as many experts explaining why as there were experts.

Watergate. Rumbles that the United States must again devalue its dollar. Trade deficits. Oil delivery problems. Fighting in Lebanon.

Experts cited them all—and more—to explain a dizzy day that carried gold to price levels thought impossible 30 days ago and gave the dollar a beating.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said in Paris that all this did not mean another devaluation of the dollar.

"We have no policy to devalue the dollar," he told newsmen. "I do not see any prospect of a devaluation of the U.S. dollar."

"I believe the present exchange rate for the dollar is appropriate," Stein said later at a meeting of international businessmen and bankers. "The system is essentially in balance."

But the balance tilted yesterday, toward gold and away from the dollar. The gold price soared to $110 an ounce in London, up nearly 33 per cent in seven working days. At one point on the Paris market, the metal touched $128.50 an ounce.

"The Watergate affair is causing distrust that can have economic as well as political consequences," a Belgian banking official said.

"There may be political problems behind the newest dollar weakness," said a spokesman for an American bank in West Germany. But he cited other possible factors as well.

Asked if the scandals surrounding Watergate caused the market gyrations, Stein replied: "If you are asking if that is a reasonable deduction to draw, I would say no."

London experts said they thought the markets simply had gone overboard.

"This market is totally irrational and self-feeding," said Bruce Smith, the foreign exchange manager of a major British bank.

"A vicious circle is operating," said William Keegan of the London Financial Times. "The weakness of the dollar is affecting the gold price and the gold price is affecting the currency markets."

Expert after expert cited floods of "hot" money from the oil-rich Middle East countries pouring into the markets, partly in response to Lebanon's precarious situation over the last three weeks.

But bankers in Beirut, bankers to the Middle East, said the flight of money out of the area was not necessarily permanent.

"It often leaves here," one said of the millions of dollars of floating money. "But it always comes back."

"I find the price of gold," Stein said, "much less interesting than the price of hamburger."

Gasoline Rationing Practiced In Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The service station at Fort Sam Houston is rationing gasoline, allowing no more than five gallons to four-cylinder cars and 10 gallons to larger automobiles.

Doyle Morgan, general manager of the Army's Post Exchange Service, said yesterday available fuel is being divided among all the service installations so that no one facility will be without gasoline.

Kissinger Heads For Paris Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger headed for Paris today for negotiations with his North Vietnamese counterpart, Le Duc Tho, aimed at keeping the shaky Vietnam cease-fire agreement from collapsing.

The talks between the two men who worked out the agreement which resulted in return of more than 600 American war prisoners and withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam are scheduled to start Thursday, but already are clouded in uncertainty.

Tho indicated on his arrival in Paris that he would delay the talks with Kissinger —or break them off if they were in progress —if U.S. bombers were in action in Cambodia.

Hanoi claims the bombing is a violation of the cease-fire. The United States and Saigon have accused Hanoi of numerous violations in South Vietnam and other parts of Southeast Asia.

The United States requested the talks in hopes an agreement can be reached for strict compliance of the cease-fire accord. They follow high-level meetings in Paris last month to review the agreements and the charges of violations.

Tho arrived Monday and promptly delivered a warning to Washington, saying that the talks would not begin or continue, if started, if the United States carried out more of what he called U.S. bombing attacks on Communist-controlled areas of South Vietnam near the border with Cambodia.

The United States denied the bombing charges.

Kissinger also is meeting the North Vietnamese only days after committees in both the Senate and the House of Representatives voted against financing more U.S. military involvement in Indochina.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Defense Profits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 100 firms were allowed to retain profits ranging up to 1,902.7 per cent on defense contracts even though they refunded large amounts to the government, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said yesterday.

The National Union Electric Corp., which was directed to give back $8.9 million to the government on its defense contracts in 1967, 1968 and 1969, was nonetheless allowed, even after substracting the refunds, to earn profits of 74, 72 and 91 per cent as a return on net worth for each of those years, Proxmire said.

The largest return on net worth, 1,902.7 per cent, was earned by Eisen Brothers Inc., a manufacturer of ammunition components, which earned a profit of $704,000 even after it refunded $150,000.

Rogers In Peru

LIMA (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers wound up a 22-hour visit to Venezula late yesterday and flew into Lima at the start of possibly the touchiest stop on his 17-day, eight-nation tour of Latin America.

In Peru, he faced perhaps the least friendly government on his itinerary since it has several unresolved issues with the United States, ranging from a recent expropriation of the fishmeal industry to nationalization of an oil company.

But there were no incidents as Rogers arrived.

Arms Discord

VIENNA (UPI) — Western officials said today that negotiations with the Warsaw Pact on reductions of arms and troops in Central Europe has caused some discord among NATO allies.

"It was the first time we had to agree on a common negotiating policy with an adversary and carry it through," one official said. "It was a new experience and therefore caused a certain amount of static within the alliance."

It was the first official confirmation of disagreement among the 12 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) taking part in preliminary talks on reductions of force in Central Europe. NATO spokesmen had denied reports of dissension earlier.

Saigon Blast

SAIGON (UPI) — An explosion tore through a crowd watching an outdoor movie last night, killing 14 persons and wounding 40 others, in an attack Saigon blamed on Communist terrorists.

A government spokesman put the toll at 12 civilians and two militiamen dead with 35 civilians and five militiamen wounded.

The explosion was described as the most serious of 89 Communist cease-fire violations reported by the government for the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. today.

Ammo Seized

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops raided a Belfast Protestant area early today and seized what they said was the biggest ammunition haul in the nearly four-year-old Northern Ireland crisis, the army said.

An army spokesman said the dawn raid on homes on Wilton Street in the Shankill area netted 13,200 rounds of ammunition, 13 firearms and a grenade.

Minimum Pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Labor Committee has approved raising the $1.60 an hour minimum wage to $2.20 in one year and called for a tax credit for persons who employ household domestics.

The Democratic-controlled panel approved the measure Monday on a 23-13 vote after rejecting, by a 20-12 party line vote, a Republican substitute offered by Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Ill., that would raise the minimum to $2.10 over two years.

New Government

PHNOM PEHN (UPI) — Cambodia's new government of "independence, neutrality and peace" took office today with a pledge to strengthen the fight against the Communists.

Military sources said American planes destroyed a large Communist motor vessel and a big sampan in Mekong River air strikes while other U.S. fighter-bombers struck Communist ground units threatening the southern town of Kampot.

Hem Ketsana, the new Interior and Religious Affairs Minister, charged in a speech that Communist forces in Cambodia had destroyed 966 pagodas and killed at least 105 Buddhist monks and wounded 133.

Symphony Fans Hear Europe Tour Opening

PARIS (UPI) — The San Francisco Symphony's triumphant European tour opening was heard by its fans at home.

The Symphony, under the baton of maestro Seiji Ozawa gave a special gala concert at the Champs-Elysees Theater last night before an enthusiastic crowd. Pianist Andre Watts was the featured soloist.

The crowd brought back Watts for one encore and the orchestra for three encores in a concert which did not end until 25 minutes later than scheduled.

The whole concert was broadcast via satellite.

Operation Of Amtrak Trains Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer group said today that two years of Amtrak operation of the nation's passenger trains have been a disappointment and that some of the railroads that operate Amtrak trains are deliberately trying to kill passenger service.

Anthony Haswell, chairman of the National Association of Railroad Passengers, testified before the Senate sub-committee on surface transportation which today began hearings on Amtrak's future.

"Unfortunately ... we believe that Amtrak has not come to grips with fundamental problems which confront it, with the result most of its services are deficient in quality and excessive in operating costs," Haswell said.

He said Amtrak has done some good things —such as more frequent Metroliner service between New York and Washington, reduced fares between New York and Boston, rental automobiles, and improved ticketing and reservations.

But he said Amtrak has failed to improve its routes, has operated trains slower than when it took over service May 1, 1971, has a poor on-time record, still has not improved the basic quality of service in some areas and has excessive operating costs.

Haswell said Amtrak president Roger Lewis had no background or expertise in the railroad industry and that top Amtrak officials have not enthusiastically attempted to sell the passenger train.

He said some railroads have done well in operating Amtrak trains, but "in general the railroads are not satisfied with being relieved of the financial obligations of passenger service but want the trains physically removed from the tracks."

Haswell said the Southern Pacific is by far the worst operator of Amtrak trains, although it is one of the nation's wealthiest railroads.

He recommended that railroad presidents be removed from the Amtrak board and that a long-vacant consumer board post be filled.

Climbers Conquer Himalayan Peak

KATMANDU Nepal (UPI) — Two members of the 16-member American expedition climbed 26,795-foot Himalayan mystery peak of Dhaulagiri-1 on Saturday, the Nepalese Foreign Office announced today.

The message said Louis Reichardt, 30, and John Roskelly, 24, reached the summit at 1 p.m. (3:30 a.m. EDT) on May 12 along with a Sherpa guide.

Election Reform Group Is Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress today to create a 17- member, bipartisan commission to recommend sweeping changes in the nation's election laws.

He suggested as subjects for considerations matters including whether the presidential period in office should be one six-year term, campaign financing, and "the whole range of improper campaign practices."

The President said election reform should be achieved across the board and should not be limited to efforts to plug ethical holes which permitted the Watergate scandal.

"There will be a temptation to attempt reforms piecemeal; this, I believe, would be a, mistake," he said. "The reforms needed are sweeping rather than scattered, and each should be considered in relation to the others. We should think in terms of nothing less than a complete reexamination of our system of elections and campaign practices."

The President said the commission should consider "whether the Constitution should be amended to change the length of terms of office of members of the House, of the Senate or of the President."

Nixon said he personally advocates doubling the term in office of House members from two to four years. He noted some political scientists have suggested a single six-year term for the President. He did not specifically support that but voluntarily raised the matter in a meeting with congressmen Tuesday.

The President said he chose the commission route instead of proposing election reforms himself because he said the reform plan should "come not from one political party, not from one administration, not from one Congress, but from a bipartisan group of recognized experts."

Nixon submitted a draft resolution to Congress which would establish the 17-member commission including Democratic and Republican national chairman, two Democrats and two Republicans each from the Senate and House, and seven members appointed by the President —not more than four from the same political party.

The President outlined his plan in a two-page message to Congress and in a five-minute speech recorded for radio broadcast. Although he did not use the word Watergate in the text of either message, there was no question that the scandal had prompted the commission plan.

In his radio broadcast, Nixon said the commission "will be authorized to examine the cost and financing of campaigns, and look into the various ways in which the cost can be kept down and improper influence or influence-seeking through large campaign contributions can be ended."

"Other areas for inquiry would include the elimination from our election campaigns of violence and the threat of violence; of intimidation; of frauds in the casting and counting of ballots; of the throwing about of misleading or malicious charges; of sabotage and espionage and other infringements on the right of privacy; and of the whole range of improper campaign practices," he said.

The President outlined his plan yesterday.

Hearing Set For Man Facing Other Trials

A 23-year-old San Anselmo man who already faces two Marin Superior Court trials on earlier felony charges, has pleaded innocent to a charge that he burglarized a San Rafael laundry Sunday.

Municipal Court Judge Gary W. Thomas ordered Harris to return May 22 for a preliminary hearing on the charge that he broke into the Lafargue Laundry on Third Street.

Harris was on bail at the time he was arrested by San Rafael police who said they saw him leaving the firm.

Judge Thomas refused to release Harris on his own recognizance in his latest arrest. He remains jailed in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Harris has been ordered to stand trial in superior court the week of July 16 on a charge that he attempted to cash a check belonging to Robert Finn of San Rafael on March 19. He also has a trial the week of July 23 on a burglary charge arising from an attempt April 6 to break into a glass company office on Lincoln Avenue in San Rafael.

Brazilians call a bounced check a "cheque frio" cold check.

British Nuclear Test Is Denied

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath denied Tuesday that Britain plans at least one new nuclear test explosion.

Asked in Parliament about a British press report that such a test is planned, Heath said, "There is no grain of truth in the story."

But when he added, "We have no immediate plans for testing the warheads," Labor opposition members of Parliament shouted: "Immediate, what do you mean immediate?"

Heath snapped back, "If you cannot understand 'immediate,' you had better stop taking part..."

Airlines Allowed Security Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Public Utilities Commission has allowed two more airlines to add a 34-cent cost factor to tickets to partially offset the expense of increased security expenditures.

Three airlines already have received authority from the Civil Aeronautics Board to impose the surcharge, but Tuesday's PUC action added Pacific Southwest Airlines and Air California to the list.

The airlines were ordered to keep a record of passengers and an accounting of the new security revenue.

important step," he said, adding that legislation is pending in Sacramento to offset costs to the county.

The task force, headed by former Municipal Court Judge Hadden W. Roth, was appointed in 1971 by county supervisors to review state studies on prisoner rehabilitation and possible closing of San Quentin Prison.

Roth, now practicing law in San Rafael, told the board yesterday his committee's plan places strong emphasis on rehabilitation of prisoners to reduce crime and save tax dollars.

He told doubters in the audience that studies across the United States showed educational, vocational and social rehabilitation reduces recidivism and costs less than simply incarcerating prisoners. "I don't know if there will be immediate savings but down the road a little ways, there will," Roth added.

The task force's voluminous report urges the county to encourage state legislation to phase out the state prison system and to create a new correctional system with local control.

The state's primary function should be "to help establish, fund and advise local corrections, not directly administer corrections," the report says.

Local "correctional centers" could be established on a county or regional basis, depending on population, and should have jurisdiction "to coordinate and administer all adult and juvenile offender programs," it adds.

Within the new system, emphasis should be placed on "nonconfinement of the offender with confinement as a last resort."

Among those speaking in support of the proposal was Gary Garfinkel, a consultant to the state Senate's select committee on penal institutions.

Garfinkel told the board local correctional systems should be operated by correctional personnel and not law enforcement officers as in Marin, where sheriff's deputies run the jail and are scheduled to operate the soon-to-open honor farm.

"It's not a matter of being pro-law enforcement or anti-law enforcement," he said. "If we are to take adult corrections seriously, we must take it away from the sheriff" whose job is law enforcement and not corrections.

Chief Probation Officer John W. Brewer, who did not speak out strongly in favor of or opposition to the proposal, said his department could take over custodial care of inmates.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos said he does not oppose giving up his jailing responsibilities but questions the need for a new department and claims of cost saving and crime reduction.

Contrary to claims of the state phasing out its state prison system, the sheriff said, recent information shows the state is planning to enlarge that system.

"If the county goes into this correctional system, it will be doing at local expense what the state should be doing," Mountanos said, adding financial relief from the Legislature is not assured.

"That it will cost less and reduce crime is not a true statement," he continued, suggesting Marin wait until some other county had tested local corrections.

Bella Aaron, head of the county's criminal justice planning agency, said the department is unnecessary.

Existing departments with the aid of state grants she is acquiring can do what the new department proposes, she said.

Mrs. Aaron, who has brought more than $1 million in state criminal-justice grants into the county, said a reorganization might mean a cutoff of those grants.

For instance, some $50,000 slated for rehabilitative programs at the honor farm could be cut off if the sheriff is replaced as head of the facility, she said.

Others speaking against the proposal included Betty Machado of Novato, who protested that the Novato area had not been represented on the task force and Francisco attorney Christopher D. Burdick of Inverness, counsel for several police officers' associations, who said his members think the proposal is "kooky."

Roumiguiere, in voting against the proposal, said he was concerned with charges from the sheriff and Mrs. Aaron that they had not been consulted when the task force drafted the proposal.

He joined colleague Arrigoni in urging a decision be delayed until the sheriff's honor farm, due to open in June, can be tested to determine if the probation department adequately handle expanded rehabilitative programs.

Roumiguiere also suggested a committee of judges, law enforcement officials and probation officers to make its own study of county correctional needs.

Supervisor Michael Wornum and Arnold M. Baptiste sided with Giacomini, however, saying it is important to create the department now because correctional reform is overdue.

Among other things, he said, it also would free the sheriff to concentrate on law enforcement. They agreed that deputies running the jail would not be fired but would be absorbed through attrition.

Series Of Concerts Finale Set

"A Grand, Grand Overture" for three vacuum cleaners, one floor polisher and orchestra will highlight the final concert in the Marin Symphony Association Children's Concert Series at 11:45 a.m. Saturday in Meade Theater at Tamalpais High School.

The program, to be performed outdoors by members of the Orchestra Piccola and Marin Youth Orchestra, will trace the development of orchestral music from a selection of medieval music by Gabrieli and a Haydn work from the classical period to the contemporary overture by Malcolm Arnold.

The vacuum cleaners and floor polisher "make a remarkable contribution to orchestral texture" in the work written in 1956, according to the symphony association.

Closing the concert will be original compositions by young Marin composers orchestrated by Hugo Rinaldi, conductor of the Marin Youth Orchestra and Orchestra Piccola. Prizes will be awarded to winning composers.

BUGGING

Richard Helms, CIA director at the time the White House aides were said to have sought the agency's help last summer, was called to testify today before a Senate appropriations subcommittee investigating the matter.

Walters said the attempts to use the CIA to halt the FBI probe into financing of the Watergate bugging by funds sent through Mexico were made by Nixon's former chief aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

Walters said he was asked by Nixon's ex-counsel, John Dean III, if CIA funds could be used to help the Watergate conspirators, and he refused.

A summary of Walters' testimony was made public Tuesday by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., acting committee chairman, who said, "I don't think there is any question in the world that Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean were trying to obstruct justice.

"It would appear they wanted to get the CIA to take over the whole situation and eventually take over responsibility for the Watergate itself," Symington told a news conference.

Novato Seeking New Police Chief

Novato has started recruiting applicants for police chief to succeed Allen V. Klemme, who has resigned.

The deadline for applications is June 8 with oral examinations to be held June 22 and hiring of a new chief scheduled for Aug. 1.

Klemme has remained on the city payroll, engaged in planning for disasters, but is no longer in charge of the day-to-day operation of the police department.

Himalayan Bear Is Dead In California

REDDING, Calif. (UPI) — A Himalayan bear brought to the United States in a $500,000 hashish smuggling scheme died of starvation in rugged northern California mountains, game officials reported yesterday.

The bear, which weighed 250 pounds when it arrived last November at San Francisco airport from Katmandu, Nepal, in a cage stuffed with hashish, weighed only 65 pounds and had porcupine quills in her chin and throat when located last weekend. She died before she could be captured.

ties of Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner and his aides.

"I'd like to know what we've got on the staff, what the hell they're doing and why they're always so rushed," said Boro. "The relationship of the staff and the commission is completely autonomous."

"The tail is wagging the horse," said commissioner James Dougan, commenting on a failure of the planning commission to give direction to staff.

He agreed with colleague Thomas R. O'Toole that city staff has been working under heavy workloads in recent months.

The commission also asked that it be provided with the minutes and agenda of the City Council and Planning Council of Marin, called for a joint session with the parks and recreation commission, suggested that a "landscape committee" be established to advise on architectural and design matters' and pledged to give more attention to items requiring architectural review.

Commissioner Alan M. Kay also called for tighter requirements on information furnished by developers, saying "we rarely get significant presentations . . . I want photos and models."

The commission agreed to hold similar study sessions at least once a month, in addition to regular commission meetings.

Ben C. Albritton was absent from the session.

would note the state limitations on development.

The council agreed and also decided to send a copy of the addendum to the Jens firm.

The regulations could affect the building plans of the O'Meara-Chandler Corporation which is planning to develop a commercial-recreational complex on the nearby Schoonmaker Co. property. O'Meara-Chandler plans to purchase land from Jens including rights to the streets for the development.

Rapps said he was concerned that Jens or O'Meara-Chandler would build something illegal on the underwater streets "and then it would be there and we couldn't do anything about it."

Rappa also said that before the lease was approved the city should have required an environmental impact report.

But Jordan said that the Environmental Quality Act did not apply to leasing situations "which don't allow construction. Before Jens can do anything with the property he has to get a zoning permit and at that time the city will exercise its environmental controls," he said.

College Closes Fall Applications

Applications have closed for admission to Sonoma State College for the fall semester, according to Dean of Admissions Harold Soeters.

Soeters said only applications involving extreme hardship will be considered. The college expects to have a student body of 5,400 in September.

General Plan Impact To Be Discussed

The impact of emerging Novato and Marin County general plans on North Marin will be discussed at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Novato Library under sponsorship of the North Marin unit of the Marin Conervation League.

OBITUARIES

General Mittelstaedt Funeral To Be Private

GENERAL MITTELSTAEDT
Long career

Private funeral will be held for retired Army Maj. Gen. Richard E. Mittelstaedt of Greenbrae, who died Monday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

General Mittelstaedt, 88, also was a former president of the state Public Utilities Commission.

He was in public service in various capacities for more than a half-century, rising through the ranks from a private to commanding general of the National Guards 49th Division.

The general was born in San Francisco and joined the National Guard in 1903. He served three years as private.

During World War I, he served as a major in France for 18 months.

In 1923 he was appointed state adjutant general and was reappointed in 1927. He left state service in 1930 and subsequently became superintendent of the Sacramento Water Department and later Sacramento police commissioner.

In 1940 he was appointed state director of Selective Service and helped prepare the National Guard for service in World War II.

He himself went to war with the National Guard, serving in the South Pacific under General MacArthur. For a time he was military governor of a group of Pacific Islands with headquarters in Maui. At the end of the war he was commanding officer at Fort Richardson in Anchorage, Alaska.

In 1946 he returned to Sacramento and was appointed by Gov. Earl Warren to the Public Utilities Commission. He served as commission chairman from 1948 to 1952.

General Mittelstaedt and his wife, Alice, moved to Greenbrae in 1948. The family home is at 28 La Cuesta Drive. The Mittelstaedts, married in San Francisco in 1918, celebrated their 50th anniversary almost five years ago.

In addition to many military organizations, General Mittelstaedt also participated in civic and lodge affairs. He twice served as chairman of the Marin United Crusade campaign and was a member of the San Anselmo Rotary Club.

He also was a 50-year member of the Free and Accepted Masons, Doric Lodge No. 216 of San Francisco and the American Legion, Post 61 in Sacramento.

In Sacramento he served as potentate of the Ben Ali Temple of the Shrine.

General Mittelstaedt is survived by his wife.

Senate Passes Name Ban Bill

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The State Senate gave final approval yesterday to a bill granting the secretary of state authority to refuse to allow corporations to assume names that "transgress against the common standards of decency of the public."

Only a handful of legislators opposed the measure.

The bill's sponsor, State Sen. Walter Langley, cited such names as Lease-A-Lass, Inc., and Call-A-Girl Inc., as examples of names that could be banned.

Gas Shortage Felt In Atlanta

City officials received bids ranging almost 60 per cent higher on a year's supply of gasoline, diesel fuel and heating oil for city vehicles and buildings.

Purchasing Director J. Forrest Gee said the small number of bids means "we're definitely going to have to cut back on driving, since it costs so much."

Annual Mum Sale Will Be Saturday

School Board Sets Meeting Tomorrow

The Cotati-Rohnert Park School District board will meet in special session at 8 p.m. tomorrow to consider asking the Rohnert Park City Council for a strict growth control policy.

Board member Anthony Carbone will seek permission from fellow board members to address the council on May 21 to request a growth control policy be adopted so schools will not be forced onto double sessions.

JAMES COLEMAN

James F. Coleman of Belvedere, a captain in the city's volunteer fire department, was found dead yesterday, apparently the victim of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

The Marin County Coroner's Office said Coleman, 47, was found at 7:44 p.m. in a maintenance shop of the Belvedere Sailing Society, 50 Lagoon Road, by his wife, Patricia. A 22-caliber rifle was beside him but no note was found, the coroner's office said. He was last seen alive at noon.

Coleman, a native of Buckinghamshire, England, emigrated to the U.S. in 1961 and settled in Belvedere where his brother, George J. Coleman, already lived.

Coleman joined the Belvedere Fire Department soon after his arrival and was promoted to captain in March 1973 when George Coleman, the department's assistant chief, announced his own retirement. A dinner honoring George Coleman set for Saturday has been cancelled.

James Coleman was a gardener for the Belvedere Land Co. and also performed maintenance work for the Belvedere Lagoon Property Owners Association.

In addition to his wife, Coleman is survived by three children, Linda, Valerie and Peter, all of the family home at 11 Laurel Avenue; his mother, Minnie Coleman, of Mill Valley; another brother, Ray, of Novato; two sisters, Margaret Meyer of Mill Valley and Mary Fitzgerald of Santa Barbara, and three sisters and a brother in England.

No funeral is planned but a memorial service will be held at a date to be announced later. The family asks memorial gifts to a favorite charity. Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel, Mill Valley, is in charge of arrangements.

Washington Impresses Students

Two Southern Sonoma teenagers got a rare insight into the national government when they traveled to Washington, D.C., as part of "The Presidential Classroom for Young Americans."

Kathleen Kirby, 18, and Bud McMahon, 17, were selected as representatives from St. Vincent's High School in Petaluma, to attend one of the six one-week sessions held every spring in the capital.

Seminars, tours and countless speeches by elected and public officials filled a tiring schedule from 6:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. daily.

"We'd get back to the Shoreham Hotel at 10:30 p.m. and be up until all hours talking about what we'd seen or heard," Miss Kirby said.

"The best part of it was meeting people from all over the country," McMahon said. "We really had some heated discussions between us about busing, amnesty and other things."

Miss Kirby said one of her roommates was from Georgia. "I'd heard southern accents, but I didn't think people really talked that way. At the end of the week the rest of had picked it up and were saying 'yall' to everybody."

Spokesmen from various governmental agencies spoke to the group of 251 students to give insight to operations and to answer questions."

"The seminar speakers were really worthwhile," McMahon said. "We were given free rein to ask any questions we wanted."

He said a representative of the Russian Embassy got special attention as students pressed him on the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. "They really nailed him on the Jewish question," he said. "I really felt sorry for him."

News reporters and columnists also spoke on current affairs. "Watergate was just breaking open at the time and it got mentioned many times," Miss Kirby said.

"J. J. Kilpatrick, a conservative columnist, called the story a slur and a scandal, so we knew then that Watergate would really be a big deal," she said.

The students also saw the Senate in session, but were disillusioned to see only 20 of the 100 senators on the floor.

"There was a big debate on Teddy Kennedy's national health care bill," Miss Kirby said. "We saw (Sen. Thomas) Eagleton and (Sen. Barry) Goldwater debating with him. Kennedy was mad and really red in the face."

The students saw both sides of the face of Washington. "The cherry blossoms and buildings were beautiful," McMahon said. "We also saw the slums and they're worse than anything we have here."

KATHLEEN KIRBY
Impressed by efficiency

Tours also included national monuments, the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Pentagon and CIA headquarters. "We had to go there at night, since they don't let anyone in the CIA during the daytime," McMahon said. "We couldn't take cameras or notebooks with us because everything is top secret."

For entertainment the group saw a production of the rock musical "Godspell" at the historic Ford Theater. "I had seen Godspell before and just couldn't pay attention to it," Miss Kirby said. "I couldn't keep my eyes off Lincoln's box. It's just like the night he was shot."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., spoke at the "graduation" at the end of the week's session. "He was really good," McMahon said. "He spoke mainly about how important it is for people like us to go into public life."

Neither of the high school seniors have such plans, however. Miss Kirby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Kirby of 1205 Schuman Lane, Petaluma, plans to major in journalism next fall at Santa Rosa Junior College.

BUD McMAHON
Made many friends

McMahon will attend Humboldt State College to prepare for a career with the National Park Service. He is the son of Municipal Court Judge and Mrs. Alexander J. McMahon.

Both stayed in the East after the program to tour the countryside around Washington, D.C., and Virginia.

Miss Kirby and McMahon agreed the trip left them with a favorable impression of government operations. "I had heard government was very inefficient, but I was surprised to see as much work going on as I did," Miss Kirby said.

"It was really worthwhile," McMahon said. "The best part was making friends from all over the country."

"I don't know why more schools don't promote it," Miss Kirby said. "It's really a fine program." They were the only students from Northern California to attend.

Food Pills To Remain As Fiction

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — It's one of science fiction's favorite scenes:

Super Tomorrowman reaches into his form-fitting tunic, pulls out a pill and pops it.

"Delicious," he intones. "Crepes suzette."

And dinner is over, leaving the hero more time to battle bug-eyed monsters and other perils of the 21st century.

For young gourmets who fear today's fiction may be tomorrow's fact, research chemist Horace Burr of the U.S. Agriculture Department has some good news.

"This gloomy prospect will not come to pass," says Burr.

Sufficient minerals and vitamins can be packed into capsules to take care of a day's needs, he contends, but human protein and calorie intake is so great they couldn't conveniently be put in a pill.

Instead, Burr told students at San Jose State University's "21st Century Fair," past trends in food supply and processing will continue.

We'll be eating more processed, convenience and dehydrated food, but it'll be more nutritious, of better quality and will cost less, he predicts.

"They mean more convenience but not necessarily more gracious living," Burr says of the precooked, frozen and dehydrated foods. But he thinks food companies, "which will do anything for a profit," will start competing on nutritional grounds because of new labeling laws.

Atlantic Voyage Ends For Pair

NEW TOPSAIL BEACH, N. C. (UPI) — After a little more than 24 hours at sea, most of it apparently spent sailing in circles and getting seasick, a man and woman have ended for the time being their effort to cross the Atlantic in a 16-foot canoe.

Mrs. Shirley Haycock, 40, of Helper, Utah, and Bob Geedy, 38, of Manti, Utah, ran aground in their fiberglass canoe near here last evening, about 30 miles northeast of their starting point.

Boat dock operator Brad Knight towed the craft into his dock near here and the two spent the night in a beach cottage owned by Harold Geedy of Wilmington, who had served as local host to the two.

Two More Firms Hike Steel Price

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — National Steel Corp. and Inland Steel Co. yesterday announced price increases of $8 to $12 per ton on sheet and strip steel products, joining seven other major producers who had boosted prices since last week.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's No. 1 producer, was first to increase prices on sheet and strip steel, widely used in the production of automobiles and home appliances.

Hayakawa To Remain Until Another Named

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley, whose firm hand guided San Francisco State College through the bleak riot days, gave his goodbye speech to the faculty senate yesterday and promised to remain president until a successor was chosen.

The board of trustees meet in Los Angeles next week to select a new president from names forwarded to them by a selection committee of what is now California State University at San Francisco.

Hayakawa said he would retire June 30 if a successor was chosen, but he noted the trustees seemed to be having trouble deciding who should take over.

The fiery semanticist who took the reigns at the college in the winter of 1968, said he would use his "president emeritus" status to "finish up a number of projects" started by his administartion and to help bring the Japanese community into closer relationship with the campus.

$2.4 Million Tiburon Budget Asked

By GEORGE NEVIN

A proposed budget of $2,432,489 — nearly a three-fold increase over this year's spending program of $846,008 — has been submitted to the Tiburon City Council by City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer.

The huge increase, most of which is slated for buying open space and parkland, will necessitate a tax rate of $1.06 per $100 assessed valuation, a jump of 44 per cent over this year's 73.5-cent rate, according to Balmer.

Voters, however, in effect approved the jump, Balmer said, when they voted in October for a $1.25 million bond issue for open space. Bond redemption will cost 32.5 cents on the tax rate, leaving taxes for all other services at 73.5 cents, precisely where they are this year.

(By law, city taxes are limited next year to this year's or last year's rate, whichever is lower, unless voters approve a tax increase.)

When the open space bonds went before voters in October it was estimated their approval would hike the tax rate 27 cents but Balmer has projected the 32.5-cent rate for next year. Thereafter, the amount should drop, he said. Bond redemption will cost the owner of a $50,000 house about $40.63 next year.

Calling the upcoming fiscal year "the year of the land," Balmer has budgeted $1,225,000 for purchase of Ridgeland, $75,000 to buy one-third of Blackie's Pasture (two-thirds already are owned by the city) and $36,000 for Reed Park in the Hilarita area.

Some $46,000 has been earmarked for developing Blackie's Pasture, building two tennis courts at Del Mar School and acquiring and developing a trail system in Old Tiburon.

Other major expenditures will go for work on Tiburon Boulevard and for solving drainage problems. Balmer has budgeted $126,000 to realign Tiburon Boulevard at Blackie's Pasture and install traffic lights at Tiburon Boulevard's intersections with Beach Road and Avenida Miraflores.

Drainage basin studies of three city watersheds, improvements to street drainage and a complete drainage system for Pine Terrace will cost $56,000, with $32,000 of that for Pine Terrace.

On the income side of the ledger, Balmer estimates property taxes will account for $364,894, or 15 per cent, of the budget. The rest of the money will come from other taxes (sales, cigarette, vehicle and gasoline, among others), fees, fines and interest ($416,900), federal and state funds, including revenue sharing and special purpose monies ($314,700) and money from selling the open space bonds ($1,225,000).

Salaries, fringe benefits and retirement fund payments — all considered personnel services — will total $385,415. A contingency fund also is budgeted.

Balmer has not asked for a raise over his present salary of $20,640, but he has requested an increase of $25 per month, to $150, in his auto allowance. A $2,238 increase in the salary of Asst. City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert, to $16,392, has been requested.

Capital improvements, $1,661,500 ($228,000); police, $240,496 ($215,177); bond redemption, $109,294 (0); public works, $87,936 ($79,882); general services, $75,800 ($63,490); city engineer, $15,500 ($15,500); community development, $55,575 ($52,419); city hall, $47,589 ($45,599); city manager, $40,032 ($37,404); retirement, $39,367 ($33,367); contingent, $25,000 ($25,000); city attorney, $19,800 ($15,400); parks and recreation, $12,100 ($22,650); city council, $1,200 ($700), and equipment replacement, $1,300 ($13,500).

The first city council meeting on Balmer's proposed budget has been set for 8 p.m. Monday at City Hall.

Sausalito Council Says Bonds Won't Raise Taxes

The Sausalito City Council pledged last night that taxes will not go up if two bond issues pass on June 12 for the purchase of sites for a new city hall and library. (Another city council story, page 1.)

Voter approval of the measures would give the council the authority to raise taxes, but council members unanimously promised to finance those bonds through leasing the present city hall on Bridgeway and part of the land they hope to buy.

The council gave the reassurance after learning recently that some cities are being challenged in court for trying the leasing arrangements Sausalito councilmen agreed on last month when the date for the election was set.

Council members declared last night that if the leasing procedure falls through, they will not use the bond issue as an excuse to raise taxes.

In the adopted statement, the council noted: "Should the leasing technique fail for whatever reason and a tax increase is the only feasible financing alternative, the city council will go back to the voters to request a tax increase to achieve the community objective. . ."

Voters will be deciding on two bond issues, one for $306,000 to buy Central School for the new city hall and another for $260,000 to purchase the adjacent Northwestern Pacific Railroad property as a library site.

Annual payments to redeem the 30-year bonds are to be funded not only from the leasing arrangements but also through continuing Sausalito's 5-cent library tax.

Franklin Anderson, a nurseryman, who leases part of the property the council hopes to buy, said that the council was embarked "on a trail of ruin."

Mayor Robin Sweeny tried to rule him out of order when he badgered the city manager with questions about who would lease the land from the city.

But Councilman Stephen A. Fraser insisted: "This guy has a right to ask questions. Every developer who comes in asks thousands of questions, and we never interrupt them."

City Mgr. Albert R. St. Cyr told Anderson that the city has made no plans for the property because it has not bought it yet.

Over Anderson's objections, the council unanimously voted to give him as much aid as possible, short of giving him city funds, if he should have to relocate.

"No thanks," Anderson said. "I built my business up from nothing, and I don't need help from any man."

The Sausalito City Council also:

ENCROACHMENTS — Asked for a staff report on whether the planning commission should handle applications for encroachment permits instead of the community appearances advisory board, which now decides on them.

APPOINTMENTS — Continued until its next meeting May 22 a discussion of appointments of new members to the planning commission and community appearances advisory board.

BUILDING PERMIT — Upheld the fire chief's denial of a building permit for 3-5 Marion Avenue, requested by William L. Hynes. Chief Robert Quayles contended that the present water lines would not provide enough pressure for fire fighting in the area.

CONDOMINIUMS — Adopted an ordinance to give the city jurisdiction over small (five units or less) as well as large condominium projects.

GASOLINE — Adopted an ordinance prohibiting self-service gasoline stations.

BONDS — Agreed to pay bond counsel, Wilson, Jones, Morton and Lynch, a fee of $5,000 if the June 12 bond issues pass and $1,500 if they fail.

CLOSED SESSION — Held a closed meeting to discuss hiring a new building inspector and a replacement for a clerical employee who is retiring.

Lack Of Contact With Skylab Is Bothersome

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab space station can send data back to earth only about 20 per cent of the time, presenting the same type of communication problems the space agency faced in the Gemini program of the mid-1960s.

Flight controllers admit they were spoiled the past few years by the constant communication with the Apollo moon flights and find it hard to get used to the intermittent communication of an earth-orbital flight again.

Misson control receives information from Skylab only when the spaceship is over ground stations in Australia, Guam, Spain and the United States.

Long Beach To Refine Own Gas

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The city government, squeezed by the gasoline shortage, has an option not available to many others: do-it-yourself gasoline.

In this oil rich city the municipal government has its own crude oil reserves.

The city has been buying its gasoline from major oil companies but so far has been unable to get any company to bid on the contract for 1.5 million gallons it needs for the coming year.

The oil companies say that with the shortage coming, they don't want to be tied to such big contracts.

So the City Council yesterday unanimously approved a resolution to seek a company to refine the city's own oil reserves, to get the gasoline needed to keep its police cars and other municipal vehicles running.

Skeletons Found From Civil War

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — A bulldozer working a construction site near here Tuesday unearthed five skeletons, believed to date from Civil War times.

The state medical examiners' office indicated the skeletons were part of an unmarked Civil War burial ground. It said artifacts found with the skeletons seemed to verify that belief.

The Virginia Historical Society confirmed that a number of casualties from a Civil War skirmish were buried in a common grave somewhere in the area of eastern Henrico County.

The skeletons were reburied and no further investigation was planned.

Newspaper Printing Is Delayed By Fire

NEW YORK (UPI) — A brief electrical fire in an excavation hole in front of The New York Times building delayed the publication last night of the newspaper's first edition.

$300,000 For Paving Is Approved

Marin County supervisors yesterday authorized $300,000 worth of paving and landscaping work to the parking lot at the Veterans Memorial Building.

The vote found all but Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini agreeable to paying half the amount out of this year's reserve fund and the remainder from next fiscal year's budget.

Giacomini, who made no comment in voting against the expenditure yesterday, had protested last week that $300,000 was too much.

At that time he was joined by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere in asking for alternative solutions for repairing the chuckholed parking lot.

Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr. and Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella outlined the alternatives ranging from a $30,000 economy paving of the lot, to last about two years, to partial paving and landscaping at $200,000.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said it would be a waste of funds to go with the economy solution and successfully urged the others to finance the entire project at $300,000.

Mountain-dwelling hoofed animals have small cloven hoofs which are an adaptation to their craggy environment.

Perlman Reluctant On Housing Records

The chairman of the Marin County Housing Authority board yesterday bitterly accused Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere of being on "a fishing trip" in requesting records on the authority's leased housing program. (Another board of supervisors story, page 1)

Irving Perlman, appearing before the board of supervisors, demanded to know "what authority" Roumiguiere had to request the addresses and amounts of rent paid for the 260 leased housing units.

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste responded that any supervisor had the right to make such a request.

"It's my opinion that Supervisor Roumiguiere is on a fishing trip," Perlman said angrily. "I don't think this request is reasonable."

In March, Roumiguiere requested a grand jury investigation of the leased housing program after finding two leased housing homes in Santa Venetia standing vacant and deteriorating for seven months despite a long waiting list.

The grand jury later reported "human error and negligence" was responsible for the homes standing vacant and said a random check around the county found most units to be in fair condition.

Roumiguiere said at the time he couldn't believe two homes could be in such poor condition and the rest in good shape.

He requested the list of addresses last week so he could expand the grand jury's investigation.

"We received a quite favorable report from the grand jury," Perlman said, adding the county auditor also had given the authority "a clean bill of health".

The auditor's report, prepared earlier this year, noted the agency had crossed off about $30,000 in unpaid rent in Marin City over the last three years.

Perlman said that in spite of "tremendous harrassment" from outside sources, the local housing authority is surpassed by few others for efficiency.

"I hope you're right that everything is peaches and cream," Roumiguiere said to Perlman. "If you decide you want to refuse us the right to look at those properties, that's okay. . . but I hope you don't."

Perlman said he would get a legal opinion whether he has to reveal the records, which he claimed are confidential.

(If Roumiguiere is refused the records, he can seek a majority vote from fellow supervisors for a legal order demanding the records.)

In another action, supervisors agreed to consider next week increasing the size of the housing authority's five-member board to seven.

The proposal was suggested by the Marin City Council, which complained that no Marin City resident is on the board.

Daley Celebrates Birthday Quietly

Wallace's Wife Is Cancer Free

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Cornelia Wallace, wife of Gov. George C. Wallace, told reporters Tuesday she relaxed and sun bathed for two days after undergoing a surgical process last week to correct "an atypical pap smear."

The abnormal smear, a test for uterine cancer, was detected during a physical examination, but a cervical conization—a scraping of the cervix wall—performed on Mrs. Wallace showed no malignancy present.

Mrs. Wallace said she was released from a local hospital last Thursday on orders that she rest.

Supervisors Ease Endorsement Of Large Regional Government

The Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday watered down a proposed policy statement endorsing large, multipurpose regional government.

On a unanimous vote, the board modified the policy statement so that it endorses consolidation of existing regional agencies but makes no reference to creating more.

The policy statement had been drafted by County Administrator John F. Barrows for submission to the Governor's Council on Intergovernmental Relations, which is conducting a series of statewide hearings on local governmental reform.

Also deleted were statements of county support for legislation to make it easier for cities to consolidate with each other and their county.

In its final form, the statement will support consolidation of existing regional agencies (such as the air pollution control district and the regional water quality control board), legislation making it easier for cities and counties to revise boundaries and legislation making consolidation of local special districts easier.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

RENAISSANCE — Postponed to June 12 an appeal hearing on the environmental impact report for the permanent site of the Renaissance Pleasure Faire and Village north of Novato. The County of Sonoma is appealing and needs more time to draft its arguments.

MEETING — Set next Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. for a special meeting of the Marin County Transit District board to discuss bridge toll hikes proposed by the Golden Gate Bridge District. The hike would increase the 50-cent toll to 75 cents.

REZONING — Approved agricultural zoning for owners of property that was once the Moreda Ranch near Samuel P. Taylor State Park. The zoning ranges from 20 to 30-acre lot sizes.

NOMINATIONS — Nominated Merritt A. Robinson and Polly Smith of the county parks and recreation commission and Jerry Friedman of Inverness and Jo Julian of Tamalpais Valley to the advisory commission for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

TRIP — Heard a report from Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. on his trip to Washington, D.C., in support of immediate funding for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. He said special legislation may be introduced to include Wolfback Ridge overlooking Sausalito.

HOSPITALS — Endorsed legislation in Sacramento (AB 448) which would delay the closing of state mental hospitals until local communities could absorb the patients.

SHERIFF — Approved a $7,000 agreement with the county housing authority to provide sheriff's protection to the authority's Marin City office. The agreement will be reviewed in a month.

THEFT — Appropriated $2,119 from the reserve fund to replace a mower, rototiller, and miscellaneous tools stolen May 2 from Stafford Lake Park.

Novato Play To Run Another Weekend

The Novato Community Players will present performances of Cole Porter's musical "Kiss Me Kate," at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Novato community house.

A review of the production in last Saturday's Independent-Journal erroneously reported that the final performance was last Saturday.

Trial Of Magee Is Transferred To Santa Clara

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Convict Ruchell Magee's kidnap trial has been transferred to Santa Clara County, where codefendant Angela Davis was acquited last year.

Superior Court Judge John A. Ertola set the site for Magee's second trial Tuesday from a list of possible locations supplied by the State Judicial Council. No date was set.

Magee and Miss Davis were charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in the 1970 Marin County courthouse shoot out in which four men died, including Judge Harold J. Haley. Miss Davis was acquitted of all charges last June and Magee's first trial on murder and kidnap charges ended with a hung jury. Magee will not be tried again for murder.

Seale Vows To Continue 'People's Plan' After Loss

JOHN READING
Reelected in Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI) — Black Panther cofounder Bobby Seale, 36, soundly defeated by nearly a 2-to-1 margin in his drive to be elected mayor of this industrial city, vowed today to carry on his drive for a "people's plan."

Seale, who discarded the militant posture of his party to work within the electoral system, was beaten by a vote of 77,476 to 43,719 by two-term incumbent John Reading yesterday in their runoff election.

"I won't make a concession speech," he told campaign workers. "All the work we have done today has blown (the city government's) minds. In six months we're going back to the ballot. You worked for a program. You've worked for a people's plan and we haven't stopped yet. You have a people's victory."

An aide said that Seale would begin work on an initiative to bring the "people's plan" before the electorate in six months. The plan called for better housing, a reduction of crime, a big cultural center and more jobs.

Reading said the campaign was "more a question of issues than of racial confrontation."

Seale, tried for the slaying of a Panther informer in Connecticut two years ago and himself a member of the Chicago Seven, placed second to Reading in an April primary election. Reading missed election by an absolute majority by only 54 votes.

In the post-primary campaign Seale said he must get 40,000 minority voters who stayed away from the polls in April.

Oakland's population is 362,000 and 51 per cent is made up of minority group members.

Despite the high percentage of minority group members, Reading was a heavy favorite. "The only thing I'm really worried about is that, if many of my supporters think the election is in the bag and fail to vote, I could be in real trouble," he said before the runoff.

Royle Named As Acting Principal

Robert R. Royle, long-time educator in the San Rafael High School District, last night was named acting principal at San Rafael High School.

The appointment of Royle, 62, was unanimous by the San Rafael Board of Education but did not follow the recommendation of a screening committee composed of two teachers, a student, a parent, two administrators and one classified employee.

The committee had recommended that Florence Abraham, vice principal at Terra Linda High School, or John Donovan, a San Rafael High vice principal be named to the post temporarily. Royle's appointment is for up to a year.

Two students who serve in an advisory capacity on the board of education, Todd Gulick and Brian Perkins, voted against the appointment.

Royle is currently vice principal in charge of curriculum at San Rafael High School.

He will fill a slot being vacated by Peter Palches, who has resigned to become superintendent of the Mill Valley schools.

Royle graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1929, College of Marin in 1934 and the University of California at Berkeley in 1936. He later earned an administrative credential at the University of California.

Before coming to the San Rafael schools, Royle taught in Berkeley, Martinez and Crockett. During World War II he worked in the Richmond shipyards.

He joined the faculty at San Rafael High School in 1947 as a business education teacher and later became dean of boys and an administrative assistant.

From 1957 to 1960 he was assistant principal and teacher at Davidson Junior High School and from 1960 to 1971, he served on the Terra Linda High School staff.

He returned to San Rafael High School last year.

Royle and his wife, Mildred, have lived in Santa Venetia since 1947. They have four children, all of whom have gone to San Rafael High School. One is still a student there.

Negative Results In MIA Search

VIENTIANE (UPI) — A U.S. Embassy spokesman said today American officials have contacted the Communist Pathet Lao over the past few weeks in efforts to obtain information on missing American servicemen in Laos.

But the spokesman said results so far were negative.

The Pentagon lists 314 U.S. servicemen as missing in Laos since the Indochina war began, most of them pilots whose planes were downed over the southern part of North Vietnam while trying to reach American air bases in Thailand.

Bicentennial Park Proposal Is Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a little over three years before America celebrates its 200th birthday, the American Bicentennial Commission has rejected a proposal for construction of a park in each state to serve as the nucleus of the observances.

"I believe we are back where we were three and one-half years ago (when the commission started work)," said one member, Anne Hawkes Hutton, after the 14-9 vote Tuesday against proceeding with the parks plan estimated to cost $1.3 billion.

Some commission members concluded that the plan was too costly and unfeasible, particularly because of the relatively short time remaining before 1976.

West End School Parents Win A Delay On Closure Decision

The San Rafael Board of Education last night listened again to parents of children at West End School plead not to "close our beloved school," and postponed until next month a decision on the matter.

District Supt. John F. Plank has recommended that the small school, as well as Gallinas School in Santa Venetia be closed this year because of declining enrollment.

Gallinas parents, some of whom attended last night's meeting, indicated they are just as unhappy as the West End residents over the proposed closing.

The board agreed to make no decision on Gallinas until a survey aimed at predicting school enrollment in the area is completed by Parent-Teacher Association members.

The board met last night in a kindergarten room at West End, which had been lavishly decorated with child-made butterflies and a sign proclaiming, "Welcome to West End." In a hall outside, another sign read, "Save our school."

Many parents who opposed the closing questioned the $23,000 saving estimated by Business Mgr. Donald E. Leisey, who has said that much overhead will be saved by closing West End.

West End is expected to shrink from 164 students this year to 147 next fall. The saving would reflect elimination of secretarial and janitorial services. Leisey also said he has had two nibbles, one from the Marin County Schools office and the other from a private school, for leasing the building, which would bring in more income.

Parents, however, termed saving $23,000 out of a budget of $5 million by closing a school "ridiculous."

They also seemed unimpressed by the argument that their children would receive a better education at a slightly larger school where more flexibility is possible.

A father of eight children told the board, "people are saying 'we like what you've done; now just leave us alone.'"

Board President Herman L. Childress repeatedly told the audience of about 100 persons that the board is faced with financial difficulties and must make budget decisions by a July 1 deadline.

He postponed further discussion of the possible school closing until at least the June 12 board meeting. In the meantime, Lew Pollock, chairman of a subcommittee of the district's citizens advisory committee, asked time to study projected enrollment and finances for the elementary district as a whole.

He asked that no school be closed in 1973, saying, "It's not an easy thing to open a school back up" if that need should arise after a closing.

Parks Air Base To Be Center Of Tree Project

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The abandoned Parks Air Force Base near Livermore will serve as the California Ecology Corps center for "Operation Blue Gum" —the eucalyptus clearing project in the East San Francisco Bay hills.

The Department of Conservation said an 80-man team will be assigned to the effort to clean up an estimated 2 million dead trees, which pose a fire threat.

The trees were killed by last winter's freeze.

'Concert Therapy' Lectures Are Set

A series of free public lectures on "Concert Therapy," a combination of scientific, theological, philosophical and metaphysical teachings, has been slated next week in Marin.

MAURREN REAGAN
"I'm a militant moderate."

Daughter Of Reagan Has Talk Show

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The beautifully rounded, face, wide mouth, doe eyes and blonde hair remind you of her mother, actress Jane Wyman.

But when she starts to talk you feel the imprint of her father, Gov. Ronald Reagan of California. She's got an opinion on just about everything and is ready to back it up at the drop of a hat in the political ring.

Maureen Reagan, actress, singer and Republican campaigner is now the hostess of a Saturday afternoon show on KABC Talkradio, where she says she is out to explore "revolutionary ideas."

A radical thought for the governor's daughter but Miss Reagan feels that like her father she has been wrongly typecast as a conservative.

"I'm a militant moderate," she said. "I'm either militantly moderate or moderately militant."

Although an ardent Republican, she said she gives Democrats "a fair shake" on her show. "I don't care what their politics are, if they're willing to discuss the issues intelligently."

But they had better come prepared. She is on the air only once a week and spends the other six days preparing for the shows. She defends her positions with intelligence, wit and charm. When she was hostess on a local TV talk show she was upbraided by the producer for not cutting up her guests.

For her month-old interview and telephone talk show, she said, "I look for revolutionary ideas. Like the proposal that the country be divided into two time zones instead of four. The time zones were originally set up for the convenience of the railroads but now with jets we don't need them any more.

"People are so conservative. They're afraid of change. These are ideas people have to think about because the world does change and unless we think about them we're going to be left behind."

Miss Reagan lanched her radio show with her father as the first guest. She said she did it to show that she is no apologist for his administration and point out that the governor - as she refers to him doesn't see eye-to-eye with her on every subject. For one thing, she's for single taxpayer relief and he's against it.

Miss Reagan, 32, who is divorced, said having famous parents has been helpful in some ways. She also has a famous stepmother, former actress Nancy Davis Reagan.

"It was a help in that my parents are delightful people who've helped me over the years by being my biggest fans," she said. "More than moral support I wouldn't expect or accept.

"My biggest problem was growing up extremely loyal to those I love or even like. But I was also born an individual. You are so loyal, you don't want to hurt them, but you must be you. You must do your own thing.

"I was 25 years old before I was able to find a middle road. My father was elected governor of California. I was invited by the Republican organization as a speaker. There were two reasons. I had a good reputation and because my name was Reagan. People bought tickets because my name was Reagan, but when they came out they knew I had something to say,"

She laughed. "In 1965 I was known as Jane Wyman's daughter. In 1966 I became Ronald Reagan's daughter."

Miss Reagan said she still thinks of herself primarily as an actress. She does an occasional guest shot on television, makes commercials and acted in four plays in stock last year.

"I love to act," she said. "I'd love to do a TV series. But I love to do what I'm doing now. I don't see why one should preempt the other. The more work I do the more energy I find."

ABOUT McPHAIL'S

The opening of McPhail's new Distribution Center in Petaluma opens another level of expansion which began back in 1884. That's when Neil McPhail started his livery stable next to the Grand Hotel in San Rafael. Through the years, the family owned business prospered as it changed with the times to meet the needs of the lower Redwood Empire.

McPhail's is now a modern corporation led by an aggressive young management team which includes Vice President and Treasurer, Jack McPhail, a grandson of the founder.

The new facility in Petaluma is the result of years of planning, and adds a unique new concept to consumarized marketing. The consumer oriented distribution center contains warehouse and truck loading facilities to serve the other McPhail's stores in Santa Rosa and San Rafael.

Besides offering customers a complete line of appliances, television sets, stereo components, and "Blue Ribbon" Service for these products; McPhail's also offers a wide range of fuel oils, propane, sand and gravel, Readymix concrete, aggregates, and many other related building products and construction supplies.

Congress Halts War Showdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A showdown between President Nixon and Congress over bombing in Cambodia was delayed today until early June to see how Henry A. Kissinger makes out in talks with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho over cease-fire violations.

Senate Republican leaders insisted on their right to hold up action until a minority report is written to a $3.2 billion supplemental appropriations bill. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he had no choice under the rules but to accept the delay.

"It is felt that an opportunity should be given for the Kissinger-Tho talks to proceed so that the Senate action would not endanger those negotiations," GOP Leader Hugh Scott told reporters.

The supplemental bill, as a result of Tuesday's 24-0 vote by the Senate Appropriations Committee, now contains language to cut off funds entirely for further military action in, over or from the shores of both Cambodia and Laos.

In both houses, sentiment against the war has grown to such proportions that administration supporters were no longer even trying to fight the issue on its merits.

The House, ending its record of unwavering support for the President, voted last week against further funding for the Cambodia bombing.

And the Senate appropriations panel, which has given Nixon and his predecessor every cent they asked for the war in past years, unanimously voted Tuesday to cut him off without a dime for further military action in either Laos or Cambodia.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd said the vote indicated the Senate not only has a majority to end the war but to override a presidential veto.

"As far as I'm concerned, I want to get the hell out of there as quickly as possible and I don't want to fool around while they capture any more prisoners," said Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., after he broke with the President and supported legislation offered by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

The Eagleton amendment, added to a $3.2 billion supplemental appropriations bill, would bar the administration from using any funds appropriated by Congress for military action "in, over or from the shores of" Cambodia and Laos.

If enacted, it would require an immediate end to the bombing.

The same supplemental bill carries an antiwar amendment which the House passed last week. That amendment, however, applies only to Cambodia and does not affect funds appropriated by Congress in other acts. Consequently, it would not stop the bombing.

Ellsberg Says Trial Was A Political Plot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg testified Wednesday he believes the administration prosecuted him in the Pentagon Papers trial as part of a plan to undercut Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and other 1972 Democratic presidential hopefuls.

Ellsberg, appearing before a Senate subcommittee headed by Muskie, acknowledged that much of his testimony was based on conjecture but that he was convinced the government was trying to tie Democratic presidential candidates to disclosure of the secret Pentagon documents on Vietnam.

Ellsberg told Muskie that Robert C. Mardian, then an assistant attorney general, made a conscious attempt "to prove that there was a link between the papers and your candidacy."

Ellsberg also said Mardian directed "a special task force" in the Justice Department that sought "to establish a link with the Pentagon Papers and the Democratic candidates for President, particularly with you," referring to Muskie.

All charges against Ellsberg and his co-defendant, Anthony Russo, were dropped last week in the Pentagon Papers trial after a series of startling disclosures growing out of the Watergate scandal.

The decision to try him on charges of stealing the documents was made when it appeared "as though Mr. Nixon would lose if you won the Democratic presidential nomination," Ellsberg told Muskie.

Ellsberg was called as a witness by the Senate government operations subcommittee which has been holding hearings on the doctrine of executive privilege.

Ellsberg said that "government secrecy played a role in the path that led off to Watergate."

Not Guilty Plea Given To Murder

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — San Rafael mechanic Lawrence Charles Brown, 35, yesterday pleaded not guilty in San Francisco Superior Court to a charge of murdering a man who tried to crash a party at a San Francisco motorcycle clubhouse.

Brown, whose home is at 3550 Redwood Highway, also pleaded not guilty to a charge of being a convicted felon and carrying a gun.

A pretrial conference was set for June 18, with Brown's trial set for June 25.

Brown is accused of shooting to death 47-year-old Harold Mayfield outside the Rattlers Motorcycle Club on Ellis Street.

Mayfield died a short time after the shooting on April 5. Brown was arrested by police near the club. Witnesses said he had fired three shots at the victim.

Sleepy Fall

UITENHAGE, South Africa (AP) — Veteran sleepwalker Gary Pike, 12, dreamed he was taking part in a gym exercise, fell 23 feet from a window without waking and knocked on the front door still asleep. He woke up as his fractured heel and two broken toes were being tended.

ROADSIDE WRECK

A giant truck lies on its side amid roadside grass beside Highway 101, while its driver is carried from it by a Novato policeman and an ambulance attendant. Despite the seeming seriousness of the accident driver Virgil R. Gibson, 23, of Watsonville needed treatment at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma only for a cut above his right eye. The California Highway Patrol said the truck was southbound about 6:30 a.m. today when it swerved and overturned in the southbound lane just north of the Marin-Sonoma county line. Howit came to swerve was not known.

Student Is Freed After Burglary, Theft Charges

A College of Marin student, after spending 22 hours in jail, has been released in a Georgia burglary investigation and cleared of suspicion his car was stolen.

Solution of the burglary matter followed a series of inconclusive communications with Georgia authorities, while the auto theft case turned out to be a matter of two cars with the same identification number.

Stephen Allan Sharp, 23, of Norwood Avenue, Ross was arrested Thursday by Belvedere police when a computer check revealed he was wanted by DeKalb County police in Georgia for a 1972 residential burglary. He had been summoned to the Belvedere police station in connection with property damage at a city home, damage he denied doing.

Sharp was booked at Marin County Jail about 1 a.m. Thursday. Although the student, who remained in jail, was informed by police about 11 hours later that the burglary matter was being dropped by Georgia officials, authorities rebooked him on $5,000 bail on suspicion of grand auto theft when another computer check showed that the manufacturer's number of his Volkswagen van belonged to another vehicle.

Police further discovered evidence that the plate carrying the identification number may have been tampered with. But, said Chief John W. Jaeger, a California Highway Patrol inspection of the car revealed the identification plate to be the auto's original one and Sharp convinced police he had bought the car legitimately from a Georgia service station in 1972.

Jaeger, moreover, told the I-J today it is not unusual for autos of different make to have the same identification number.

The I-J was told today by DeKalb County police that the burglary warrant for Sharp was dismissed after his arrest Thursday, because authorities doubted they could produce the needed witnesses. Jaeger said his department had been in touch with DeKalb authorities several times since Thursday and not only was not told of the warrant's dismissal but was led to believe the case was still alive.

Missing Gemini Camera Is Found

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A $3,000 camera used in the Gemini space program has been recovered by FBI agents two years after it disappeared from a museum.

Kim E. Christensen, 19, Salt Lake City, was arrested Tuesday on charges of possessing stolen government property.

Reception Set For John Plank

A reception honoring John F. Plank, retiring chairman of the Marin County YMCA Board of Managers, will be held from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. June 4 at the Loch Lomond Yacht Club in San Rafael, according to James Looney, YMCA director.

Plank, superintendent of San Rafael City Schools, has been board chairman for the past year and one half. He has been a board member since 1969.

Plank has accepted a post as head of the Singapore-American School.

Legalities Thicken In Proposal For Madera Del Presidio Housing

By JEFF GREER

Work legally can proceed on the huge Madera Del Presidio housing project in Corte Madera, even though a judge has ordered the Corte Madera Town Council to rescind its approval of project plans.

As a result, attorneys for opponents of the project said today they will ask the court to order the town and the developers each to post $2 million bonds to guarantee that if the project eventually is outlawed, any buildings will be torn down.

Announcement of the demand for bonding threw into doubt whether the city will continue with an appeal of a judge's finding illegal the procedures under which the town had approved the housing development.

The latest development in the long controversy emerged in a hearing before Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson, who on April 30 had ordered the town council to rescind permission for the developers to proceed with building 528 units on 75 acres near the Koch luggage plant.

Today had been set by Wilson for hearings on compliance with that order.

However, both the town and Harder and Odenthal of Orinda, the developers, have filed appeals of Wilson's ruling and the judge said today the appeals automatically stay his action while the aipeals went through higher courts in a process that could take two years.

Attorneys Joseph A. Forest and Paul D. Kayfetz, representing opponents of the project, Larry P. Weingarth and Marilyn L. Hallin of Corte Madera, responded with the declaration of intent to demand bonding.

This will assure, the attorneys said, that the developers will have to tear down any housing built and restore the land to its original state if the appeals lose and Judge Wilson's ruling is upheld.

Attorney Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the developers, said he has advised his clients against construction until their appeal is resolved.

Forest and Kayfetz said they were puzzled why the town also filed an appeal, because it could involve the city in legal expense duplicating that of the developer.

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the town, explained that he had filed a "pro forma" appeal without waiting for the town council approval. It can be withdrawn at any time.

"This merely allows us to audit" the appeal proceedings, Bianchi said. "It will be up to the council to decide whether we will actively participate, since the real fight is between the developers and the plaintiffs (Weingarth and Hallin) and the town is merely an interested agency."

Corte Madera's finance director Frank Bigley said today the town council will decide at its meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the town hall whether to proceed with the appeal.

He said the town's insurance policies probably won't cover a $2 million bond.

At its May 7 meeting, the council voted to rescind its approval of the planned unit development and tentative subdivision map for Madera del Presidio, making the rescission effective today. At that time Asst. Town Atty. John Rosenberg advised councilmen that if the developers appealed Judge Wilson's ruling before today, his decision would be stayed.

Nixon Highway Choice Endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 14-member Senate Public Works Committee Tuesday unanimously endorsed President Nixon's nomination of former Nebraska Gov. Norbert Tieman as federal highway administrator.

Tieman, a Republican who served as governor from 1967 until 1971 when he was defeated by J.J. Exon, won approval after a brief appearance before the committee.

"All things work together for good to them that love God."
Romans 8:28

Trusting God for all good, you can see a pattern of progress in your life. Even trials become opportunities for healing and for improvement, as the Bible shows.

At our testimony meeting this Wednesday, you will hear others tell how they've drawn closer to God and felt His gentle control of their lives. And often they tell how their understanding of God has healed them of sickness, grief, loneliness, fear, lack.

We hope you'll visit soon.

Flurry Of Bills Beats Deadline

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin's two state legislators, pouring 32 bills in the hopper to beat the deadline for laws to take effect by the end of the year, have proposed measures ranging from state financing of housing to permitting a bar in the Marin Civic Center.

Other bills introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr, both R-San Rafael, would allow child care training at Tamalpais High School, protect existing developments on tidelands in Tomales Bay and allow women to serve as volunteer firemen.

California voters last November approved a proposition sought by the Legislature to allow two-year sessions, a "reform" the Legislature claimed would prevent logjams of bills. The annual logjam, however, was repeated in recent weeks after months of little activity.

Bagley's housing bill, AB 2145, would create a state agency to sell general obligation bonds to finance low-cost housing. Similar legislation has failed to pass before.

Behr's housing bill, SB 1259, proposes a state revenue bond issue to be put to the voters to finance mortgage subsidies to low and moderate-income persons. The bill, proposed by Winifred Frederick of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin and endorsed by the county board of supervisors, also would provide 15-year subsidies on new mobile homes.

Applicants under the Behr bill would have to have a gross income of no less than $4,000 or more than $10,000. Behr's staff said the measure would fill gaps in the Federal Home Loan program, which has been crippled by Nixon administration fund freezes.

Both legislators also introduced bills to "clarify" property rights under the court decision that Tomales Bay tidelands could not be developed because of the public trust to use them for navigation and fishing.

Bagley's bill, AB 2154, requires the regional coastal commission to "ascertain the scope of the rights and obligations of owners of tidelands" and to define "the extent of the restrictions" imposed by the public trust.

Behr's version, SB 1257, would assure owners of the tidelands of their right to maintain and improve improvements which existed before the 1971 court decision.

Other bills introduced by Behr are:

SURPLUS LANDS — Permits the state to transfer surplus lands to other state agencies or local public agencies for parks and recreation at no cost except for administrative transfer expenses. (SB1328)

AIRPORTS — Permits cities, which may receive $5,000 a year from the state for capital improvements to local airports, also to use the money for maintenance of airports. (SB1161)

PARKING — Permits community college districts to use student parking permit revenues to subsidize public transportation for students. The bill was suggested by a College of Marin student. (SB1160)

INMATES — Permits the Marin County Superintendent of schools to provide educational programs for inmates of the county jail and honor camp. (SB 1329)

SPECULATORS — Permits counties to prevent land speculation at public expense by cutting from five to two years the period between the declaration of a tax delinquent property as tax sold and the actual deeding of that property to the state. (SB 1328)

CARS — Permits welfare recipients to own an automobile for purposes other than employment. Current prohibitions work a hardship on senior citizens. (SB 1159)

FOSTER CARE — Assures the same financial aid and services for a foster child placed with a relative as for those placed with unrelated persons. (SB 1061)

AREA PLANNING — Permits a county to enter into a joint powers agreement with cities to establish an area planning agency. The agreement would be subject to referendum and initiative. (SB 1255)

VOTERS — Requires annual rather than biennial purging of county voters registration lists (SB 1258)

SCHOOLS — Creates a state fund to finance replacement of structurally unsafe schools. (SB 1324)

OPEN SPACE — Authorizes changing the name of the Marin County Regional Park District to the Marin County Open Space District.

PLANNERS — Eliminates the requirement for referral back to the planning commission of any modification of a proposed ordinance or amendment by the board of supervisors.

MOTOR BIKES — Prohibits the use of unauthorized motor vehicles on marked bicycle paths and hiking and horseback riding trails. (SB 1250)

FOOD STAMP — Designates the attorney general as the prosecuting officer in cases of violations of the Federal Food Stamp Act. (SB 1253)

FOSSIL — Declares the trilobite as the state fossil.

INFANT CENTERS — Uses federal funds to finance a pilot infant care center at Tamalpais High School. It would accommodate 24 infants 6 to 33 months of age, and would be aimed at keeping teenage mothers in school and providing child care training for students. (SB 1323)

ENERGY — A spot bill to be used if needed to establish a state commission on energy policy. (SB 1063)

Other bills introduced by Bagley are:

INVERNESS — A spot bill for acquisition of park lands on Inverness Ridge in case funds become available. (AB 2146)

LIENS — Adds real estate appraisers to the categories of persons who can slap liens on property for the value of work for which they are not paid. (AB 2147)

BLIND — Strikes totally blind persons and those using canes from the category of totally incapacitated persons who are prohibited by fire laws from the upper floors of certain buildings. (AB 2148)

SALARY — Raises the salary of the attorney general from $42,500 to $45,418, the same as the chief justice's salary, effective after the 1974 election. The bill was asked by Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger. (AB 2149)

FUND — Appropriates $70 million to the Bagley Conservation Fund for strengthening the Capitol and buying beaches and parks. (AB 2150)

AIRLINES — Exempts food served aboard interstate airlines from California taxes. Bagley's staff noted such a tax is prohibited by the U.S. Constitution, but imposed anyway by the state Board of Equalizatin. The airlines asked for the bill as faster and cheaper than challenging the board in court. (AB 2151)

SALARIES — Appropriates an unspecified amount to finance salary hikes for academic employees of the University of California and state colleges. (AB 2156)

SOCIAL SECURITY — Makes the Health and Welfare Agency the single state agency with jurisdiction over Social Security programs now scattered throughout state agencies. (AB 2311)

Carpenters Scholarships Are Given

Three Marin County high school seniors and a Sacramento youth have won scholarships given annually by the Carpenters Local 35 and the Marin Central Labor Council.

Winning $750 scholarships given by the Carpenters Union were Carol Susan Osborn of 275 Center Street, San Rafael, of San Rafael High School, and Carey Pope of 38 El Cerrito Avenue, San Anselmo, a Sir Francis Drake High School student.

Susan Skakel of 233 Sycamore Avenue, Mill Valley, of Tamalpais High School, won a $500 labor council scholarship.

A third Carpenters Union award went to Mark W. Evans of Sacramento.

All the young people are children or grandchildren of carpenters local 35.

The awards were made on the basis of academic records plus a special essay contest covering labor matters.

Senate Approves Medical Funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate yesterday approved authorization for nearly $1.5 billion worth of medical programs.

By 69-26, the Senate passed a three-year, $805 million program of grants and subsidies to promote pre-paid health care services projects.

Also approved, 79-15, was $390 million program to improve delivery of health care by authorizing up to eight regional centers plus a Health Care Technology Center and a Health Care Management Center.

The third bill would provide $225 million, spread over three years, to provide incentives for creation of emergency medical services. The vote was 79-13.

Ferry Repair Is Rushed After Blaze

The Sausalito ferry, knocked out of service yesterday morning by an engine room fire, was out of service most of today, too, but expected to be back in operation for the heavy 5:30 p.m. commuter run from San Francisco.

If finishing repairs prevent the late run today, the ferry definitely will be back in service for its first run tomorrow morning, reported Stanley M. Kowleski, ferry transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Cause of the blaze was a ruptured oil line, he said. Crewman Mark L. Pearson, 52, of Concord, was tightening a fitting on the line when it ruptured. Oil spurted onto a hot manifold and caught fire, Kowleski said.

Pearson, who suffered burns on his hands, forearms and face, will be away from work for several weeks, Kowleski reported.

Cost of the accident was estimated by Kowleski at up to $2,000. Most of the cost was in cleaning up the mess, he said. Damage was confined largely to wiring, he said.

Kowleski said it probably never can be determined if the line ruptured because of a faulty fitting or because Pearson tightened it too hard.

Suit Seeks Petaluma School Split

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A suit has been filed in Sonoma County Superior Court seeking to split the Petaluma elementary and high school districts.

The petition filed by the Petaluma Federation of Teachers, American Federation of Teachers and Clair F. Norman, a teacher, charges that two school districts operated by one board of education is unconstitutional.

The suit is similar to one filed last year in Santa Barbara County. The superior court there ordered a special election to set up an independent elementary district. The case has been appealed to the state supreme court and a ruling is expected in a month or so.

San Rafael, Santa Rosa and several Southern California school districts also operate under the system being tested.

The Petaluma suit claims that 10,000 registered voters are in the elementary district, but that school issues are governed by the joint board with the high school district that includes 23,500 voters from North Marin to Rohnert Park. The petition claims that the arrangement dilutes the vote of the elementary district since persons who live outside the district can elect the board of trustees.

A hearing before Judge Kenneth M. Eymann was set for June 18 at 9 a.m.

Novato Man Is Held To Answer

Dennis Leslie Yates, 26, of Novato, has been held to answer in Marin Superior Court May 21 on a burglary charge, following a preliminary hearing before Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith yesterday.

Yates was arrested by Novato police last Aug. 3 after he and a companion allegedly forced their way into the apartment of Deborah Ann Duncan, 19, of Novato, threatened her and fled with $125 in cash.

Yates failed to appear on the original date for his preliminary hearing and Judge Smith issued a bench warrant setting bail at $100,000 on which he recently was arrested.

Supervisors Veto Power Is Derailed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — An attempt by Marin County supervisors to get a new law giving them a veto over court security expenditures has been derailed by the presiding judge of Marin Superior Court, Henry J. Broderick.

The supervisors and judges have been at odds for several years with each side insisting it has the final power over the expenditures.

The supervisors in February moved to settle the issue in their favor by asking the county's state legislators to introduce a bill subjecting the expenditures to the supervisors' approval. Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr, both R-San Rafael, divided the 16 bills asked by the supervisors and Bagley got the one on court security.

The assemblyman, it was learned yesterday, changed his mind at the request of Broderick and the proposed bill was not included in a batch of measures he introduced for possible passage this year. Now it is too late for such a bill to be effective before early 1975.

Bagley said that he had phoned Broderick for the court's views on the proposal and Broderick then voiced objection.

The assemblyman said he will refer the proposal back to the supervisors to see if "they really want to fight the courts up here." He added the Legislature traditionally was loath "to get into a domestic dog fight."

Bagley, an attorney, said he expected to advise the supervisor to drop the proposal "and not take on the court system." If they insist on it, however, he said he will introduce it.

His policy always has been that a local governmental agency has a right to introduce legislation.

Four Injured In Prison Mishap

Three convicts and a guard were hurt yesterday at San Quentin Prison when they were hit by pieces of concrete and metal sprayed by a bullet fired by a guard trying to break up a fist fight, a prison spokesman reported.

The bulled was a "warning shot" that hit a pipe and ricocheted into a wall in the old south block of the prison, a special block that houses problem prisoners, the spokesman said.

The four men suffered only cuts and bruises and were treated at the prison hospital and released following the 12:20 p.m. shooting.

Elevator's Fall Is 'A Wild Ride'

OAKLAND (UPI) — "It was a hell of a ride," a bank messenger said Wednesday after an eleavator dropped four stories, hit bottom and bounced back to the first floor.

Russell Baker, 62, the City Hall elevator's only passenger, then shrugged and walked away, apparently unharmed.

Baker is a Bank of America employe.

Policeman Slayer Gets Long Term

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A jury sentenced John L. Harris, a 26-year-old accused of murdering a city policeman, to 2,000 years in prison Tuesday and added 200 more years because of a robbery conviction.

The day before another jury sentenced Eugene Spencer Jr., also accused of killing a policeman, to 10,000 years in prison.

Fairfax Board Eyes Lowest Budget Plan

The Fairfax School District board last night took its second look at a proposed budget for 1973-74, but made no cut or addition to the spending program.

Although three fiscal programs have been suggested by Supt. H. Reginald Hammond, the board last night focused attention on a $1,119,257 spending program, least expensive of the three.

The proposal — which cuts many accounts budgeted this year — is down from this year's $1,200,986 budget, Hammond said, but it does not include salary hikes for employees.

If the board approves salary increases of about 5 per cent, the spending program will increase by about $40,000, he said.

The proposed budget of $1,119,257, along with salary increases and a $10,000 allocation for special programs, would match projected income next year of about $1,170,734, he said.

Proposed in the budget is a $3,000 reduction in book expenditures over this year's $9,000 book allocation, he said. Cuts are also proposed for the district's general supply account, and the budget eliminates completely any money for teaching aides or for renewal of the district's Boyd Museum 'contract, he said.

The board last night suggested the possibility of cutting a $21,000 allocation for transportation — meaning an end to district bus service — to replenish these accounts, he said. No action was taken, he added.

The board will next discuss the budget at 7:45 p.m. May 29.

The Fairfax School District board also:

MIDDLE SCHOOL — Heard the Middle School study committee recommend that the board develop a multiuse facility at White Hill School with an eye toward converting the school to a middle school in the future.

TEACHERS — Heard a request from the teachers salary committee for 5 per cent pay increases for district employees.

DEER PARK — Asked the Fairfax Town Council to annex the Deer Park School area to the town and directed Hammond to develop the cost of turfing two ballfields at the school through use of volunteer labor.

HUMAN — Accepted a human torso model from three parents clubs for use at Deer Park, Manor and Central Schools.

BOOKS — Adopted science and health texts for district use.

ACCOUNTANT — Said Sleezer and Eckhoff will be the district accountants next year.

ENROLLMENT — Said enrollment last week was 957 pupils, up four from the previous week.

NEXT MEETING — Postponed the remainder of the agenda to 7:45 p.m. May 29.

Those Appointed Must Take Oath

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Anyone elected or appointed to state office in Kentucky must swear he never has fought a duel with deadly weapons. Statewide officeholders must take an oath which includes this provision:

"...and I do further solemnly swear that ... I, being a citizen of this state, have not fought a duel with deadly weapons within this state nor out of it, nor have I sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel with deadly weapons, nor have I acted as second in carrying a challenge, nor aided or assisted any person thus offending, so help me God."

Reed Trustees Delay Clsoing Tiburon School

The absence of two members of the Reed School District board last night forced trustees to delay a decision on closing Tiburon School.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said three board members discussed the proposed closing with parents, who spoke both for and against the closure, then postponed the matter until the full board can hear it.

Absent last night were Dr. John J. Osborn and Kenneth G. Wells, he said.

Giovanniello has proposed four possibilities, three of them involving closing Tiburon School, which has 77 students and three teachers. Better education would result from the step, the superintendent said.

Trustees also postponed until a special budget session at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Del Mar School consideration of spending about $10,000 to correct deficiencies in the Reedland Woods School heating system and an unknown sum to improve drainage at Del Mar.

Once A Reason For Tire Kicking

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — It's almost a tradition to kick the tires of the car you're thinking of buying. But why?

Experts at Goodyear think it all began back in the early 1900s when the "clincher" tire was used on cars. This tire was held tight against the rim by clamps, and you kicked it to see if it was properly fastened and inflated.

Tires in those good old days lasted about 50 miles on average, Goodyear notes. By contrast the company's newest tires are guaranteed for 40,000 miles, so kicking them doesn't really make much sense.

Hitchhiker Arrested In Rock Tossing

A 29-year-old hitchhiker, who reportedly threw rocks at cars that wouldn't stop to give him a lift, was arrested by Novato police last night on suspicion of throwing things at vehicles with intent to injure.

Officers arrested Andrew Leonard Sarabyn of 1091 San Jose Boulevard, Novato, an Air Force staff sergeant at Hamilton Air Force Base, shortly after 10:30 p.m. at Sunset Parkway and South Novato Boulevard.

He was arrested after three drivers reported that rocks hit their car while they were driving along South Novato Boulevard in the area of the 1500 block, police said.

Police listed dents and chipped windows as the damage caused by rocks.

Sarabyn was booked at Marin County Jail, posted $1,200 bail and is to appear in Marin Municipal Court Friday.

Mormon Settlers

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The main party of 148 Mormon pioneers who came to Utah with Brigham Young in 1847 included 143 men, three women and two children.

Marin City Pair Faces Drug Count

Two Marin City men were arrested by Novato police yesterday on suspicion of possession of amphetamines for sale after officers reported discovering 4,500 white pills in their car.

Arrested were Robert Ward, 26, of 345 Drake Avenue, and Michael Earl Harris, 23, of 49 Cole Drive, Apt. 14.

Officers said they stopped the car at Highway 101 and Grant Avenue at 6 p.m. because it didn't have a 1973 registration tab, saw an open can of beer inside and searched the car.

Four plastic bags, containing about 4,000 pills were in the glove compartment, and smaller bags, containing about 500 pills, were above the visor on the driver's side, police said.

Harris and Ward were booked at Marin County Jail, posted $1,000 bail each and are scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Friday.

Tenants' Lawsuit Peace Is Reached

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In return for $17.5 million to be spent on low rent apartments, a tenants' organization has agreed to give up a suit that has stalled a $385 million redevelopment project for three years.

A peace pact was signed to that end yesterday in the lobby of a Skid Row hotel by the Tenants and Owners in Opposition to Redevelopment and the city's Redevelopment Agency.

Density Problem Stays Before Sonoma Board

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Compromise eluded the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors last night as members failed again to agree on future density for land surrounding Sonoma State College.

At issue was the request of the college and the City of Rohnert Park to limit development around the campus to one dwelling per 10 acres so the rural atmosphere can be preserved. Property owners, however, asked for higher density zoning, permitting one dwelling on one or two acres, so they can profit from their land.

As happened a month ago, the supervisors again deadlocked on the issue, which requires three votes for either zoning. Supervisors Ignazio A. Vella and Charles Hinkle supported the low-density plan while Philip L. Joerger supported property owners. Supervisor Henry Spomer, who voted with Joerger last time, was absent and Robert Theiller could not vote because he is a partner in a group that owns 200 acres in the area.

Theiller, who owns property south of the college, had been told by the Sonoma County counsel's office that he could vote on the matter without conflict of interest provided property within a mile of his was excluded from the vote.

His suggestion last night that it be excluded received no support and his vote was barred.

The board said it would try to muster a full board and reach a compromise agreement at yet another session June 5 at 7:30 p.m.

Vella said his proposed 10-acre zoning for land from the Rohnert Park city limits to Petaluma Hill Road should be in effect for two years to give the county planning department and Rohnert Park city council time to plan a feasible means of buying land for open space or at least acquiring the development rights.

He said the area would be considered in a "holding zone" which would not harm landowners since actual development is still several years away. Vella suggested that land on the eastside of Petaluma Hill Road and into the foothills of the Sonoma Mountains be zoned for two-acre homesites.

Riders and walkers may begin their treks in Novato at checkpoints at 490 Ignacio Boulevard, Taft Court, 2085 Novato Boulevard, Simmons Lane, or Olive Avenue. Checkpoints along the Ross Valley route are Tamalpais Drive in Corte Madera, the Wolfe Grade School parking area, 807 San Anselmo Avenue and Tarry Road in San Anselmo.

Hikers and bikers participating in either of the 20-mile treks may register at the Marin Aid to Retarded Children office, 1601 Second Street, San Rafael.

Retirement Dinner Set For Teacher

About 300 people have placed reservations for a retirement party June 9 honoring long-time San Rafael educator Edwina Codoni, a spokesman for the event said yesterday.

Some 835 invitations have been mailed for the event, scheduled at 6:30 p.m. in the grand ballroom of the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, according to Mary Lou Jacobson, banquet chairman. Anyone wishing to attend the dinner, which costs $10 per person, may contact Kay Castle at 12 Locksley Lane, San Rafael, she said.

Miss Codoni, a 40-year veteran of the teaching profession, retires next month as principal of Coleman School in San Rafael after 37 years of service in the city school system.

Programs sponsored by Catholic Charities include drug abuse treatment and education, counseling services for youths and families, housing for the elderly and day care centers, well baby clinics and adoption services.

The organization also operates San Quentin House, which provides services to visiting families of San Quentin Prison inmates.

RABIES FEAR EXPRESSED AT HAMILTON

Animal bites at Hamilton Air Force Base are increasing and the base "has all the factors needed for a rabies epidemic," according to Capt. Andrew C. Mills, veterinary services chief.

"There are lots of loose, unleashed animals, Marin County has had an increase in rabies cases, the number of skunks on the base is large and the number of animal bites on the base are increasing," Mills reported. So far this year there have been 19 dog bites reported on the base, he said.

With the large population of wild, unvaccinated cats and dogs, as well as skunks on the base that can transmit rabies to a house pet, it should be reason enough to keep pets leashed or confined."

Bond Payoff Said Best For Surplus

State Controller Houston Flournoy yesterday renewed his call for using surplus state funds to pay off about $300 million in bonds, a move he said would save about $150 million in interest.

Speaking before the Novato Republican Women at the Marin Country Club, Flournoy said, "It seems a better use than a one-time rebate."

Flournoy cautioned that the reported $850 million surplus was just an estimate, subject to changing conditions.

"A couple of months ago I raised a warning flag that it ($850 million) might not be there," he said.

For instance, Flournoy said state withholding tax refunds have been higher than expected and might run as much as $100 million beyond estimates.

Some of the comments by Flournoy on other topics were:

REAPPORTIONMENT — The State Supreme Court could devise a better state reapportionment plan than the legislature, which has been stalemated on the issue.

PARTY POLITICS — The Republican Party hasn't fared as well as it might with young voters, who will be voting in statewide elections for the first time next year.

OFFSHORE DRILLING — The state moratorium was set pending development of adequate safety measures to prevent oil spills "and hopefully at this point they (oil companies) have equipment" and the state can lift restrictions in the near future.

Board Sets Sewerage Annex Rule

Novato Sanitary District directors have determined that if private sewage disposal systems are permitted at World College West and the Renaissance Center, west of Highway 101, south of San Antonio Creek, the area shouldn't be annexed to the district.

As planned, World College West would eventually have 600 students on about 200 acres and the center, about 250 persons on 275 acres.

Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph said directors agreed Monday night if public sewerage is required the land should be annexed to the district, but not if the sewerage system is private.

The board also urged that Gov. Ronald Reagan appoint the Bay Area Sewer Services Agency as the areawide sewerage planning agency for the Bay Area.

Group Readies Fable Updating

"The Great Cross-Country Race," a modern adaptation of the fable "The Hare and the Tortoise" will be presented Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Tomales High School.

The presentation by the Actor's Theatre for Children from Santa Rosa is the classic tale of the speedy hare being bested in the race by the slow but steady moving tortoise.

The hare is diverted in the race by a courting couple and pauses to gorge himself on a picnic lunch. The tortoise, however, plods steadily and relentlessly to the finish line.

The production is designed for pre-school aged children through adults.

PORK, A good source of thiamin, is excellent for a company meal. Here pork chops are well browned and the other fresh ingredients are added to make this appetizing dish. Broccoli with lemon sauce and fresh rhubarb mousse complete the menu.

Economist Suggests Pork Dish

Orange tomato pork chops are the suggestion of home economist Peggy Hopkins of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Rafael for a good company main dish.

The recipe uses fresh orange juice and slices as well as fresh tomatoes and slices of avocado.

With it she suggests fresh rhubarb mousse which she finds to be not only delicious but a very attractive dessert. Potatoes and fresh green vegetable such as broccoli will round out the menu. Read all the recipes through before you begin cooking.

The rhubarb is sliced and cooked in orange juice with some sugar. The slices soften and "shred" themselves during cooking, to just the right texture for making the mousse. No blender is needed for the job.

Unflavored gelatin is added, the mixture is chilled, whipped cream is folded in, and the mousse is then chilled till firm. The color is a beautiful pink. It's a festive and fascinating dessert.

Enjoy the seasonal fresh fruits and vegetables in your menus. It makes meals ever-changing, appetizing, and rich with the nutrition that fresh foods bring.

FRESH ORANGE TOMATO PORK CHOPS

2 tablespoon salad oil
4 loin pork chops
½ cup chopped fresh onion
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup chopped peeled fresh tomatoes
½ cup fresh orange juice
½ cup water
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 avocado, sliced
2 oranges*, peeled and sliced

Heat oil in skillet. Add pork chops and brown on both sides. Remove. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender. Sprinkle with flour; stir to mix well. Add tomatoes, orange juice, water, salt and thyme. Add pork chops, cover and simmer one hour or until meat is tender. Add sliced avocado and oranges; heat. Makes four servings.

Note: To prepare oranges, cut slice from top, then cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane. Or cut off peel round and round spiral fashion. Go over fruit again to remove any remaining white membrane. Cut into crosswise slices.

BROCCOLI WITH LEMON BUTTER

1 bunch fresh broccoli
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

To prepare broccoli, cut off large leaves and the bottom of the stalks. Wash well. Cut into flowerets. Cook, uncovered, in boiling salted water to cover for 10 to 15 minutes, until crisp-tender. Drain. Turn into heated serving dish and keep warm. Melt butter in same saucepan; add lemon juice and pour over broccoli. Garnish with lemon slices.

Serves four.

For best results, purchase rhubarb that is firm and crisp, with stalks not excessively thin.

FRESH RHUBARB MOUSSE

½ cup fresh orange juice, divided
1 cup sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
1 cup heavy cream (or chilled evaporated milk)
Red food coloring

Combine rhubarb with ¼ cup orange juice and sugar in saucepan. Simmer, covered 10 minutes, until rhubarb pieces come apart into "strings." Meanwhile, soften gelatin in remaining ¼ cup orange juice; stir into hot rhubarb mixture until dissolved. Remove from heat. Add lemon juice.

Chill until mixture is thoroughly cool and mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Whip cream; fold into rhubarb mixture. Add a few drops of red food coloring to tint delicate pink. Turn into dessert dishes. Chill until set.

If desired, garnish with whipped cream. Makes six to eight servings.

Mexican Foods Will Be Feature Of Market Day

Mexican foods are a favorite with Marinites and the Northgate Group's Market Day will take a Mexican theme May 23.

To create a new sampling booth Northgate Group members have cooked some Mexican style foods that can be sampled and the recipes bought at the booth, open 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

They have consented to share a few of the casserole recipes as a preview with Independent-Journal food page readers.

CHICKEN ENCHILADAS

2 cups diced leftover chicken or turkey
1 cup sharp cheese, grated
1 can sliced black olives, drained
8 corn tortillas

Sauce

2 tbsp. oil
1 clove garlic, mashed
½ cup onion, minced
10 oz. chicken broth
10 oz. water
1 or 2 Tbsp. chili powder
¼ cup flour
1 tsp. MSG
1 Tbsp. oil
½ cup chili sauce

Saute onions and garlic in two tablespoons oil. Add broth and water. Mix remaining ingredients into a paste and add to broth mixture. Simmer 15-20 minutes.

Fill the tortillas with the chicken mixture, roll up and place in a greased 7 x 12-inch baking dish, seam side down. Cover with the sauce. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or until bubbly hot. Sprinkle extra cheese on the tops. Serves four.

CHILI CHICKEN CASSEROLE

2 medium packages Mexican chips, crushed
2 cans chili con carne, without beans
3 cooked chicken breasts, sliced
1 pint sour cream
2 onions chopped
Grated sharp cheese

Line bottom of an 8 x 12 inch casserole with half of the crushed chips. Layer the other ingredients in order given, topping with remaining crushed chips.

Bake in 325 oven for 40 minutes.

Radio Show Features Astrology

Cooking with astrology was the theme for Diane MacMillan's KTIM radio show, Kitchen Time in Marin, with guest Walden Welch. The recipe shows how the guest may be entertained with his or her Zodiac sign.

ANGEL CAKE WITH TAURUS IN MIND

1 cup sifted cake flour
1½ cups granulated sugar
1¼ cups egg whites (8-10) room temperature
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract

Sift the flour and 1/4 cup of the sugar together. Add salt to egg whites and whip at high speed until light and foamy; then add the cream of tartar. Whip until stiff enough to form shiny peaks, but not dry. Blend in the remaining sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating and blending in each addition. Fold in the vanilla extract. Sift 1/4 cup of the flour-mixture over the meringue and fold in lightly. Repeating until all is used. Spoon into an ungreased 10-inch tube cake pan.

Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until cake springs back when pressed with the tip of the finger and "hang" the cake until completely cool.

Vegetables Vary Menus

SWEET AND SOUR RED CABBAGE

1 medium head (about 2½ pounds) red cabbage
¼ cup butter
1 tablespoon sugar
⅓ cup cider vinegar
¾ cup water
3 medium apples
½ cup red currant jelly
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Remove tough outer leaves from cabbage. Cut head in half and with a sharp knife cut each half into fine shreds, discarding core. (Firmly packed shredded cabbage will measure 2 to 2½ quarts.) In a large saucepot over moderate heat melt butter; stir in sugar; mix in cabbage and cook, stirring, about 3 minutes.

Mix in vinegar and water. Cover and cook over low heat for 1½ hours, mixing occasionally and adding a small amount of water if needed. At end of cooking time, peel and core apples and coarsely chop (there should be about 2 cups); add to cabbage with currant jelly, salt and pepper. Mix until jelly is dissolved.

Continue cooking, uncovered, about 30 minutes, mixing several times. Makes eight servings.

HERE'S AN appetizer tray that's hard for company to resist. It features prawns, fresh zucchini, cooked asparagus and cherry tomatoes with a parsley garnish and can be served with Pistachio mayonnaise for dunking.

Fix Quick Appetizers With Tray Of Shrimp

PRAWN PLATTER

1 package (about 12 oz.) frozen shrimp
1 basket cherry tomatoes
1 bunch asparagus, trimmed
1 zucchini, cut in long spears
Parsley
Pistachio mayonnaise

Cook shrimp according to package directions, drain well, then cover and refrigerate until chilled.

To serve, arrange shrimp, then tomatoes, zucchini and asparagus to your taste on a platter or arrange asparagus in a pitcher as shown. Garnish with parsley and serve with the mayonnaise for dunking.

Pistachio Mayonnaise: In a blender, mix two egg yolks and one tablespoon lemon juice. Then pour in ⅓ cup melted butter in a slow steady stream; then pour in ¼ cup salad oil. Stop blender and add four torn spinach leaves, two teaspoons chopped chives and ⅓ cup chopped pistachio nuts. Force into mayonnaise; then blend until thoroughly distributed and spinach is well chopped. If mixture becomes too thick for the blender, add water, a teaspoon at a time and continue to blend.

English Dessert Can Be Americanized

Here's an American adaptation of a dessert from England. It's Strawberry Trifle and its main ingredients are the luscious red berries, ladyfingers and whipped cream.

STRAWBERRY TRIFLE

2 pints fresh strawberries
Sugar
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Dash of salt
½ pint heavy cream
¼ cup port or sherry
Red food coloring
1 package (3 ounces) ladyfingers (about 12 whole separated into halves) or an equal number of homemade ladyfingers

Wash and hull strawberries. Reserve half a dozen whole strawberries for garnish. Puree half of remaining berries in electric blender; set aside. Slice remaining berries and sweeten with ¼ cup sugar; set aside.

In a medium saucepan thoroughly mix together six tablespoons sugar, the cornstarch, lemon juice and salt. Stir in pureed strawberries. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and clear. Cool.

Whip ½ cup of the cream. Fold the whipped cream, two tablespoons of the port and a few drops of red food color into cooled strawberry mixture.

Line the bottom and sides of a glass bowl (holding about six cups and preferably with straight sides) with halved ladyfingers. Sprinkle with the remaining two tablespoons port. Spoon half the sliced strawberries on top of ladyfingers; spoon half the strawberry-cream mixture over sliced strawberries. Repeat the two layers with remaining sliced strawberries and strawberry-cream mixture. Chill for several hours or longer.

Makes six to eight servings.

Pimiento Potatoes Are Popular To Prepare-Ahead

PREPARE-AHEAD PIMIENTO POTATOES

6 medium baking potatoes, about 2¼ pounds
6 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup milk
1½ teaspoons salt
White pepper to taste
1 can (4 ounces) drained canned pimiento, diced
⅓ cup finely grated cheddar cheese
Paprika

In a preheated 425-degree oven bake potatoes until soft — about 50 minutes. Cut a thin lengthwise slice from top of each potato. Scoop out pulp, reserving shells; mash pulp and beat in butter, milk, salt and pepper; stir in pimiento. Spoon back into shells. Sprinkle with cheese and paprika.

Cover with transparent plastic wrap and refrigerate for six to eight hours or overnight. Place potatoes on a cookie sheet and bake in a pre-heated 425-degree oven until hot through and tops are brown and crusty — 30 to 40 minutes. Makes six servings.

New Flavors With Spinach

An interesting combination of flavors is the result of anchovy spinach. Suggested menu includes fish fillets, potatoes, salad and a peach upside down cake.

ANCHOVY SPINACH

1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach
¼ cup finely diced celery
4 flat anchovy fillets, cut up
2 tablespoons butter
Pepper to taste
4 slices bacon, crisply cooked and crumbled

Cook spinach, adding the celery and omitting salt, according to package directions; drain. Add anchovy, butter and pepper and reheat. Sprinkle with bacon. Makes four servings.

Thawing Chickens

Whole frozen chickens that weigh three pounds or less defrost in about 12 hours at refrigerator temperature. To thaw at room temperature, allow two to three hours per pound for whole chicken, or 1½ to 2 hours per pound for smaller parts.

Marin Women

JUNIOR LEAGUE delegates from throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico yesterday toured San Quentin Prison grounds (left). Following the tour prison warden Louis S. Nelson welcomed the delegates (right) and discussed the prison administrators responsibilities. The women, who are attending the league's annual conference, later had the opportunity to question a panel made up of prisoners and prison officials. (I-J photos by Jim Kean)

Junior League Visits San Quentin

By JOAN LISETOR

The Junior League came to San Quentin Prison yesterday. Some 60 of the 600 delegates attending the annual conference of the Association of Junior Leagues, which ends tomorrow, participated in a day long workshop at the prison.

The women arrived by bus from the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, where they are staying, and were given a tour of the prison grounds. From a windy hill top they surveyed the prison grounds for an over all view of the facility.

Each delegate to the conference is involved in an in depth study and was given a choice of problems of education, arts and the environment or alternatives to correctional institutions. The group choosing correctional institutions was broken down into conventional and unconventional facilities, explained Sally Reese of San Jose, chairman of the San Quentin tour. Other women yesterday toured Vacaville State Penitentary and an unconventional facility in Redwood City, Mrs. Reese said.

The purpose of the tours was to give the women a view of prison reform in California. When they return home their local chapters will be informed of possible volunteer involvement by the delegates, she said.

"THE JUNIOR League is a change agent, and our purpose is to educate members. Some chapters are already working toward improvements in the criminal justice system counseling families," she said.

Following the tour Warden Louis S. Nelson addressed the women.

"Most of the women at our gates are interested in their own little games. I welcome visitors who are genuinely interested," the warden told the women.

He discussed his background in prison work. Like most, he said, he got into prison work by accident and was not prepared for it.

"Historically prisons have had the purpose of getting the person who is transgressing against the standards of society out of the midst of society," he said.

In times past the criminals were banished to islands until there were no longer enough places, and places of banishment were established in communities with the purpose to restrict movement. Prisons cannot be termed failures, he said, because no one knows what prisons are supposed to do.

"Are prisons to protect the public or offer those inside an opportunity to modify their attitudes?" he asked rhetorically.

Somehwere between is the answer, according to the warden, and that is to afford inmates the opportunity to do something for themselves. Prison time is punishment, he said, and punishment is good if it is not too long, and the end is followed by some reward.

FOLLOWING THE warden's talk the prison's public information officer Lee DeBord introduced a panel of prison officials, Jim Ingram, acting associate warden in charge of the classification and treatment section; Bud Bolton, acting superintendent of the prison's education programs; and William Merkle, in charge of the 320 uniformed personnel at the prison. Also on the panel were three members of the general prison population.

Most of the women's questions were directed to the inmates.

In answer to questions the women were told that any prisoner can make an appointment for an interview with the warden. Men would not feel resentment to volunteers working with them on a one-to-one basis, and they are generally opposed to the indeterminate sentence.

The biggest concern, one of the prisoners said, is to keep from getting bitter. The man, a murderer and former resident of death row, said he keeps busy by going to church, having a hobby and playing tennis to keep from becoming embittered.

"The state gives you $68, and you have no moustache, short hair and some khakis. It's like an animal that has been domesticated and then turned back into the forest. You can not matriculate back into society with a job in a car wash that pays $1.50 or $1.75 an hour."

Following a luncheon in the prison cafeteria the women toured the gas chamber and then attended another workshop.

Panelists, the Rev. Larry Baulch of Job Therapy, a volunteer visitation program; Bill Elliot, a parole administrator; Paula Hubbell, a parole agent; and Margaret Muirhead of Friends Outside, a volunteer organization; offered the women ideas for volunteer programs for their Junior League chapters.

Advice Given To Consumers In Tam High School Series

By BETTY FROST

"Seek advice before entering into a contract or purchase agreement," advised Lawrence A. Mayer, attorney and chairman of the Marin County Legal Aid board.

Mayer was one of three panelists discussing consumer rights and responsibilities at the final program in the current series conducted by the Consumer Resource Center at Tamalpais High School yesterday.

"Take your time, find out what the sales agreement really means, and if you don't understand, seek advice at that stage, "the attorney suggested. "This is the cheapest way," he stated, indicating it is far less expensive than litigation.

Donald W. Schwartz, executive vice president of the San Francisco Better Business Bureau, outlined the work of that organization, founded nationally in 1912 and established in San Francisco in 1928.

The five major functions of the bureau in the protection of the consumer are complaint handling, keeping records of the reliability of merchants, working for truthful advertising, checking the trustworthiness of business and non-business groups soliciting funds, and consumer education, Schwartz said.

"Within the last two years the Better Business Bureau has stepped up its programs in response to the demands of the consumer movement," he said. The organization is financed by businessmen themselves, and was originated to raise ethical standards within the business community.

A consumer arbitration program, at no cost to the participants, is offered by the bureau for those whose claims are around $200, Schwartz said.

Roderick D. McPeak, director of the Marin County Better Business Bureau, which was established with offices in San Rafael last month, attended the program.

Mrs. Bette W. Wallace of the Marin County Human Rights Department staff, gave information about the consumer hot line center.

"Since the center was opened on April 15 as a pilot program under the human rights department, it has averaged 35 to 50 calls a day," Mrs. Wallace said. "I am deeply convinced of the desperate need for this service," she continued.

"We can only mediate and have no legal power," Mrs. Wallace said. The hot line service receives complaints and will contact local business and company representatives and work with regulatory agencies to resolve complaints.

Emphasizing that no item is too insignificant for concern, she spoke of "the case of the rotten brassiere." Through the offices of the hot line the faulty merchandise was returned and the $12.50 paid for the garment refunded within 24 hours, she said.

Tips On Care Of The Skin

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Should you be using a soap or detergent, acid or alkaline skin cleanser? Understanding your skin's chemistry should help you to decide, according to Dr. David A. Zackson, and this knowledge could be the key to skin beauty for many skin-sensitive individuals.

At a recent meeting on skin cleansing Dr. Zackson, who is medical director of Winthrop Laboratories, explained to the beauty editors present that for some individuals almost any popular skin cleanser used regularly and correctly is sufficient to get skin clean. However, the physician said, many individuals may require a specifically engineered skin cleanser that is hypoallergenic and finely controlled, with a slightly acidic measurement and contains a detergent.

Normal skin has a measurement of about 5.5. Therefore, it is considered slightly acidic. Skin care experts agree than an ideal skin care product should have the same measurement as normal skin.

In Dr. Zackson's opinion, the best skin cleanser for daily use is one that cleanses thoroughly, is an emulsifier of oils, moisturizes, is non-drying, is non-irritating, is hypoallergenic, pleasant to use and does not disturb the skin's chemistry.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Wife, Boss In Triangle And He Wonders If He Should Tell

DEAR HELEN:

I've known for some time that my wife has been seeing another man. Two weeks ago I found that the other man was my best friend, and my boss.

He's married, too, and his wife thinks he's still madly in love with her. She has no idea he's being unfaithful.

I really feel obligated to tell my friend's wife what's happening, but I don't want to go against a friend (and boss). I have an excellent position in the firm, by the way.

What should I do? — DESPERATE

DEAR DES:

Some friend! Some wife!

Since you seem more concerned about losing the former than the latter, why don't you send your wife away on a long trip — I mean make her an offer she can't refuse, like the choice between an ocean cruise and a messy divorce.

I'm sure your very friendly boss will get the message. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Watching another National Geographic-type show the other night, I started wondering: How come "topless" and occasionally "bottomless' dances are okay if the skin is black and the locale, Africa, but TV network heads quake or even sometimes roll if more than routine "cleavage" slips past the censors of made-in-America films?

A nude is a nude is a nude, so what's the difference whether she's in a tribal village or an East Village play? — DOWN WITH DISCRIMINATION

DEAR D WITH D:

You're talking about custom versus skin flicks. Should the United States adopt nudity as its national "dress," the TV censor would take his scissors elsewhere — H.

(Which sorta proves "bare" isn't bad — it's the way you look at it.)

DEAR HELEN:

I really love this married man. Please tell me how I can get over being jealous of his wife? — HIS ON TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS

DEAR HIS:

The same way you can cure his wife's jealousy of you: get out of this married man's life! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

"Hurt," who gained 25 pounds in the first five months of her marriage, may need more sympathy than her "nagging" husband gives her. She could be eating excessively to fill an emotional need, as I did.

I was somewhat heavy when I married, and my husband nagged and poked fun at me. I was hungry for love and compassion, so when he pushed me away — literally — I fulfilled that need by stuffing myself with food. The fatter I became the more unhappy (and repulsed) I was.

Several years later I met a very kind man at the office. By then my whole world was falling apart. This man talked to me about my problems, he listened and he cared. I began to gain self-respect and, happily, I started shedding pounds. No, there wasn't an "affair," just kindness.

My eating pattern changed and I found those gooey treats no longer tasted good. I now have a size-10 figure and a new outlook on life.

Perhaps if "Hurt's" husband will be more understanding and less critical, she will find her pounds melting away too. Be it emotional or physical, an overweight person needs help, not sneers.

My story has a happy ending. My husband and I are now happily married. He realizes his approach to my former problem was wrong and he knows why it's no longer a problem.

Sometimes overeating is as much of an illness as alcoholism. Foodaholics need proper treatment, and that doesn't mean ridicule. — ONE WHO KNOWS

THE DEBATE over the safety of the microwave oven is heating up again. Whether the amount of microwave leakage is dangerous is a major question.

Safety Of Microwave Ovens Debated

By NANCY IRAN PHILLIPS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

AMANA, IOWA — How safe is a microwave oven?

Can it leak radiation? Is it dangerous to be near while food is being cooked? Can the food cooked in the electronic range absorb radiation and become dangerous to eat?

Answers to these questions came from a panel of three of the world's leading radiation scientists who were here recently at the request of Amana Refrigeration, Inc., to answer a report by Consumers Union.

The report said it had found "measurable radiation leakage" in 15 leading models of microwave ovens and "was not convinced that they are completely safe."

Microwave ovens do their rapid cooking by setting the molecules of the food in motion, thus creating heat within the food items themselves. Electromagnetic waves, much like the waves transmitted by a radio or TV station, are generated by a vacuum tube called a magnetron. The frequency of the microwaves is in the range of 2,450 megacycles, and cooking is done at approximately 100 milliwatts per square centimeter of energy (mw cm 2).

CRITICS ADMIT that this level is safe for cooking, but charge that during cooking some of the microwaves leak to what may be a harmful degree.

They say that the exposure standard for leakage of 10 milliwatts per square centimeter set by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) and supported by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) "may be inadequate."

Dr. Sol. M. Michaelson, professor of radiation biology and biophysics, University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y., reported that: "The interaction of biologic tissues and microwaves of radio frequency energies has been studied for the last 50 years, and since World War II the response of the body to microwave exposure has been investigated. It can safely be said that as of today, there is no substantiated evidence of injury to man following exposure to microwave levels that are within the protection guides recommended by ANSI for personal exposure or the microwave oven emission standard promulgated by HEW."

Dr. James A. Van Allen, professor of physics, University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa, who helped prepare the radiation safety standards for the Mercury, Gemini, and Apollo flights and discovered the radiation belt which surrounds the earth, also commented on the safety of the ovens.

HE POINTED out that the intensity and duration of exposure to any radiation are significant. "Within the cooking volume of a microwave oven the effective intensity is about 10 watts per square centimeter. Such an intensity is clearly hazardous. It causes the cooking of a hamburger in only three minutes and would do the same for a human hand, if similarly exposed.

"But, the shielding by the metal enclosure is so nearly perfect in household ovens that the intensity outside the oven only two inches from the door seal is reduced by a factor of 10,000 and at the typical position of the operator by a factor of at least 100,000. This shield is the secret of safety of the microwave ovens," he concluded.

Dr. Van Allen compared the hazard of the oven to the likelihood of "getting a skin tan from moonlight," and in fact, he volunteered to sit on top of his own family's oven for "a solid year while it is in full operation, with no apprehension as to my safety."

Experts from Amana, one of 15 makers of microwave ovens, pointed out that direct sunlight is a great source of radiation, and most of the sun's rays are harmless except at high frequencies when exposure is extended. A microwave oven such as the Amana gives off less than 1 per cent of the amount of radiation one gets from sunlight on a summer day. Or, to put it another way, the total power leakage from an oven is less than 6 watts, equal to the power consumed by a penlight flashlight bulb. The company's standard, checked as ovens come off the assembly line, is .1 mw cm2.

ALSO, THE energy which does leak from the oven diminishes rapidly as the distance increases. So the homemaker who sets something to cook in the microwave oven closes the door, and continues the meal preparation around the kitchen, is in no real danger, should there be a low level of leakage since the standard measurements are taken at two inches from the oven, where she may stay for only a few seconds.

Dr. John M. Osepchuk of Raytheon Company's Research Division, the company which manufactures the magnetron used by its subsidiary, Amana, in its ovens, explained in answer to an editor's question that if the leakage reached levels of 20 to 40 milliwatts, the user would feel the heat and move away from the oven, thus realizing the need for repair.

Litton Industries, another manufacturer of microwave ovens both for the restaurant industry, which has used them for almost 20 years, and for the consumer, reports that in 1971 some 100,000 microwave ovens were sold for home use. In '72 the number reached 300,000 and this year it's expected that 500,000 will be added to the kitchens of the United States. By 1972, they predict, 1.5 million units will be in use and 7 million of them will be in combination ranges with a microwave unit combined with gas or electricity.

Litton calculates that daily some 20,000 homemakers use ranges which have counter top microwave units which vary in price from $179 to $500.

But Litton experts point out that the lower priced counter top units, whether made in the U.S. or in Japan, as a number are, don't sacrifice safety in scaling down the cost of the unit.

At the conclusion of Amana's press briefing, George C. Foerstner, president-founder of Amana Refrigeration, reported that his company had filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission, asking that the publication Consumer Reports justify its report in the way a company must prove its advertising claims to the commission. The complaint states that, through the story, "the consumer is prevented from being in a position to make informed buying decisions."

It also charged that Ecometrics, a California-based manufacturer of a device for checking radiation emissions from microwave ovens, has been found unreliable for compliance testing by the Bureau of Radiological Health.

MICROWAVE OVEN safety remains as debatable a topic in the nation's capital as anywhere else around the country.

The government maintains the federal standard of radiation emission — five milliwatts per square centimeter at a distance of about two inches from the oven — effective since October, 1971, is quite sufficient as it stands.

"At the time the standard was written, it was soundly attacked as being ultra-conservative — we had a difficult time defending it," says Dr. Morris L. Shore, director of the Food and Drug Administration's Division of Biological Effects. "It's stringent. Any microwave oven that meets the standard, in my opinion, would be safe for use in the home."

Dr. Shore adds that in practice manufacturers must tailor their products to even tighter safety specifications to be absolutely sure that they will meet the federal standards.

Not all agree that the standards are tough enough. Some, such as Richard Sandler, energy researcher for Ralph Nader and a former staff member of the Senate Commerce Committee where he specialized in work on electronic production radiation, argue that the standard does not take into account enough risk possibilities.

"THE STANDARD is written for pristine lab use conditions," he explains. "While it may be reasonable to assume that under most conditions, individuals won't sit right next to the oven for long periods of time in conversation, it's within the realm of possibility. You may not place the load exactly in the middle of the oven, and the door could be left slightly open. . .It should be public policy to set standards that take into account the worst conditions.

"Our knowledge of low-level microwave-radiation biological effects is very incomplete. It is possible these could be significantly worse than they are now thought to be. Given that possibility, you have to weigh the risk against the benefit — decreased cooking time. Personally, I wouldn't expose my family to the possible risks in exchange for that known benefit."

Bacon Is Best At A Low Heat

The secret to successful bacon cookery is low heat. Place the meat in a cold skillet and separate the slices as they begin to cook so that each slice is flat in the pan.

Continue cooking over low heat, turning the slices often, until they are browned evenly on both sides. Remove the slices to drain on absorbent paper.

She Starts Building Healthy Bodies Early

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Just as one would not build the Empire State Building from its roof down, so one does not develop a healthy body in middle age."

Suzy Prudden, physical fitness authority, speaking. Miss Prudden believes in starting that body building in infancy. Her mother, Bonnie Prudden, fitness expert too, started her two daughters on exercise programs when they were about four years old.

Suzy Prudden starts the little ones even earlier, some as early as only three weeks of age.

MANY EXPERTS hold that a child's mental growth is greatest in the first few years of its life. Miss Prudden says that the same goes for its physical life.

"Just as you realize that a fetus, an infant and a growing child require the proper nourishment in order to develop a healthy body and good brain cells, you know they need exercise as well. Those years are the child's foundation," she says.

UPI photographer Maurice Maurel and I sat in one afternoon on two of Miss Prudden's exercise sessions for infants. One was an individual session of 20 minutes with Lily Fertik, an agile 7-month-old charmer with a toothless grin and a fuzz of dark hair.

The other ran about 30 minutes with 10 children from 16 months to two years doing group play and exercises on swings, trapeze, ladders, bars and "horses"—Miss Prudden's adaptation of the type used by carpenters.

For the small ones (up to two and three years), Miss Prudden insists that the mothers all participate. But on the day of our visit, Mrs. William (Robin) Fertik sat on the sidelines while Miss Prudden and baby Lily exercised on a large mat.

"MY OTHER child, Joshua, now two, has been coming in weekly since last October," said his mother. Did the children show any fright, I asked Mrs. Fertik, whose husband is a film director and writer.

"No," she said, "but I was scared to death at first. Look at Lily, though. She's so joyous all the time. And I'm more comfortable."

"A baby won't break," said Miss Prudden, mother of 7-year-old Robert, who's exercised with his parents (she's married to Jeffrey Sussman) since infancy.

"It's an old wives' tale, this whole concept of don't touch," she said. "Then you see how the nurses toss them around in the hospital.

"We want to build straight, strong bodies, not make muscly babies. Exercising with the infant gives mother and child an opportunity to be very close."

Miss Prudden works with parents and child once a week, trying to introduce a new exercise at each session. Parents are urged to do the routines daily.

THE EARLIEST exercises simply are stretching, the 29-year-old Miss Prudden said. "Remember," she explained, "that little thing has been lying curled closely inside the womb for nine months. We need to stretch arm and leg muscles."

But Miss Prudden was helping little Lily with such things as knee bends, chest stretch with baby's arms folded across the front, shoulder and chest stretch with baby's arms above its head as it lay on its back, the bicycle or rotating legs in a circular motion as if she were riding a bike, doing the "airplane" (make like flying while on stomach), wheel barrow pushups with baby's arms the "wheel" and legs the handles.

She also helped Lily through a gentle somersault and supported her in the "ship's prow" (mother helping support baby at a 45-degree angle to mother's body). Yet Lily is just beginning to experiment with crawling.

All exercises are designed to strengthen specific parts of the body.

Miss Prudden and a staff of 10 run classes for some 475 children (from age four months to 12 and 13 years) at two New York City locations. There are also classes for adults. And in summer she runs a children's recreation day camp at Bridgehampton, N.Y.

With her husband as photographer-writer, she's also done a "Suzy Prudden's Creative Fitness for Baby and Child" (William Morrow & Co.) illustrating the exercises.

Miss Prudden says parents always should consult a pediatrician before beginning any exercise regimen. But carried on through childhood, the results "are a self-confidence that shows in everything he does for a whole lifetime."

A New Perfume Called Brunette

A brunette perfume is what Andre Courreges calls the scent, Empreinte, which has recently been introduced to the United States.

Empreinte is a combination of 15 different oils and ingredients, including exotic woods, a musk base, with hints of jasmin and Bulgarian rose.

Correct Height For Chandeliers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — You've heard about the housewife who never sees her husband because he's hidden behind a newspaper at the breakfast table.

A chandelier hung too low can inhibit comfortable viewing across the table. As a general rule, advises Scovill's Lightcraft of California division, the chandelier should be 30 to 40 inches above the table. On higher ceilings the chandelier should be even a little higher.

Program Aims At Cigarette, Alcohol Abuse

Recognizing that alcohol, not heroin, is the number one drug problem in the United States, the National Parent-Teacher Association has initiated special pilot education projects to combat alcohol and cigarette smoking in five states.

The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA), a unit of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has provided funds for the National P-TA to work toward solutions for the growing problems related to alcoholism in young people.

The pilot programs are being conducted in Connecticut, Louisians, Mississippi, Texas and Wisconsin. To further its emphasis on alcohol abuse and alcoholism through public education programs the National P-TA has scheduled a workshop, "Alcohol: A Family Affair," for its annual convention May 20-23 at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis, Mo.

College Of Marin's Fast-Swimming 'Fish'

With a name like Dunker it's only natural he be a fine swimmer. The Dunker in this case is Bob, a sophomore at College of Marin who starred in swimming and water polo for the Tars.

But his contemporaries still came up with a nickname for him. "Some of the kids call me 'Fish,'" smiled the handsome, blond Dunker. During the school months he was competing in swimming and water polo and during the summer months he is a lifeguard at Stinson Beach. So you can see: he's in the water the year 'round. 'Fish' as a nickname fits him well.

BOB DUNKER

Dunker set College of Marin records in the 100-yard freestyle, 49.6, and the 100-yard backstroke, 59.3 and tied the Marin record in the 50 free, 22.6. He was anchor man on the team's 400-yard freestyle relay team which set a Marin record, 3:23.1. He was also named to the All-Camino Norte Conference water polo team last season.

"He is one of the top three or four swimmers I've had since coming here," said Marin swim coach Bob Justice, who has been coaching at the Kentfield school for nine years.

The broad-shouldered Dunker, who stands 6-foot-1 and weighs 185 pounds, is from Ohio and came to Marin with his parents after his graduation from high school. He has been in competitive swimming since he was seven, starting with the age group program.

Now with his junior college competition behind him, the 19-year-old Dunker is planning to enroll at San Jose State University and work toward his bachelor's degree and possibly a master's. And, of course, he will be competing in water polo. He says his days of competitive swimming are over, but he is going all out in water polo.

Quite a spokesman for College of Marin, Dunker feels that too many water polo players in high school are looking past Marin to four-year colleges. "Believe me, they won't be ready for water polo teams at UCLA or San Jose State," he said. "They should play at College of Marin first. if I had gone to UCLA or one of the bigger colleges out of high school I would have been on the bench."

During the summer of 1971 when he first came to California, Dunker practiced at De Anza Junior College under Art Lambert, the man who coached the U.S. Olympic team in 1968. After that summer he enrolled at College of Marin and helped build up a team which was really lacking in manpower.

At San Jose Bob will be studying to become a history and physical education teacher and then "I'll probably go back east or maybe the midwest and teach and coach water polo."

Dunker said he felt sports interest would be picking up. "The kids are getting back into sports. . .they're dropping the drug scene."

FORE FOR FORD — Yes, that was Ken Venturi in front of all those cameras around the 18th green at San Rafael's Peacock Gap Country Club yesterday. The cameras were whirring all morning catching Venturi blasting from the bunkers, putting and hitting some approach shots. The footage is to be used in a Ford commercial.

And while we're at Peacock Gap, I see that Harry Lawrence has been unretired for the sixth time in the P.G. pro shop. Lawrence, 71, is helping out until things get settled there following the resignation of Rob McQuade.

Ryan's No-Hitter On Super Fastballs

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — There was nothing flukey about Nolan Ryan's first no-hitter. He blew the Kansas City Royals away 3-0 and he looked like he could do the same thing for nine more innings Tuesday night.

"He's throwing the ball harder than anybody I've ever seen in my life," said John Mayberry, the major league RBI leader who struck out three times against the California flame-thrower.

Amos Otis, who knew Ryan when both were with the New York Mets, said, "I yelled at him all through the game. I called him every name you can think of and told him we were going to break it up. All he did was look at me and shake his head. The man derailed the Big Blue Bus."

Otis made the last out of the game, taking rightfielder Ken Berry to the warning track about 380 feet from home plate. But Berry, who was inserted into the game for defensive purposes in the seventh inning, made the catch and lifted the ball over his head in a victory salute. Ryan's teammates poured from the dugout to pump his hand.

Otis was the only Royal to pull a ball against Ryan, who struck out 12 and walked three. He grounded out routinely to shortstop Rudy Meoli in the seventh.

Kansas City catcher Carl Taylor said, "The man was throwing harder at the end than he was at the start. After the first time around, I thought I could hit him. But when I saw him the second time, I knew there was no way."

Ryan himself took the feat rather calmly.

"I've never felt like I was the type of pitcher to throw a nohitter," the 26-year-old righthander said. "My curve isn't the type that is overpowering. And I don't have the type of fastball that really moves like some left-handers throw."

The most difficult play turned in by the Angels came with two out in the eighth when pinchhitter Gail Hopkins lofted a soft line drive to center. Meoli raced back and grabbed the ball with his back to the infield.

Ryan's gem was the second no-hitter of the major league season. Kansas City rookie Steve Busby pitched the first, winning 3-0 at Detroit April 27.

Marichal Gets Call For Giants Tonight

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Padres and the high-flying San Francisco Giants play the rubber game in their three-game series tonight with Mike Cadlwelln 1-4, facing Juan Marichal, 4-3.

The Giants won Tuesday night 4-2 when Chris Speier led off the sixth inning with his fifth homer to spark a three-run rally. The Padres had upset the Giants Monday night 7-1.

The Giants remain atop the National League West 2 ½ games ahead of Houston, three ahead of Cincinnati and five ahead of Los Angeles.

Ron Bryant got the victory Tuesday night with relief help from Randy Moffitt. Bryant now has a 5-3 record. Moffitt got his seventh save.

Vicente Romo, 2-1, took the loss. He was lifted in the sixth after giving up all four runs and eight hits.

The Padres got their two runs in the eighth. Enzo Hernandez led off with a double and scored on Johnny Grubb's single. Moffitt came on and was touched for singles by Nate Colbert and Clarence Gaston and Grubb scored.

Speier opened the sixth inning with his homer. Willie McCovey fanned but then came successive singles by Ed Goodson, Garry Maddox and Gary Mathews for two more runs. The same trio single in the eighth off Gary Ross to make it 4-0.

Moffitt could have been in big trouble when he relieved Bryant but he got catcher Fred Kendall to hit into a double play with two runs in, two men on and only one out.

"I tried to jam him and got it in close," said Moffitt. "That was the big play."

Moffitt, of Mill Valley, revealed he is having trouble with an old knee injury. He broke his left kneecap last year and reinjured it four days ago. He says he has it bandaged so tightly that he can hardly bend the knee.

Goodson, the third baseman, complained about the lights.

"You just can't see a high bouncer at third on account of those lights," he said. "They're unbelievable."

At least two Giant hitters got lucky singles when the ball was lost in the lights by Dave Hilton, Padres third sacker.

After the game, Padre Manager Don Zimmer and General Manager Peter Bavasi had a private meeting about the lights. Bavasi said he is going to try to put filters on the lights to cut down on the glare at third.

A's Hoping To Forget Tough Loss

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's and Chicago White Sox parted ways today but the result of their latest meeting figures to linger a lot longer than both clubs might admit.

The White Sox, with a spectacular relief performance from former San Francisco Giant Steve Stone, scored a 6-5, 12-inning victory over the A's Tuesday night, then left for Minnesota for a five-game series with the Twins while the A's went to Anaheim for a two-game set with the Angels. Tonight's game will be televised by KTVU, Channel 2, starting at 8 o'clock.

"This was a big victory for us," said Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner, "because it came over a fine club and it gave us a little breathing room."

"It was the toughest loss of the year for us," said Dick Williams, the A's' skipper. "We should have won it but we didn't. I only hope the effects of the loss don't linger. We had a shot to win it four times and we didn't. You just can't do that against a club like Chicago. When you have a chance to beat them you should."

John Jeter, hitless in five previous at-bats, opened the Chicago 12th with a single and stole second, the Sox' fourth steal of the game. Pat Kelly, the American League's top hitter, doubled and Jeter scored with what proved to be the winning run, although the drama was yet to come.

SAFE ON THE PLAY — Redwood High School's Jeff Vogel (8) was safe on his slide into third base as the throw from Terra Linda shortstop Nick Mattos hit him in the back and bounced away from third baseman Greg Watroba (1) in the fifth inning yesterday. Vogel died on third and the Trojans went on to upset the already-crowned Marin County Athletic League champions, 4-1, at Albert Field.

Terra Linda Beats Champ Redwood, 4-1

Lee Peterson and Mark Collischonn fueled Terra Linda High School's drive for second place yesterday by batting and pitching the Trojans to a 4-1 victory over champion Redwood in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Albert Field.

Terra Linda's fourth straight triumph moved the Trojans into a tie for second at 8-5 with San Rafael and Novato, and broke Redwood's four-game winning streak. The Giants are 11-2 with one game left.

Peterson hit a line-drive single to left field in the fifth inning to score two runs, then knocked in another with a sacrifice fly in the sixth, on which Redwood center fielder Mike Connor made a spectacular diving catch.

Collischonn saved the victory for Kevin Kirby by entering with the bases loaded and nobody out in the seventh inning and getting one batter to pop up and another to hit into a double play. In his last two relief appearances, Collischonn has earned two saves by facing six batters and recording eight outs, having induced two double plays.

Marinite Sets Judo Fund Push

Mel Augustine, juvenile supervisor in the Marin County Probation Department, is starting a fund drive to help send the 12-man U.S. judo team to the world championships in Lucerne, Switzerland.

Augustine, president of the Pacific Association, Amateur Athletic Union and manager of the U.S. judo team who will be in charge of the delegation in Switzerland, is about $2,000 short of the goal needed.

Total cost for the trip, June 4 through 26, is approximately $16,000. The U.S. Olympic Committee has put up $5,000 and the U.S. Judo Federation has put up another $5,000. Augustine has come up with about $2,000 worth of equipment and uniforms and the judoists themselves are going to pay another $2,000 out of their own pockets. That still leaves Augustine $2,000 short and would force him to cut two of the men off the squad.

The judoists who will represent the U.S. come from Illinois, Texas, Tennessee, New Jersey, parts of California and one as far away as a U.S. air base in the Phillipines. The Northern Californians on the team are Tom Martin of Stockton and Mark McCready of San Francisco.

Contributions, tax deductable, should be mailed to: U.S. International Judo Team in care of Bank of America, 1201 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael 94901, according to Augustine.

Hate Mail Continues For Aaron

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hank Aaron, the Atlanta Brave's super slugger who is fast approaching Babe Ruth's career record of 714 home runs, says he receives hate mail every day berating him because he is a black man approaching a white man's record.

"If I were a white man, all America would be proud of me," Aaron said. "But I'm black. You have to be black in America to know how sick some people are. I've always thought racism a problem, even with as much progress as America has made."

Aaron, in Houston for a series with the Astros, is just 31 homers away from tying Ruth's legendary mark. He says the intensity of the mail increases the closer he comes to the record.

"Last week I got 416 pieces of mail one day and 600-some-odd the next. I'd say the ratio is 60-40, that 60 per cent of it is of a racist nature," the 39-year-old star said.

"It's very offensive. They call me 'Nigger' and every other bad word you can come up with," he said.

All-League Honor For Marin's Olson

College of Marin's versatile Tom Olson was named to the first team on the Camino Norte Conference all-star baseball squad announced today, while the Tars' Don Bianchini and Jim Thompson were chosen for the second team.

The team was chosen by the league's coaches, who earlier had polled their players, according to Marin coach Vic Petreshene. Thompson was selected as an outfielder, while Olson and Bianchini were picked as utility men.

"The coaches decided about three years ago to create the utility category for players who were used at several positions," Petreshene said. "It is an honorable spot."

Olson and Bianchini each pitched, caught, and played first base, third base and the outfield. Olson hit .341 and Bianchini .337 in one play, with Olson's five home runs leading the league.

As pitchers, Bianchini had a 4-2 record and 2.10 earned run average, while Olson was 3-3 and 3.64.

2 Seals' Stars Ink Contracts

OAKLAND (UPI) — Goaltender Gilles Meloche and rookie wing Hilliard Graves, two of the outstanding players of the California Golden Seals, have signed multi-year contracts.

At the same time, Coach-General Manager Fred Glover selected nine juniors in the annual National Hockey League amateur draft at Montreal. All were big, with the smallest at 5-foot-11 and 180 pounds.

Tuesday's signing of Meloche and Graves, both 22, brings to seven the number of players signed to 1973-74 Seals contracts. Others signed earlier are Joey Johnston, Walt McKechnie, Craig Patrick, Reggie Leach and Bob Stewart.

First player picked by the Seals in the amateur draft was Jeff Jacques, 20, a 5-11, 185-pound center from St. Catherine's of the Ontario Junior A's. He scored 32 goals and 46 assists last season.

Next two players picked were defenseman Ron Serafini, 19, of St. Catherine's and left wing Jim Moxey, 20, of the Hamilton Red Wings. Moxey had 40 goals and 40 assists.

Jeff Mills pitched a one-hitter yesterday to give Terra Linda High School a 3-0 junior varsity baseball victory over host Redwood yesterday. The Trojans already have clinched the Marin County Athletic League title with a 12-1 record.

Drake Surprises Novato Nine, 2-1

Last-place Drake High School scored twice on squeeze bunts while pitcher Don Asay held second-place Novato at bay for a 2-1 Marin County Athletic League baseball upset yesterday at Novato.

Asay struck out six and allowed five hits for Drake (2-11), which dropped Novato into a three-way tie for second at 8-5.

Jeff Brauner squeezed home Matt Elliott with a bunt about eight feet in front of home plate in the seventh inning. Elliott had doubled and taken third on a sacrifice by Bob Mayer.

Drake scored in the fifth as Warren Pino singled and his pinch-runner, Carlo Parachini, eventually came home from third on Ron Nerviani's squeeze. Novato tied the game in the sixth as Joe Robinson doubled, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Dave Brazell's sacrifice fly.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

'Scoreboard Game' In The Astrodome

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

They played the "scoreboard game" at the Houston Astrodome again Tuesday night, and Astros' General Manager Spec Richardson figures to be the biggest loser.

The promotion department of the Astros, under the direction of Richardson, delivered a rather scathing attack at National League umpires Bruce Froemming and Augie Donatelli Tuesday night in bold letters on the $2 million Astrodome scoreboard.

Richardson became upset over a call which went against the Astros in the ninth inning of their 4-1 loss to the Atlanta Braves and ordered the publicity department to post the following notice on the scoreboard for everyone to see:

"Manager Leo Durocher has announced the game is being played under protest and that umpires Froemming and Donatelli have blown decisions in two of the last three games."

The play started with Atlanta runners on first and second with one out in the ninth. Dave Johnson grounded to third baseman Doug Rader, who tossed it to Tommy Helms at second to start a double play,

Helms relayed to first baseman Lee May to apparently end the inning but Froemming ruled Helms did not touch second and Atlanta's Mike Lum was safe. May didn't see Froemming's signal and routinely tossed the ball to first base umpire Paul Pryor as Dusty Baker of the Braves went from second to third.

Pryor said he dropped the ball when he saw Froemming's signal and Baker raced home before May could retrieve the ball. Helms cussed Froemming and was ejected.

Durocher protested the run scoring after Pryor had caught the ball.

"He had the ball in his hand two or three seconds," Durocher said of Pryor. "If he throws the ball back to May, May throws the ball to the plate and gets the guy."

Richardson, flushed with anger, ordered the message displayed and more than 11,000 fans stood to applaud it. Many of them threw paper cups and other things at the umpires.

Donatelli, though not involved in the play, was included in the message because of a call he made on a home run by Cincinnati's Bobby Tolan Sunday in the Reds' 2-1 victory. Tolan hit a home run which was ruled fair by Donatelli but was considered foul by the Astros' players.

Pryor called it "bush" and said it was the worst thing he'd seen in his 27 years as an umpire, including his time in the minors. Plate umpire Ed Vargo, the crew chief, also was incensed, and said it was inciting the fans to riot.

The Braves actually didn't need the controversial call to win. Dusty Baker hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning and Phil Niekro, making his first start of the season, pitched a five-hitter to spark the victory.

In other National League games, Cincinnati downed Los Angeles 4-1, Pittsburgh nipped Montreal 9-8 in 11 innings, Atlanta topped Houston 4-1, San Francisco beat San Diego 4-2, St. Louis whipped Philadelphia 8-4 and Chicago downed New York 4-3.

Nolan Ryan pitched the first no-hitter of his career as California blanked Kansas City 3-0, Minnesota whipped Texas 9-5, Chicago edged Oakland 6-5 in 12 innings and Milwaukee topped Cleveland 2-1 in 17 innings in the only American League action. Detroit at New York and Baltimore at Boston were postponed by rain.

Novato, Terra Linda Win In Golf

Doug Henderson and Tom Lamore of Novato High School each shot one-under-par 33s yesterday to offset an identical score by Tamalpais' Steve Gaddis and give the Hornets a 180-198 Marin County Athletic League victory at Mill Valley Golf Course.

In yesterday's other league match, Terra Linda (10-1) kept its hold on first place with a 198-220 triumph over San Marin at Indian Valley, as Doug Talley was medalist with a 36. The Trojans are one match ahead of San Rafael and Novato (both 9-2), and face San Rafael today on the Bulldogs' course at Peacock Gap.

San Rafael Edges Tam In Baseball

San Rafael High School scored five times yesterday in what may have been the Marin County Athletic League's strangest inning of the year to take a 5-4 baseball victory over host Tamalpais.

The uprising in the fifth inning erased a 4-0 Tam lead and moved San Rafael into a three-way tie for second at 8-5 in the league. Tam is 3-10 and has lost six straight.

The first four runs in the San Rafael fifth scored without benefit of a hit, the result of two errors, three consecutive walks, a catcher's interference, a sacrifice fly, a passed ball and another error. Steve D'Ambra concluded the scoring with an RBI single.

Ducey Hurls Two-Hit Victory

Joe Ducey pitched a two-hit shutout and inaugurated the winning rally with a single as Marin Catholic High School took a 2-0 Marin County Athletic League baseball victory over visiting San Marin yesterday.

Ducey struck out 11, walked only two and retired 12 straight batters at one stretch, as the Wildcats moved into a fifth-place tie with the Mustangs at 6-7.

With two out in the fourth inning, Ducey singled, moved to third on two walks and scored as Tim Haley singled deep into the hole at shortstop. A wild pitch scored Jeff Knotts with the other run.

Stone then entered for his first relief appearance ever.

"I knew I had to keep them from hitting the ball anywhere out of the infield," he said, "or we were through. I made up my mind to throw strikes, mostly curveball strikes, and it worked out just fine."

Stone struck out Joe Rudi on four curveballs and Gene Tenace on three fastballs after falling behind on the count at 2-0.

"Sure I'd like to be a starter as I was with the Giants," Stone said , "but as long as I can make a contribution, even in relief, it's all right with me. I just want to help the club."

Hot Week For Hall In Minors

Marin City's Clifford Hall batted a sizzling .417 for the week and was easily the top performer among the six Marin County baseball players toiling last week in the minor leagues.

Player Periscope statistical service figures from Novato showed that Hall, a Chicago Cubs' outfielder with Quincy, Ill. in the Midwest-D League, had five safeties in 12 at-bats good for one double and a run batted in and raised his average to .280.

Novato's Tom Thomas, performing for the Pittsburgh Pirates' Salem, Va. team in the Carolina-A League, batted .250 for the seven-day period. The outfielder had a triple among his six hits collected in 24 at bats. Thomas drove in three runs and scored two more and now is batting .298.

Another Novatan, outfielder-first baseman John Dolinsek had batting difficulties last week. The Houston Astros' property at Denver in the American Association, AAA level, hit a paltry .192 with five hits in 26 at-bats; his hits included a double, triple and homer. He also had two RBIs and scored five runs. For the season, Dolinsek has a .255 average.

San Rafael's Dewey Forry had a light work load last week as a relief pitcher with the Los Angeles Dodgers's team at Bakersfield in the California-A League. In his lone appearance, he faced one batter, surrendering a hit. However, he maintained his sparkling 0.00 earned-run average and 3-0 won-lost log.

Novato's Russ Dillon, a pitcher with Savannah of the Southern League, AA level, was 0-1 in four games with a 7.50 ERA in the Atlanta Braves' organization this season.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Helpful Hints On Houseboats

Houseboating was big all through the Sixties and although it hit a slump in the recession of 1969-70, once again, the demand is getting ahead of the supply. Many people who ordered a houseboat last fall are getting delivery this spring.

Five years ago houseboats accounted for less than two per cent of the boating market. This year they could account for 12 per cent.

It's difficult to pinpoint the changes that have caused this upsurge in interest. Of course houseboats are much faster than they used to be, they are much more efficient, roomy, better value, safer and trouble free.

One thing that has appealed to a lot of new buyers is the fact that the new breed of houseboats will handle rough water. There was a time when a houseboat was a flat, unseaworthy barge but the modern boats have deep-V, or similar rough water hulls, and they will take a lot of punishment.

However, houseboats are not designed for hurricanes, and although one was driven across the Gulfstream at 35 miles per hour through six-foot waves in the Miami to Nassau race, (it came through unscathed) this sort of thing is not to be recommended.

Houseboats are for leisurely cruising along sheltered waterways, where in quiet relaxation one can enjoy the fishing and the scenery. However it is comforting to know that if you do get caught out in a blow you have a boat that can handle it.

Houseboating is a little different, and brings up a new set of questions from readers:

Q. I'm told I'll have to wait until next year for the particular model of houseboat I want. What's happened?

A. This is how far behind a couple of the U.S. manufacturers are with orders for some of the most popular models. The makers of such things as houseboats usually make enough of one model early in the year to supply what they estimate their dealers will sell. Then they go on to another model or something else. If they make a poor guess, and many did, it takes a long time to set up the production facilities again to produce more.

Q. If I buy a houseboat can I anchor it anywhere?

A. No. You can't anchor, for instance, so as to impede traffic in waterways and channels. But there are hundreds of thousands of miles of quiet, sheltered, interesting and picturesque waters where you can anchor.

Q. Do I pay taxes on a houseboat parked near shore?

A. You don't pay realty taxes as for a house or building sitting on real estate. But in some areas, notably Florida, you can be taxed for the possession of a houseboat.

Q. I want to build my own houseboat. I'm told building on pontoons is simplest. Where can I get them?

A. Write Weeres Industries Inc., P.O. Box 98, St. Cloud, Minn., 56301.

Q. I've built a summer cabin, can I build a houseboat?

A. If you build it on a platform on pontoons it's much the same as building another cabin, and is fairly simple carpentry. However, the pontoon boat is not likely to be as speedy and as versatile as the more modern designs built into V-hulls.

Q. If I get a houseboat, must other boats get out of my way?

A. A houseboat is still a boat and must follow the rules of the road just like any other.

Q. Are houseboats economical to operate?

A. At relatively slow speeds operating costs won't break you. But I once towed a couple of water skiers with a big powerful 4-½ ton houseboat that would skim along at 35 mph. It used a gallon of gasoline for every three quarters of a mile at top speed. But at its economical cruise speed, it did five miles per gallon.

Q. Is there a danger in houseboats?

A. One that should be mentioned strongly. If you are caught out in a sudden squall with wind and waves high, stay headed into the wind. To try to turn the boat so that you are broadside to the wind and waves is just asking to be capsized. I clip news stories of such happenings and I have one that reports 12 persons drowned, eight of them children, on an usually quiet inland lake when the skipper tried to turn a houseboat in a squall.

Yvonne Hits Triple In Babe Ruth Game

The rule book says that Babe Ruth baseball is for boys only. But R. W. Case of Trenton, N.J., international president of the organization, said in a telephone interview that his office will take no action to keep Yvonne from playing unless a formal complaint is filed.

And the coaches of the eight teams in Cabarrus County have not objected, so it looks as if Yvonne, an attractive tomboy, will continue in right field for the South Cabarrus Optimists.

Case said that times have changed since Babe Ruth baseball for teen-aged boys started in 1951. He said that when his 33-member board meets again in the fall he may suggest a study of whether girls should be allowed to play. Almost 300,000 boys in the United States and 16 foreign countries play in the league.

Yvonne got two hits in three at-bats and caught some fly balls easily as her team won its opening game 10-6 Monday night.

Comeback Win For San Rafael

Despite losing the first two singles matches, San Rafael High School collected itself and went on to a 4-3 victory over Marin Catholic yesterday in a Marin County Athletic League tennis match.

Other matches saw league-leading Redwood blank Drake, 7-0; Tamalpais whitewash Novato, 7-0; and Terra Linda overwhelm San Marin, 6-1.

Though Marin Catholic's John Doherty and Tony Trembley captured the Nos. 1 and 2 singles, San Rafael's Larry Levy, Pete Neuwald and John (Spike) Harry triumphed in singles and Bob Hoffman and Dave Peugh added the necessary doubles win.

Redwood (11-0) ran its undefeated streak in league competition to 76 team matches, and has lost only one individual match in 77 this year, that to Terra Linda. The Trojans (10-1) kept pace with Redwood yesterday, eyeing a rematch with the Giants in the season finale.

Scholarship Award Won By Novatan

Brad Miller of 27 Harding Drive, Novato, has won the Marin Boys' Club Football Scholarship Award, announced Sam W. Lockhart, club president.

Lockhart said Miller has now qualified as the candidate from Marin County for the Pop Warner national scholarship award.

Miller, 13 was chosen out of 14 other candidates by a College of Marin faculty committee. A member of the eighth grade class at Hill Junior High School in Novato, Miller is a straight-A student and a class representative on the student council.

He played two seasons of Pop Warner football under coach Gene Ferrari of the Novato Junior Hornets and Novato Yellowjackets. Miller played both ways in several positions; quarterback, guard, tackle and end.

Rodgers Gets Canadian Offer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska has been offered a multi-year contract at more than $100,000 annually by Montreal of the Canadian Football League, his agents said Tuesday.

Steve Perram, vice president of World Sports Management, which represents the Heisman Trophy winner, said, however, the negotiating team would entertain a counteroffer from the San Diego Chargers of the National Football League, who picked Rodgers in the first round of the pro draft.

BASEBALL

Rancho Clinches Crown

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park clinched its third consecutive Sonoma County League baseball championship yesterday, as Jerry Wachowiak pitched a three-hitter over visiting Analy of Sebastopol for a 1-0 victory.

In other Southern Sonoma high school diamond action yesterday, Petaluma was mathematically eliminated from the North Bay League race despite a 13-6 win over visiting Santa Rosa.

Wachowiak, a senior southpaw, allowed just four Tigers to reach base safely on two singles, a double and an error. He walked none and fanned six.

The Cougars scored their only run in the third inning on a one-out double to right field by Tim Peterson which scored Ray Jones from first. Jones was on base due to Kelly Huck's only walk of the game. Huck also gave up just three hits.

Petaluma's scoring was a little more prolific, if not artistic, than Rancho Cotate's, as the Trojans scored nine unearned runs off six Panther errors.

With the win the Trojans raised their NBL mark to 8-5, but co-leaders Napa and Vallejo both won yesterday to up their records to 10-3 with just one game left.

McPhail's Distribution Center Will Celebrate Grand Opening

McPhail's new half-million-dollar retail and distribution center in Petaluma will celebrate its grand opening this weekend from Friday through Sunday.

David G. Stephens of Mill Valley, president of McPhail's Inc., announced that the grand opening hours will be 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday, 9 to 6 on Saturday and 9 to 5 on Sunday. Customers who register at the store during the grand opening will be eligible for door prizes to be awarded on Sunday. John M. MacPhail Jr. of San Rafael, grandson of the founder of the company, will manage the new Petaluma center.

The 26,000-square-foot building is located on a five-acre parcel at 1000 Lakeville Street, at the Highway 101 Petaluma overpass. It will serve as the central warehouse for the appliance, television, propane and fuel oil divisions of McPhail Inc. in both Marin and Sonoma Counties.

Opening of the new center is the latest expansion for the 89-year-old firm, which was established in San Rafael in 1884 as a livery stable by Neil McPhail. The company has its main office in San Rafael and a branch in Santa Rosa.

Besides offering a complete line of appliances, television sets, stereo components, and services for these products, McPhail's also has a wide range of fuel oils, propane, sand and gravel, ready-mix concrete, aggregates, and other related building products and construction supplies.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Broker Holds Stocks Safely

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Our securities are held by our broker and we would like to know if you recommend this practice. This is very convenient but how is the safety factor? — R.F.

A. Your brokerage account is at one of the largest national retail firms and you have no cause for concern. There are now several built-in safety factors in the securities industries, measures which have been adopted to protect investors against a possible brokerage failure.

First, your account is covered by the Securities Investor Protection Corp. (SIPC), which was set up after the credit crunch of 1970. Under this insurance plan an investor's account is protected up to $50,000 including up to $20,000 in cash. A further protection is afforded investors by an "early warning system" set up by the New York Stock Exchange. Member firms are required to report monthly to the NYSE on their financial condition. Capital requirements have been tightened as well.

Q. What is lettered stock? — G.D.

A. Lettered stocks are unregistered or restricted securities for which no public market exists. In order to sell such stock publicly, it must be registered under the Securities Act of 1933 or exempted therefrom. Some growth mutual funds hold limited quantities of lettered or unregistered stock. In valuing portfolios, these funds assign a fair market value based on prospects for the issuing company or based on the market price of a similar unrestricted security of the same company.

Because of the limited marketability, buyers are able to obtain substantial discounts on purchases of restricted stock usually from a young company in need of capital. An open-end fund, which must stand ready to redeem shares at all times, limits such investments in order to maintain its liquidity. Careful reading of a mutual fund's prospectus will ascertain the percentage of assets actually invested in lettered stock and what limitations the fund observes in this area. Generally speaking, most funds which invest in these issues have an upper limit of 10 per cent of assets.

Vacancies In Rental Property Up

Housing vacancies are on the rise, especially in rental apartments, according to a housing survey conducted by the Federal Home Loan Bank of San Francisco.

The bank survey covered the housing situation in the 11th district, including metropolitan areas in California, Arizona and Nevada.

In the San Francisco-Oakland metropolitan area, the latest survey taken in June of 1972 showed a multi-family vacancy rate of 4.1 per cent, compared with 2.6 per cent vacancy rate in June of 1971.

This, however, was one of the lowest vacancy rates among all metropolitan areas surveyed by the Federal Home Loan Bank. Stockton has the highest vacancy rate of 10.1 per cent, and Monterey the lowest rate of 4 per cent.

Small Gain On Market In Moderate Turnover

Brokers said investors were taking some comfort from an advance in the dollar on foreign currency markets and a corresponding fall in gold prices due to profit-taking.

Shortly before noon, the Dow Jones industrial average had gained 1.51 to 918.95 . Winners outpaced losers, 649 to 480, of 1,538 issues across the ticker.

Two-hour volume reached 6,610,000 shares, compared to 10,350,000 shares changing hands by noon yesterday.

On the American Stock Exchange, prices drifted slightly lower in moderate activity. Teleprompter headed the actives, off 1 ¼ to 16 ⅛ on 31,400 shares.

Ways Are Eyed To Repair Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) — The space agency reported today soaring temperatures have made the interior of Skylab 1 uninhabitable and said a spacewalk by the first astronauts to visit the station probably would be necessary to correct the problem.

Flight director Chuck Lewis said engineers at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., and backup Skylab 1 Commander Russell L. Schweickart would begin tests today on a jury-rigged sunshield that might be deployed outside the orbiting station to cool it.

Lewis said the space agency is still trying to meet a proposed Sunday launch date for sending the first three spacemen up to Skylab. But he said it was "marginal" whether the repair equipment could be readied and checked out by that time.

Lewis is head of a special team assembled yesterday to determine where the emergency repair equipment could be stowed inside the Apollo command ship in which astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz will blast off for Skylab.

Reporting on latest Skylab developments in a news conference at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Lewis said temperatures inside the orbiting workshop (OWS) were well over 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Internal temps are too high to inhabit the OWS," he said. "It doesn't mean we wouldn't want (an astronaut) to go into the OWS, but it does mean we wouldn't want to use that as our living quarters."

One proposal, which would cool the workshop down enough to make it habitable, was a sunshade probably made of aluminized plastic. One of the astronauts would extend it along the side of Skylab where a vital built-in heat shield ripped away during the station's launch Monday.

"It would be just like taking a curtain and attaching it to one end of the vehicle and pushing it down to the other," Lewis said.

This was one of hundreds of ideas, ranging from the simple to the exotic, dreamed up by teams of space agency engineers and evaluated during crash working sessions which extended throughout the night.

Among the other far-out solutions proposed to save the $2.6 billion space station project were inflating a big balloon between the sun and Skylab to cast a cooling shadow, and wrapping a thermal blanket around the 110-ton tubular spaceship like a loose-fitting blanket.

Lewis said if the sunshade idea is adopted, an astronaut would stand in the Skylab hatch and use aluminum rods with "T" shaped cross braces to push the shade down the vehicle. The shade would be about 40 feet long and 10 or 12 feet wide. After it was extended, the rods to which it was attached would be clamped to the Skylab superstructure.

If this worked to cool the station down, he said, the astronauts would attempt to follow as closely as possible their normal 28-day flight plan aboard Skylab. A chief restriction would be how their electric generating equipment—cut to half its planned capacity by the same mishap that caused the overheating problem — performed.

Should the sunshade fail, the astronauts would be restricted to living in their Apollo command ship and entering the space station living quarters for only brief periods of time. They will carry an eight-day food supply aboard Apollo and might be able to retrieve more from inside Skylab if the space station food supply remains frozen, he said.

In an effort to lower temperatures in Skylab a little in the meantime, mission controllers sent remote-control signals to the vehicle to tilt it at an angle so only the nose was exposed to the sun.

They aimed the 118-foot long station so its four good solar-cell wings would still get a little sunlight and keep electrical equipment aboard the station alive.

The proposed spacewalk would be the first ever to repair a vehicle in orbit.

The astronauts, still under preflight quarantine to keep them from getting sick, flew from Cape Kennedy to Houston Tuesday to join in the crash program seeking a way to keep Skylab alive.

Gold Fever Cools Down In Europe

LONDON (UPI) — Gold's price dropped and the dollar's value climbed today as some of the gold fever went out of European financial markets.

In London gold was fixed at $106.50 an ounce in the afternoon price-pegging session. This was $4.50 lower than the morning price, a dollar or two above the figure at which most trades were made, and about $8 lower than the price of most of Tuesday's sales.

The dollar firmed in late afternoon trading in London, Paris, Zurich, Frankfurt and other European trading centers. It went up by amounts valued in fractions of cents.

Markets all over Europe were calmer than Tuesday's frantic sessions. There was no repetition of the market pressures which in the first two days of this week buffeted the dollar to new lows but sent gold soaring to the highest price in history.

Dealers said wealthy investors from the Middle East were now switching from gold back to dollars, restoring strength to the American currency.

In London, the world's main free market for gold, the first of two daily official price settings put the precious metal at $111 an ounce. The price setting was up 50 cents from Tuesday's closing price, and was the highest fixed price in history.

But it was lower than the dizzying $128.50 an ounce which gold touched at one point Tuesday in Paris, and lower than the $114 at which gold changed hands in London during Tuesday's trading.

The British pound slid lower as the dollar strengthened. Trading opened at higher rates, but it quickly took less and less dollars to buy a pound.

While a pound cost $2.57 and more Tuesday, the price dropped below $2.56 today and traded at $2.558 at midmorning.

"Conditions are much quieter" in the markets, one gold dealer said. He said "interest is still keen" in gold, but the price "moved around quite a bit." Before the official fixing, gold had fallen to less than $105 an ounce.

"It was definitely Arab buying of the dollar that sent sterling lower," said one major foreign exchange manager.

In Paris, French and American officials discounted the dollar devaluation speculation which drove markets feverishly upward earlier this week.

Canadian Girls Shot In Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Zambian troops firing across the Victoria Falls gorge into Rhodesia Tuesday killed two Canadian girls and wounded an American, a government spokesman said today.

One of the Canadian girls was killed instantly, the spokesman said. The other was hit and fell into the Zambezi River but her body has not yet been recovered, he said.

The spokesman said an American man with the tourist group was seriously wounded in the stomach.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The Proper Discard Presents Problem In Action At Slam

Trumping your partner's ace is commonly supposed to be the unforgivable sin in bridge. Remember, however, that bridge is not life. At the bridge table, success washes away all sin.

PONDERS DUMMY

West opens the king of hearts against the ambitious slam contract. And South wonders what to discard from dummy.

Suppose he postpones the decision. He ruffs the first heart in dummy and leads a trump to the ace. Then the plan is to cash the ace of hearts and lead a spade to force West into the lead.

What does West return?

WEST'S PLAN

West will return whichever suit has been discarded from the dummy. This return will give declarer three tricks in that suit, but South will still have to lose a trick to the queen of the remaining suit.

For example, suppose dummy discards a diamond on the ace of hearts. West is then given a trump trick and returns a diamond. This gives South three diamond tricks, but he must still eventually lose a club trick.

ONLY SOLUTION

The solution to the problem is to trump the ace of hearts in the dummy! To put it another way, dummy discards a trump.

West is then given his trump trick and cannot find a safe return. If he leads away from either queen, declarer takes all four tricks in that suit. If West instead leads another heart, dummy ruffs while South discards a club. South takes the top clubs and ruffs a club, establishing dummy's last club for another discard.

And now a word of advice: Save this kind of "fancy" play for holidays. Don't look for chances to trump your partner's ace.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one heart and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- Q 9 6 4 3
♥- None
♦- K 7 6 5
♣- K 9 8 7.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You plan to bid the hand very cautiously since your void in partner's suit is a liability rather than an asset.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Birthday news! Can you guess when today's notables were born by the headlines of that year?

1 - HENRY FONDA was born the year President Theodore Roosevelt ended the war between Japan and Russia by bringing them to the peace table in Washington, D.C. It also was the same year Zane Grey published "The Spirit of the Border." Years later Fonda would be starring in war movies and westerns — "War and Peace," "The Immortal Sergeant," "How the West Was Won," and "The Ox-Bow Incident." His birthplace: Grand Island, Neb.

2 - WOODY HERMAN was born the year the songs "Peg o' My Heart" and "You Made Me Love You" were most popular. It also was the year Teddy Roosevelt attacked an exhibition of modern European art as "lunatic." Woody later would be making popular music history as a swing band leader, selling one million copies of his recording of "Woodchopper's Ball." His birthplace: Milwaukee, Wis.

3 - LIBERACE was born the year President Woodrow Wilson went to Paris to attend the peace conference ending World War I. It also was the year of such tunes as "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm" and "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles." Twenty-three years later Liberace would be catching the fancy of TV viewers in Los Angeles as the pianist whose flashy clothes and candelabra would be his trademark. His birthplace: West Allis, Wis.

4 - BILLY MARTIN was born the year the New York "Yankees" blanked the St. Louis "Cardinals" in World Series play. It also was the year Herbert Hoover defeated Alfred E. Smith for the U.S. presidency. Years later Martin would bat an amazing .333 in four World Series for the Yankees, then go on to manage the Minnesota Twins and the Detroit Tigers: Birthplace: Berkeley, Calif.

Lighthouse In 112th Year

MIAMI (AP) — For more than 112 years, Jupiter lighthouse has kept vigil over Atlantic waters, warning mariners of dangerous coquina shoals.

The 105-foot tower's beacon first was lighted July 10, 1860. The light was darkened during the Civil War and its mechanism hidden by Southern sympathizers. Relighted June 28, 1866, it has not missed a night since.

Ross Valley Takes Bids For Work

The Ross Valley Sanitary District has received seven bids for construction of the new sewer trunkline from Ross to San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo this summer.

District engineer Ned J. Ongaro said the board opened the bids at its meeting Monday and referred them to district engineer Warren E. Nute for review. The board will award the contract at its meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the district office.

The low bidder was Healy Tibbitts Construction Company of San Francisco, at $621,814. High bidder was the Valley Engineering Inc., of Fresno, at $877,844.

The engineer's estimate for the job, which calls for fiberglass pipe, was $650,000.

Chamber Group Will Present Final Concert

The Tamalpais Chamber Orchestra will hold its last concert of the school year at 8 p.m. May 25 in the Mill Valley Methodist Church, the Tamalpais High School Fine Arts Department has announced.

Featured at the concert will be soloists Daniel Smiley playing the Vieuxtemps "#5 Violin Concerto"; George Larson playing Copeland's "Quiet City" on trumpet, and Candyce Takahashi playing Nelbybel's "Passacaglia for Orchestra and Piano."

The orchestra is directed by Robert Greenwood.

Among exhibits at the event will be displays of paintings, drawings, macrame, sculpture and tye-dye.

City Council Loser Seeks Planning Seat

Richard C. Fox, a research chemist who made an unsuccessful bid for a San Rafael City Council seat last month, has applied for one of two vacancies on the San Rafael Planning Commission.

The seats of commissioners Albert J. Boro and Thomas R. O'Toole expire June 30 and the city council has issued a call for applicants.

The 45-year-old Fox, who gained 1,144 votes at the polls April 17, billed himself then as a "conservative conservationist" and declared the city had been guilty of poor planning in the past.

The need for long range planning, Fox said yesterday, has prompted him to apply for a commission appointment. "I like to be generous but let's face it, city planning hasn't been hot," he said.

"I guess I can plan as well as the best of them," said Fox, a member of the city's citizen advisory committee on the general plan. "I want to bring a concern for long range planning to the commission."

As in his council campaign, Fox stressed the need to require open space dedications of developers and creation of a park and recreational area in the Canal Area.

Fox received his Bachelor's degree in chemistry from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and won doctorate honors from the University of Illinois. He is a 17-year resident of San Rafael and lives at 127 Humboldt Street.

Lease Plan Goes Before Marin Board

The Marin Community College District Board will be asked to approve leasing part of Pacheco School from the Novato Unified School District for its Indian Valley Colleges classes at its meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in room 101 of the science building at College of Marin.

The Novato district is closing Pacheco School because of falling enrollment. The college district's Indian Valley Colleges classes currently are strung out in San Jose Junior High School, Novato High School and Hamilton Air Force Base.

The proposed lease will cost the district $12,000 a year for eight classrooms, restrooms, office and corridor space totalling 19,200 square feet. Presently the district pays $5,000 for use of San Jose and Novato High classrooms and gets Hamilton AFB facilities free.

Other items on a long agenda include an agreement with the North Marin Municipal Water District for water services to the Indian Valley Colleges campus and going to bid for phase one of the North Marin campus buildings.

Oysters, Chips Are Predicted

PORTHCAWL, Wales (UPI) — The idea may shock traditionalists, but fish and chips may give way to oysters and chips.

The tradition-hallowed British snack, fried cod and fried potatoes wrapped in newspaper, may go because there isn't enough cod to meet the demand.

Most of his audience seemed to take the idea calmly.

"It's just a sign of the affluent society," said one fish fryer. "Oysters and chips had to come. Maybe we'll get the toffs (society folk) queueing up at our shops now."

Eight Are Named On Honors List

Eight San Rafael residents are among 1,300 students at the University of California at Riverside named to the dean's list for the 1973 winter quarter.

Carving Show

Woodcarvings by artist Ken Curry of San Rafael will be displayed through June 16 at the Franklin Savings and Loan Association in San Francisco, a bank spokesman said today.

NEW YORK, — Men, some claim jubilantly, have at last been "liberated" to practice needle skills whenever and wherever they please. Secret needleworkers have come out from under cover and asserted their independence from the outgrown notion that needle crafts are for women only.

Advertising executives, politicians, editors, athletes, financial experts, designers, and actors are among those men who now participate in creative stitchery. Some say they still endure a few snickers and dubious looks when they haul out their needles and yam on planes, trains, and subways. Most feel they have helped establish a climate of acceptance.

Social commentator Russel Lynes needlepoints. So do former pro football stars Rosey Grier and Matt Snell. Artie Johnson of TV's "Laugh-In" program is purported to be a whiz with wool.

Arthur Kilcup, a New York advertising man, discovered the fun of needlepoint at a rained-in resort where he watched a woman guest contentedly stabbing away at her canvas. He invited her to teach him, too.

Today, a good many pillow covers later, he teaches "men only" needlepoint classes two nights a week at the Grenadier Restaurant here and offers his own $16 kits that feature such "masculine" designs as fishing flys, a geometric, a sports cartoon, and a seascape with a single bobbing buoy in the foreground. He calls his kits "kingpoint" as a further male come-on. Harry Markson, director of boxing at Madison Square Garden, is one of his students at the Grenadier, as are City Commissioners Joseph W. Halper and Nick Pappas.

Innovative needle artists, both men and women, have given the old craft a contemporary look in the past 10 years. Louis J. Gartner Jr., a House and Garden magazine craft editor, became so intrigued with needlepoint that he opened his own shop, called "Needlepoint" on Worth Avenue in Palm Beach, Fla., and a needlepoint department in Bergdorf Goodman in New York. His book, Needlepoint Design (Morrow, $15.95) divulges his design secrets.

Popular patterns with men at Lou Gartner's shops are bamboo, cane, malachite, seashells, geometrics, and animals. His latest "animal kingdon" pets make three-dimensional animals, including a rabbit, cat, dog, monkey, lion and lamb. These range from $50 to $70 per kit.

Two members of the American Institute of Interior Designers, Daren Pierce and Inman Cook, have turned their talents to needlepoint design. Ample evidence is their Woolworks shop on Madison Avenue here and their book, The Betty Crocker Home Library Pleasures of Needlepoint (Scribner's). They say it's pretty funny to be the male Betty Crockers of needlepoint, but they are delighted to be able to teach others to "paint on canvas with wool."

"Anyone who can sew a basic running stitch can learn to do needlepoint," says the authors. They explain that needlepoint is simply a form of embroidery worked on canvas with wool in a variety of stitches.

Pierce says their men customers ask for abstract designs and geometrics in such colors as black, brown, beige, and white. They also love following with their needles such personal interests as yachting, golfing, tennis, dogs, horses, and houses.

Henry Coger, an antiques dealer from Ashley Falls, Mass., sat in his booth recently at the Coliseum Antiques Show, spectacles resting on the end of his nose, peacefully working on a big brilliant piece of bargello stitchery. He attacted almost as many interested spectators to view his handiwork as to price his furnishings.

Jack Waxman, who will soon open his Westhampton Beach needlepoint ship called "Xanadu" for the fourth season, commented, "Men are far more adventurous with the needle than women. They enjoy undertaking big projects — like chairs and rugs and sofa covers."

'Cesar And Rosalie' Lacking In Depth

By LOUISE SWEENEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

"Cesar and Rosalie" is a sometime comedy about a classic triangle wrapped in the French tricolor.

More aptly, it should be called "Cesar and Rosalie and David," since it is about two men in love with one woman, or perhaps one woman in love with two men. It is difficult to tell since the enigmatic role of Rosalie is played by Romy Schneider, who is no Mona Lisa.

The film might also be called "Cesar and David" because it is a pale echo of Francois Truffaut's "Jules and Jim." That bittersweet classic about two men, friends, in love with the same woman, had a sensitivity and depth lacking in this picture.

What this picture does have is what Rosalie tells David and Cesar they have in common: charm. The camera work is charming, the French countryside is charming, Yves Montand is especially charming as Cesar.

But the charm fades as the plot unravels tediously, and Rosalie alternates between her two lovers. She is like some erotic see-saw, and there is so little character motivation that by the end of the film the audience has stopped caring which side she is on. The slight and derivative script by director Philippe Sautet and Jean-Loupe Debadie also tries to suggest an implausible friendship between David and Cesar.

David is a cartoonist whom Sami Frey plays incongruously, like one of the great romantic painters. Montand really sweeps the film along with his talent and charm as Cesar, the self-made scrap metal baron with a tough, swaggering view of everything in life except Rosalie. For Rosalie he even learns to hum a Bach concerto by heart. It is almost like seeing Montand play Jean-Paul Belmondo, and it is a fascinating performance.

Director Sautet's earlier film, "The Things of Life," also focused on a triangle and bore the same weakness that this one does. Sautet concentrates so hard on the gloss, on the look of things — even a heap of scrap copper is photographed ravishingly. But he ignores the depths of character, relationship, and thought which might give some significance to his work. He is gifted, and if he could find himself a script with some substance, he would be a director to conjure with.

Country Music Invades New York

By JO ANN LEVINE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, N. Y. — "Like a moon in June. . .like a fork needs a spoon. . .like a song needs a tune" — do country music and New York go together?

The very presence of the country couple Tammy Wynette ("Stand by Your Man") and George Jones ("White Lightning") singing their "We Go Together" song in Philharmonic Hall twangs of a big "yes."

After all, they were singing the first country-music concert ever to be held in Lincoln Center; on the first day a mayor had proclaimed as "Country Music Day in New York City;" in the first week a slick city magazine had featured the "Cornball Invasion" on its cover; as well as the first full month a New York radio station had ever broadcast all-country music.

Country music and New York may not only go together, but New York may need country music more than country music needs New York.

Country music is simple words and simple stories about children and love and heartbreak ("sad sloggin' tear-jerkers" George Jones calls them).

"Country music is not tearing down music, but it offers hope," says John Van Buren Sullivan; general manager of WHN. "Many of the people who have liked this music over the years have had little but hope." Sullivan thinks New Yorkers can relate to such music. "Why the man on Wall Street," he said, "is hoping his stock doesn't go down."

"I'll just keep on falling in love 'til I get it right," pledges the persistent and often pleading Tammy Wynette, who like many country singers is a symbol of hope. A hairdresser, who loved to sing, she ended up marrying her long-time favorite singer, George Jones, and in the past five years has sold nine million records and grossed more than $30 million.

As for the listener, "country music brings out the best in a person," says Ray Macken, who drove in from New Jersey with his two sons, his brother, and sister, to hear the Wynette-Jones concert. "Rock and roll can hold younger people for a short time. . .But it can lead a person wrong. Its words and lyrics are not clean, its thoughts can stray you. . .This is wholesome music. Can't you just see how much in love Tammy Wynette and George Jones are?"

Some record stores in the New York area are already reporting an increase in country-music sales as part of the potential 19 million people are being exposed to it over WHN.

The Country Music Association (CMA) in Nashville claims that 16 per cent of all records sold in the U.S. are country-music records. That is not surprising when one discovers that in 1961 there were 81 full-time country stations in the U.S. and Canada.

By April, 1972, there were 806 full-time country stations, and an additional 1,046 stations that programmed country music three hours or more per day as well as 990 stations which played three hours or less of the music. (Since WHN's format wanders off into talk shows and ballgames, it is considered by CMA to be a part-time country station.)

In 1967 radio station WBRZ in Hackensack, N.J., picked up the Nashville sound, but the station had a weak signal, never got the support WHN is getting from the country musicians and Nashville performers — "Hackensack sounded too much like Nashville" — and until now the area has been without a country station since 1970.

The sound of country in New York is a smoother sound, and the twanginess of a Ray Acuff or an Ernest Tubb takes a back seat to the kind of country music which has jumped over into the "Top 40." These include records like Glen Campbell's "By the Time I Get to Phoenix," Ray Price's "For the Good Times," Jeannie C. Riley's "Harper Valley PTA," and the "Dueling Banjos Theme" from the movie "Deliverance."

The popularity of such singers as Glen Campbell, Johnny Cash, June Carter, Loretta Lynn, Wayland Jennings, Sonny James and Kris Kristofferson has broadened the public acceptance of country music.

Many feel that New York will change country music, slick it down, smooth it out, and take away its genuineness. "They are true to life, them people," maintains Macken, "and when you are true to life nothing will change you."

And while the New Yorker may have to strain as much as those down south to imagine it being "Two Below in Tupelo," it seems possible that he can happily sing along with Ernie Tubb "Walking the Floor Over You."

One can even imagine the Mayor bowing out of City Hall while singing with Lynn Anderson "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden."

Novato School Board Approves Bond Sale

The Novato Unified School District board last night authorized sale of $330,000 in bonds, rather than the $100,000 previously approved.

The vote came after Trustee William T. Eckhoff, a certified public accountant, advised it "might be wise" to sell all remaining bonds now because interest rates might be less favorable in the future. The $330,000 is the last of a $3,840,000 bond issue approved by voters in April, 1965.

The board plans to use $100,000 to finance building projects. Supt. James G. Bunker said the remaining $230,000 would be unused and invested.

Eugene F. De Brecht, assistant superintendent for business, estimated it would require a tax rate of two cents per $100 assessed valuation to pay off $100,000 and a rate of 6.5 to 7 cents to pay off $330,000.

After protests from several parents who sought delay, the board approved shifting junior high school boundaries to ease overcrowding at Sinaloa Junior High School.

Under the plan, 42 sixth graders from the Marion school attendance area will go to Hill Junior High School, rather than Sinaloa. All sixth graders from Bel Marin Keys, 29 in all, will go to San Jose Junior High School.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

SCHOOL SITES — Received a report from De Brecht that all six of the district's unused school sites purchased through state loans will be paid off by July, 1975 resulting in a drop in the tax rate of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

JUNIOR HIGH — Approved changes in the junior high school graduation requirements eliminating the exploratory program in the seventh grade and adding five social studies electives for ninth graders. Trustee Carolyn M. Crabtree dissented, saying she believes all seventh graders should have an exploratory course in music.

GIFTS — Accepted as gifts, $2,000 from the estate of Minnie Niemeyer, $500 from the Pleasant Valley Parent-Teacher Association and $400 from the Lu Sutton Parent-Teacher Association.

HIRED — Approved reemployment of all certificated personnel except those hired for limited periods, long-term substitutes and hourly employees.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Barbara Schmidt, speech therapist, Elizabeth Hillman, teacher of educationally handicapped, Ruth Snodgrass, attendance clerk, and Patrick Karinen, Transportation Assistant.

EASEMENT — Agreed that public access to Lu Sutton school from an apartment project across Warner Creek, as proposed by the city of Novato, isn't needed at present.

BULL FIGHTING — Received a plea from Allan Roberts, teacher at Sinaloa Junior High School, against approval of an itinerary for traveling students which included the bull fights at Tijuana, which he described as barbarous, cruel and inhumane.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to a special meeting May 29 to review the proposed 1973-74 budget.

Trustee Jan Murray was absent.

Mill Valley Groups Seek Art Center

The city council, art commission and parks and recreation commission agreed to explore two locations for a proposed county arts council, one at a former supermarket and the other in the city's small craft harbor area.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard said the council instructed city staff to write the owners of the old Purity market at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue about their plans for the structure, which might serve for the countywide facility.

Councilmen also asked the planning firm of Sedway, Cooke, which is preparing a new Mill Valley general plan, to explore putting a center for the visual and performing arts at the small craft harbor.

Mrs. Barnard also said those at the meeting learned the Sausalito Art Center is being evicted from its quarters at Bayside School in Sausalito July 15 by order of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

She said she will ask the city council Monday to intervene on behalf of the art center and ask HEW to allow the group to remain at the school another year.

The council also voted to urge Mill Valley's art-oriented groups — the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, the Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival and the Mill Valley Arts Guild (Genesis Gallery) — to keep in touch with the city art commission and bring to it any problems the groups may have before going to the council with them.

A suggestion by the art commission that the entrance foyer at city hall be painted blue, earlier vetoed by City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, will be discussed at the council's June 4 meeting, said Mrs. Barnard.

Kentucky Waters

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky has 18,000 miles of streams with running water, making it second only to Alaska in that category.

Library Friends Plan Annual Sale

Friends of the Larkspur Library will hold their annual used book and plant sale Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the library.

Sallyanne Wilson, spokesman for the group, said members have made many more cuttings of plants than in previous years, because so many Marin residents lost plants in winter frosts. Baked goods also will be on sale.

Guyana Trade

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (UPI) — The first trade union in Guyana and the British West Indies was formed in 1919 by Hubert Nathaniel Critchlow, a waterfront worker.

Petaluma Board Hears Water Plan

The Petaluma Planning Commission heard last night that water projects under way should supply enough water to Petaluma through 1984.

John Kunselman, an engineer with the Sonoma County Water Agency, told the commission that new wells on the Russian River combined with a new pumping station at Cotati should greatly increase Petaluma's water supply and accommodate a population of 55,000.

Kunselman said the new operation will allow Petaluma to draw 9.8 million gallons of water per day from the county system. Petaluma now draws four million gallons during peak summer months and has a capacity of two million gallons from city wells.

He said that unless the population rate increases dramatically the water supply should suffice through 1984.

In other business, the commission set a May 29 hearing on the request of William McCoy for apartment zoning on three parcels located between Hinman and Fair streets.

Robbery Charge Trial Date Set

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Trial was set yesterday to begin June 19 in Sonoma County Superior Court on armed robbery charges against Robert Leon Silva, 22, of Petaluma.

Silva was arrested April 23 on suspicion of robberies at the Buckhorn Bar in Petaluma and Grogg Shop in Santa Rosa.

Why object to vegetables and fruits being sprayed with poisonous materials if artificial fluorides are added to our drinking water?

If the MMWD fluoridates our water will they guarantee that, when delivered, the concentration will never be more than "1 part per million"?

How will they label it "Contains poison"? The Food & Drug Dept. is particular about having everything labeled correctly.

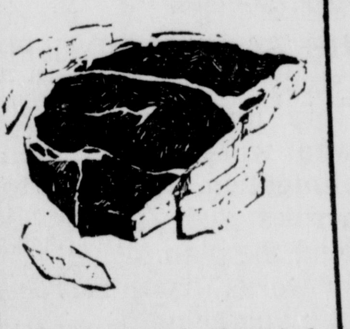
Plain Talk
. . . . ABOUT LUCKY-TRIM MEATS



The way meat is trimmed of excess fat and bone is more important than the price per pound. For example, the chine bone, gristle and excess fat in an ordinary Standing Rib Roast can add up to 14 per cent of its total weight... that's 14 percent of the roast you can't eat!

In plain figures, there can be as much as 70 cents worth of waste in a $5.00 roast . . . waste that Lucky demands be trimmed away BEFORE the cut of meat is weighed and wrapped. And with T-Bone Steaks, the excess fat and tough tail end of the steak can add 4 ounces of weight . . and a proportionate amount to the price you pay for it. But again . . . NOT at Lucky. These are carefully trimmed away before you buy your steak.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
40 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1973 EDITORIAL PAGE

An $80,000 Study Without Purpose

On April 3, the Marin County Board of Supervisors engaged a recently formed San Francisco consulting firm, Baxter, McDonald and Smart, to make a study of the cost of the proposed Marin Countywide Plan, at a price of about $80,000.

According to William R. Zion, a member of the firm (who may be remembered for his studies of Novato and Terra Linda incorporation and of Larkspur-Corte Madera merger), Baxter, McDonald and Smart does not expect to have even the first phase of its cost study completed before September.

However, the board of supervisors has scheduled its final hearing on the plan for Saturday, May 26 (the first day, incidentally, of the long Memorial Day week end). And, according to County Administrator John F. Barrows, the board probably will adopt the plan then or soon afterward.

OF WHAT purpose, then, is the Baxter, McDonald and Smart study for which $80,000 of our tax money is being spent?

The outside cost study was ordered by the supervisors after numerous questions had been raised about the cost and economic impact of the plan. Its transportation proposals alone pose costs that appear excessive for Marin taxpayers. So also do its subsidized housing features. The economic impact of forcing all population growth into a narrow corridor embracing little more than a tenth of the land area may be tremendous.

The plan has been assailed as financially impossible by the Marin Property Owners Association, the Irate Taxpayers of Marin, and the Peacock Gap Homeowners Association, among others. County planning commissioners themselves became so worried about lack of sufficient economic studies that they asked the supervisors to hire an outside firm.

Yet, according to Barrows, the supervisors probably will adopt the plan without waiting for completion of the study — or even for a preliminary report on it.

THE REASON, again according to the county administrator, is to meet a state "deadline" of June 30.

Asked what happens if the deadline is not met, Barrows replied, "Well, nothing, I guess."

The so-called deadline is, in fact, pretty meaningless. If a county plan is not adopted by that time, the county may not be eligible for some federal-state planning funds (assuming there are any such funds). Other than that, the deadline carries no penalty.

Most counties in California are simply ignoring it.

IF THE Baxter-McDDonald-Smart study shows the plan completely unfeasible to finance, what will the board then do? The intention, according to both Barrows and Zion, is to then amend the plan.

In other words, try to correct a bad job by patching it.

That is just as ridiculous as the timetable the supervisors are following.

Petris Outdoes Marin Plan, Proposes 100-Year Control

By RUS WALTON

If State Sen. Nicholas Petris, (D-Oakland), has his way, the cocoon of a totally controlled society will soon be here.

Petris has introduced Senate Bill 672. If enacted, it would squeeze California into a predetermined mold from here on out.

His bill would establish a State Planning and Development Commission and give it the authority and responsibility to develop a 100-year plan for the state. Some systems are content with 5-year plans, or at the most 10. Not Senator Petris. He wants a 100-year blueprint.

The commission would comprise 17 members: sociologists, psychologists, economic planners, resource management experts, and health and education schemers. Membership of the commission "shall conform" to the "racial, ethnic and sexual balance within the general population".

As set forth by Petris, the commission "may hold hearings and conduct any investigations" to carry out the powers vested in it. "In addition to the powers and duties expressly given the commission" it would have "such powers as may be necessary or convenient for the exercise of such powers".

HERE ARE SOME of the "elements' Senator Petris would have the commission deal with and develop plans for:

— the function of regional governments and the delineation and establishment of regional boundaries; — the function of county government with an eye toward its abolition in favor of municipal counties with the same powers as cities;

— the various problems of "the lack of individual economic sufficiency", including but not limited to the possibility of a statewide minimum income, ways to create employment for all who wish to work (including large-scale state and regional building programs) and a region-by-region system of planning, budgets and finances to achieve such goals.

Petris' commission would also attend to a state zoning plan to control urban sprawl and to protect open space land. It would also get into a state policy on distribution of population to "direct economic activity and employment" to predesignated areas.

IN ADDITION to telling you where you could live and what you could do, the commission would institute controls on virtually every aspect of the environment — from water quality to chemical pesticides to minimum and maximum housing standards. It would establish standards for maximum time periods for travel between "any residence and certain essential community facilities such as . . . grocery stores and health facilities" and state standards for health and education (including, but not limited to, minimum requirements for curricula").

The 100-year plan, which would be updated periodically, would also deal with problems caused by "damaging patterns of consumption".

In this regard the commission "shall develop" a state policy of optimum population; so many, no more. As part of that goal, the commission could establish incentives to limit population and family size (tidbits such as limiting tax exemptions to two children) and methods of curbing in-migration from other states.

To conserve energy, Senator Petris' bill suggests such goodies as a tax on the use of electricity, and building codes that would outlaw "unnecessary" air conditioning or artificial lighting. Land would be taxed "on the basis of optimum social, not economic, use."

UP UNTIL NOW I imagined all that was simply part of social psychologist B.F. Skinner's by-the-numbers notions or George Orwell's dark forebodings of a future barnyard world.

But here it is, in a senate bill. And 1984 is still 11 years away.

Or is it?

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

California's legislature is pondering a bill to license hitchhikers. It seems like only yesterday there was a bounty on 'em.

Considering the number of folks who travel by thumb, license sales could prove to be a big revenue producer.

Licensing might not reduce hitchhiking but it would assure us of a more affluent type of hitcher.

For identification purposes, hitching licenses should carry a picture of the licensee's thumb.

ERWIN D. CANHAM: Mishandling Brings Crisis

Needless in the sense that President Nixon could speedily have set matters right, assuming the very worst about what had been going on.

And not even now, nearly 10 months later, are the right things being done to clear the air and get the President out of the mess to the extent that may be humanly possible.

FOR EXAMPLE, there is no valid reason for the President and Elliot Richardson to continue opposing a totally independent investigator and prosecutor.

We must assume, as the President has repeatedly insisted, that the investigation must be independent in fact. Why not have it also in form? That would make a lot of difference in its credibility to public opinion. It would make a lot of difference in the caliber of persons who will take the job.

As long as the investigator is held responsible to Mr. Richardson, the attorney general-designate, and through him to the President, we will never have the appearance of independence. The great virtue of the Teapot Dome investigation, in the 1920s, was its complete freedom from White House control.

Possibly the President will be forced by Congress (perhaps before it will confirm Mr. Richardson) to accept an independent investigation. Why did he not make this concession freely and voluntarily, without having been forced, without leaving the impression that somehow he is trying to hide something?

THIS UNNECESSARY burden is typical of all the other unnecessary positions the President has taken regarding the Watergate incident over the last 10 months.

Assume that he did not know in advance of the stupid plan to bug the Watergate. The next morning, he tells us, he "immediately ordered an investigation." Can we possibly assume that he was not given information fairly soon about substantially what had been going on? Was it not advisable for him to clean up the business as swiftly as possible? Could he not at once have gone to the country, admitting the events he now calls "a very deplorable situation," and tell the nation he would immediately set things right?

We really need to know what he was told on the morning after the Watergate arrests, what he was told that necessitated John Mitchell's resignation a fortnight later. Surely he was told something — enough at least to suggest the need for clean-up. The country would have responded to frank and honest statements, even admissions of improper doings, letting the chips fall where they might.

Or, at many other subsequent points, the President could have taken the initiative to bring events to light, however damaging, as long as he was willing to do the cleaning up to which he now pledges himself and his office.

HAD SUCH ACTION been taken, we would not be in today's dreadful plight. The facts of Watergate would have not been brought out piecemeal by the media, some of them admitted and proved, some of them still conjectural and conflicting.

Why in the world did a high official, with the President standing by, make an alluring job offer to Judge Matt Byrne, presiding over the delicate Ellsberg case? We have still no explanation whatsoever of this incredible episode.

We are in a national crisis. It has not been conjured up by the media. It has been created by events, and the way they have been handled or mishandled.

It has all been so unnecessary.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Beginning Of New American Revolution

Hurrah for Daniel Ellsberg, Anthony Russo and the American people in general. If what they did was truly wrong, it is indeed terrible that they go unpunished, but with the government's shady wrongdoings throughout the case, they are the only ones to blame in that whole mess. As the old saying goes: Two wrongs do not make a right.

I believe that we are on the road to a new American Revolution, in the fact that we are finally taking just recourse against the wrongdoings of the government. But there are many people who still won't take five minutes of their time to voice openly their opinions and ask questions concerning our democratic process. Remember we send our representatives and senators to Washington to do a job, not to take a continuing vacation. A piece of paper and a pen haven't gone up in price that much yet.

I truly hope that we don't have to impeach the President, but if there are still unanswered and questionable doubts about the alleged knowledge of the President concerning any beforehand activity or cover-up of the facts in the Watergate case, it is our duty and obligation to ask the Congress to lawfully impeach the President in order that he may be made to answer these allegations and ease our minds. I would like to believe he had no prior knowledge of anything, but I really am confused to the point where I don't really know and I do want to know.

I can only hope that Mr. Nixon or the next President can turn this horrible thing around and make that office once again one of desite and credibility. Perhaps the affair is just what the doctor ordered. Maybe the shock of this deplorable incident will make people think a little about how we are being governed. . .

Objections To Hunting With Bow And Arrow

In reference to an article entitled Fish and Game by Al Giddings which was published in the May 11, edition of the Independent-Journal, a point or two of clarification is in order.

The action of the Humane Society of the United States, as referred to in the article, was not an anti-hunting bit of legislation. The action was taken in question of the Department of Interior's move to open federal wildlife refuges to hunting.

It was maintained that such refuges were established as "refuges" and not as a place to collect game for hunting purposes. It was conceded that when the deer herd needed to be reduced, it should be done . . .

The Humane Society of the United States contended that the use of bows and arrows, antique muzzle-loading guns, and buckshot-loaded guns on the three specific refuges did not conform with principles of sound wildlife management . . .

It is true that the H.S.U.S. failed in its legal approach. However the Department of the Interior, as a result of that action, has changed its procedures for planning deer hunts on federal lands . . .

The memorandum confirmed the H.S.U.S.'s contention that the bow and arrow is an inefficient weapon. From 10 typical refuge archery hunts, including Chincoteague and Eastern Neck, the number of animals wounded but not immediately taken, averaged 44.5 per cent.

Space does not permit a review of the entire action, but it seemed as though the reporting of May 11 might leave an erroneous impression in the mind of the reader . . .

The Pill May Bring Peace As China Curbs Population

WASHINGTON — The People's Republic of China is making significant headway in population control.

This may prove to be the deciding deterrent to a major Asian war.

Here is the reason.

PEKING CLAIMS large areas of Asian territory which, it contends, were extracted from it by the coercion of the czars —and it wants its lands back.

Moscow vehemently rejects this claim although when the Russian Communists came to power they said they would return this territory.

Today the Soviet Union keeps a million troops on its eastern borders.

The Soviet government sees China's growing population as a grave military threat. There is always the knife-edge danger that the Kremlin will make a preemptive strike before China adds nuclear parity to population superiority — presently three-to-one.

That is the heart of the peril of a calamitous war.

China is moving steadily to develop nuclear military power and the means to use it.

At the same time China is moving steadily to contain its massive population. It is doing it, not just talking about it.

It is possible that nothing would do so much to calm Soviet anxiety as solid evidence that the Chinese have set zero population growth as their goal and are moving in that direction.

THE CHINESE government is not undertaking its stern population control measure to relieve Soviet fears. That is a byproduct and may well prove to be a valuable byproduct. It is undertaking these measures primarily to free the womanpower of China to play a bigger role in expanding its economy and improving the standard of living.

The American who probably knows most about Chinese family planning is William H. Draper, the honorary (more active than honorary) chairman of the Population Crisis Committee, who has recently completed an on-site study of Chinese population control and how it is working.

He points out that with a present population of approximately 800 million, China is now getting its growth rate down to between 1.8 and 2 per cent a year.

Draper found that through a highly decentralized but effective motivation campaign, and using all modern forms of contraception in its family planning program, the Chinese government "is having spectacularly successful results in city and suburban areas and is making reasonable but steady progress in the country districts."

He concludes that the Chinese, though they still have a long way to go, are well into "the most successful and promising family planning program I have ever seen in a large developing country."

For a nation with the largest population in the world, and where one out of every four of the 3.3 billion people on this planet live, that is commendation from a knowledgeable source.

DRAPER MAKES THESE fascinating observations about what he saw:

"China has become a puritan society such as we have not known since the days of the Pilgrims.

"In three weeks spent in five cities and some countryside, I never saw a beggar or a prostitute. No one would even accept a proffered tip in hotels or anywhere else. Marriage, by our standards, is rather long delayed — to 25 to 28 years old.

"It is on its way toward the 1 per cent growth rate possibly in 15 to 20 years — a goal the whole world could well set as its target before the year 2000."

Obviously the Chinese are not doing any of this to please the Soviets. But the Soviets have reason to welcome it. The Pill may be doing more for peace in Asia than the atomic bomb.

Difference Between Watergate And Other Government Scandals

(Commentary by Harry Reasoner on ABC News)

If the Watergate case is the most serious scandal ever to hit the American White House, and a lot of people think it is, it is important to know why. Teapot Dome was pretty good as scandals go. Shady fellows close to Ulysses S. Grant got away with a lot that never got to court, and there have obviously been many people through the years who played fast and loose with the dangerous power that attaches to the American presidency and its staff. So what makes Watergate worse?

I suggest that this is the first docmented time when the felonies and the lies were perpetrated for reasons of ideology rather than greed. So far as we know so far, no individual was stealing money; these men, up to a high level, were breaking and entering and perjuring to achieve what they believed to be something good for the country — the destruction of the Democratic Party, maybe, or the establishment of some general kind of thought control. You can sort of understand President Harding's Interior Secretary, Albert Fall — he wanted money, and human greed, if not acceptable in high office, is, at least, not a novelty. But what apparently has motivated the men in this administration was a deep desire to eliminate the untidiness of the American system — the slovenly tolerance of a loud opposition and a free press, the permission that the Founding Fathers carelessly gave people to hold wrong opinions.

That is what is dangerous. E. Howard Hunt, pleading guilty to a felony, said "Anything I have done I believe was in the best interest of my country." This is scary.

Textbook Patch Jobs For California Schools

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

California schools are going to get another patchjob as a textbook.

This time, the book to be patched is "Human Sexuality," by James Leslie McCary, which was recommended by the State Textbook Commission for adoption as a seventh and eighth grade sex education text.

The book has been widely criticized for its lack of scholarship, and for its "slant" in semi-approving treatment of pornography and perversion, and in favor of abortion. There also were many objections to the explicitness of some of the language and pictures.

Despite the objections, the State Board of Education gave it tentative approval (with three dissents) in January, suggesting that some revisions should be made. Members of the State Department of Education staff subsequently deleted one chapter and revised some of the more explicit language.

AT ITS MAY meeting, the board delayed final adoption until June to allow further revision. Members Tony N. Sierra, Clay N. Mitchell, and Eugene N. Ragle voted to reject the volume.

Among objectors were three state legislators: Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, and Assemblymen Floyd B. Wakefield, R-Downey, and Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach.

Ernest Schulzke, Senator Harmer's assistant, told the board that attempting to make the book acceptable by revising it would be "utterly futile." But that's what the board decided to do.

PATCH JOBS on California texts are becoming frequent.

Just six months ago, the state board authorized a patch job on a series of science texts proposed for adoption. These were attacked as anti-religious since they advanced as fact the evolution of the human being and all other animal life from a single-celled creature. The state board's response to the criticisms was to have the wording changed here and there to make the texts read "most scientists believe," "it is widely accepted," etc., rather than flat statements of fact. But the board refused to permit mention that there are other theories of the creation of man.

Patch jobs on text books have not turned out too happily in the past. Six years ago, there was wide outcry against a junior high American history text proposed for adoption, "The land of the Free." Objections arose for various reasons: lack of inclusion of accomplishments of minority groups, political slant, and — what would seem most important — lack of perspective which left great gaps in the history the book was intended to teach.

The state board's response was to have revisions made to include more mention of minority groups. The text was adopted despite its other faults.

IT WOULD APPEAR from these "patch job" decisions that the California Board of Education has only one possible choice in adopting a textbook, that it has one book which it must take or else go without a new text.

In fact, however, many textbook publishers are pushing their wares for California adoption. The huge sale made possible by adoption for the public schools of the biggest state means a lot of money in the till of the publishing company and a lot of royalties for the author. (That, no doubt, is why publishers and authors are willing to make revisions on the state's demand.)

The State Textbook Commission has many choices for each new text. If the State Board of Education were to turn down the recommended one, there would be others available from which to make a second choice.

That would appear a more logical approach than having a patch job done to cover up some of the flaws in the first-choice book.

IT MIGHT BE interesting to know what texts were passed over for "Human Sexuality," and what science series which include mention of the theory of creation went begging.

Could it be that the choice of our state texts is not quite so free from political influence as the State Department of Education would have us believe?

Marin City Library Closing Set

The Marin City branch of the Marin County Library will be closed Thursday evening, Friday and Saturday during rearrangement of the library's book collection.

The main change will be to combine in one area all nonfiction titles from the adult, young adult and juvenile sections. The book collection also will be updated, especially in the areas of black history and literature, according to Alice Littleton, librarian.

The public is invited to view the changes from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday during an open house which will include a bake sale and book sale.

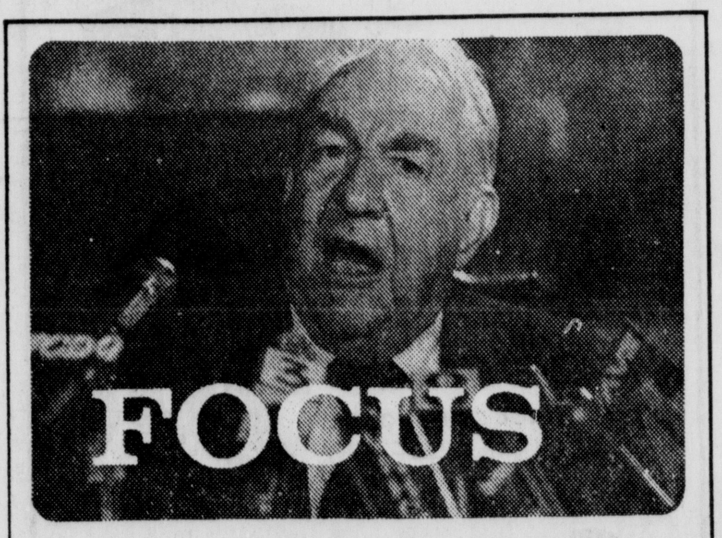
Proceeds from the bake sale will go to beginning a children's record collection. Profits from the book sale, sponsored by Marin County Friends of the Library, may be used to fund a youth film program, according to Margaret Galvin, regional librarian.

Former Inmate Sentenced For Visiting Illegally

A former San Quentin inmate convicted in a jury trial of illegally revisiting the prison has been handed a Marin County Jail sentence of 180 days with credit for the 101 days he spent in custody before and during his superior court trial.

Judge Charles Read Best imposed the sentence on Roy Ronald Cerra, 34, of San Francisco. Cerra was released from the prison in 1967 after serving time for forgery. A guard recognized him in March 1969 and arrested him for visiting a friend without the warden's permission.

Cerra subsequently disappeared, failing to keep court dates until he was rearrested early this year on a warrant.



Sam Ervin

North Carolina was among the last of the 13 colonies to ratify the Constitution because the document contained no guarantee of fundamental civil rights. Owing in large part to North Carolina's dissatisfaction, the first 10 amendments known as the Bill of Rights were added to the Constitution. It seems appropriate then, that North Carolina's Sam Ervin should hold the reputation as the Senate's authority on constitutional freedoms. He served in the state judiciary before going to Washington. Today Senator Ervin serves on the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee.

Change In Air For Middle East

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Is the United States, looking to its long-range interests in the oil-rich Middle East and taking a new, critical look at its policy toward Israel and the Arab world?

Two recent developments suggest the Nixon administration may be edging gingerly toward more even-handed, business-like approaches:

—For the first time in recent months a senior administration official has indicated that both Israel and the Arab states are to blame for "lost opportunities" for peace in the Middle East and both must do something to bring about a settlement. Implied is a criticism of the Israelis as well as the Arabs.

—President Nixon, in a foreign-aid bill now before Congress, has called for a cut in support assistance to Israel and at the same time proposed increased financial aid to Jordan and military-credit sales for Saudi Arabia. The amounts are small but the actions strike some observers as noteworthy.

In a little-noticed speech early this week, Joseph J. Sisco, Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, said that neither the Arab world nor Israel has defined its goals in terms of what it is willing to trade off. He said it is time, in effect, for the parties to sit down, set their options and priorities and decide what is most important.

The respected Middle East negotiator was addressing the American-Israeli Public Affairs Committee. Because the occasion was the celebration of Israel's 25th anniversary, his remarks took on added significance.

Sisco introduced no new elements and he reaffirmed Washington's continuing support for Israel's security. But he seemed to be telling the gathering that while Israel may be comfortable with the present situation in the Middle East the United States is not. That situation, he said, is "unstable and unsatisfactory."

Clearly making a conscious effort to be balanced, the high State Department official assailed certain "myths" on both sides which he said frustrated peace efforts. On the Israeli side, for instance, was the "myth" that the 1967 war was the result of a "calculated Arab plan to launch a war of destruction against Israel."

"In my view," said Sisco, "the most plausible explanation is that the six-day war resulted from improvised actions and reactions by each side."

These and other comments were not received with total enthusiasm by the gathering. Israelis were disturbed by them and Israel's new ambassador to the United States, Simcha Dinitz, reportedly discarded a prepared speech to respond to Sisco's allusions to "myths."

Administration officials say Sisco's speech does not represent any change whatever in U.S. policy although it may reflect a different style of approach. But within the lower levels of government there is a definite feeling that Washington must adopt more rigorous, practical criteria in its dealings with the Middle East.

Some officials believe the United States's overwhelming one-sided support of Israel is impairing its strategic and economic interests in the Arab world, whose wealth of oil is increasingly vital to the American economy.

Aid Israel is cited as one area where a more businesslike approach is in order.

This fiscal year the Israelis received about $500 million worth of military and economic aid, including $50 million in supporting-assistance grants. The administration asks that this sum be cut to $25 million in 1974 and that a $31-million grant in 1973 for the resettlement of Jewish emigrants — a grant put in by Congress — be dropped altogether.

Some U.S. officials believe that even the $25-million grant should be questioned on economic grounds. They note that Israel's foreign-exchange reserves have tripled in the last three years and now stand at $1.6 billion.

It is argued, also, that Isreal is a country with full employment and an economy growing annually at a healthy rate of about 8 per cent. It even has been able to reduce its income tax for the second year in a row.

Israel argues it has the highest level of foreign debt per capita of any nation in the world. But, Israel's ability to service the debt is excellent because of its growing exports.

Assessing the new aid request, U.S. officials say that purely domestic budgetary considerations dictated the decision to cut back Israel's grant. It is suggested that the acceleration of aid to Israel in the past few years is tapering off because Washington cannot go on indifinetely adding aid requirements.

County Illness Statistics Given

Streptococcus infections held its traditional position at the top of the list of communicable diseases reported in Marin last week with 79 cases, according to Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

Other diseases reported were gonorrhea, 20 cases; infectious hepatitis, three cases, and syphilis, one case.

Lodge Planning Anniversary Fete

Fairfax Lodge No. 556 of the Free and Accepted Masons will hold its 50th anniversary celebration at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Fairfax Masonic Temple at 1122 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur.

The occasion will mark to the day 50 years of club existence, according to Allan R. Jordan, the club Worshipful Master.

Dinner will be followed by an open meeting in the lodge room during which 29 past masters of the club will be introduced, he said.

Tokens commemorating the 50th anniversary celebration will be given to participants, he said.

Boys' Club Now Taking Signups

The Central Marin Boys' Club now is accepting signups for its summer recreation program. Further information may be obtained by contacting the club office at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael between 9 a.m. and noon Monday through Friday.

The club also announces that application for its provisional charter is on file with the Boys' Club of America. Boys who participated in last summer's camp program are now charter members, as will be the first 50 to sign up for this summer's program.

Nicasio 4-H Fair Set For Saturday

The Nicasio 4-H fair will be held Saturday at the Rancho Nicasio picnic grounds from 10 a.m. with a chicken barbecue starting at noon.

This is the 20th anniversary of the public fair, which includes a livestock show, a fashion show, project exhibits, a horse show, games for children and a plant and white elephant booth.

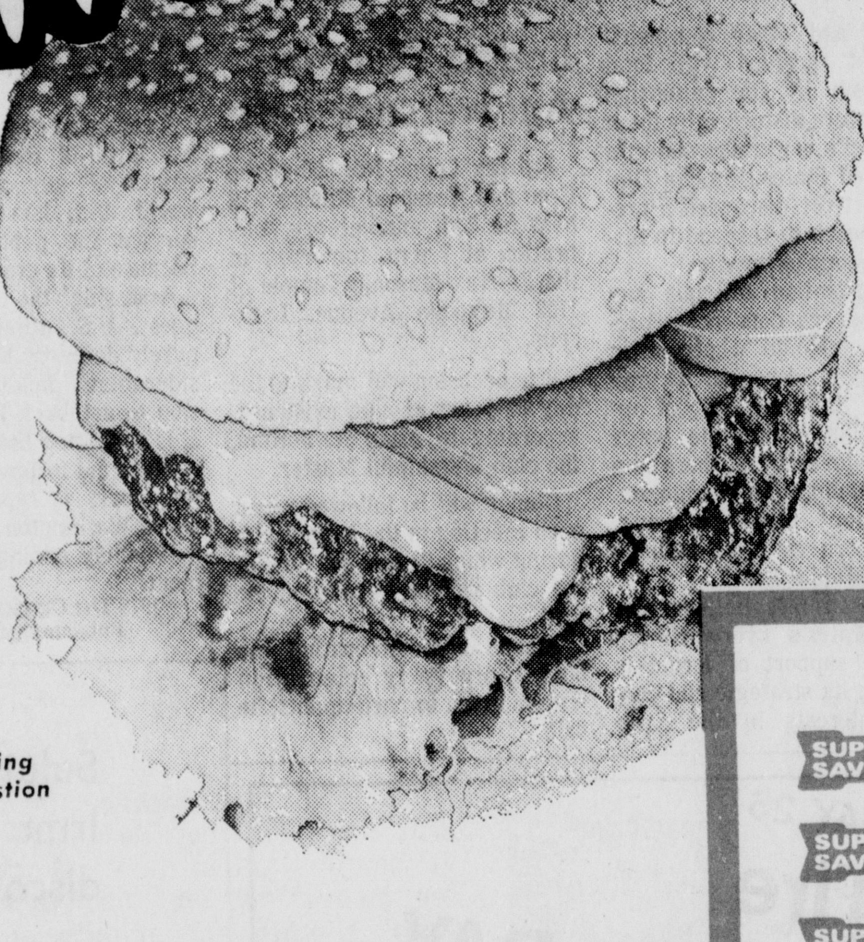
Introducing BEEF PLUS BRAND



Serving Suggestion

BEEF PLUS can be used just like ground beef . . . In 'burgers, meat loaf, spaghetti sauce . . . in every ground beef dish, plain or fancy. We invite you to try BEEF PLUS with our money-back guarantee of satisfaction.

BEEF PLUS can save you money in two ways . . . It costs less per pound than ground beef. It holds meat juices better in cooking and so makes plumper patties, hamburgers and Salisbury steaks.

BEEF PATTY MIX...A BLEND OF BEEF & TEXTURED VEGETABLE PROTEIN

BEEF PLUS is a wonderful new Patty Mix being offered in Safeway Meat Departments. It's a blend of about ¾ Safeway ground beef and about ¼ hydrated textured vegetable protein which is delicious, nutritious and lower in cost than ground beef. It is high in protein, closely matching ground beef in this important characteristic. Many people who have tried BEEF PLUS say that it tastes better than ground beef. The vegetable protein in BEEF PLUS absorbs and holds much of the meat flavor and many of the juices which are usually cooked out of ground beef.

Apartments For Rent (Unfurnished)—2720

Is your apartment or house standing vacant — and losing you money?

Have you ever thought about how much money you lose each day or week your apartment stands vacant? Here's a chart to point out the drain on your income:

YOU ARE LOSING

If Your Monthly Rental Price Is:	Every Day	Every Week	Every Two Weeks
$150	$ 5.00	$35.00	$70.00
175	5.83	40.81	81.62
200	6.67	46.69	93.38
225	7.50	52.50	105.00
250	8.33	58.31	116.62
275	9.16	64.12	128.24
300	10.00	70.00	140.00
325	10.83	75.81	151.62
350	11.66	81.62	163.24

(Based on a 30-day month)

Add to this the cost of maintaining a vacant apartment and you have an even larger loss. Doesn't it make sense to: FIRST, run an I-J Classified ad, & SECOND, to take a little time and run a BETTER ad — more benefits, more discription, less abbreviations (82% of readers don't know the meaning of AEK).

IT'S EASY — JUST

Reagan Assures Officials On Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today assured city officials his tax limitation plan would not affect the cities' major sources of state revenue or saddle cities with costs of new state-mandated programs.

In a speech prepared for the Mayors' and Councilmen's Legislative Institute, Reagan told the officials: "You would still get your share of the gasoline and sales tax revenues. You do not have to worry that the state might saddle you with some new mandated services.

"Under our plan," he said, "if the state did mandate new costs on local government, the state would have to pay for it."

Noting his plan clamps a lid on state government spending, Reagan said city government in California "has been operating for years with limited tax rates and it has not meant an end to city government, even though I know many cities have difficult financial problems."

The governor said the limitation poses "only one major difficulty" for state government:

"It requires that the legislature or the governor exercise the kind of fiscal restraint that the people expect you to demonstrate in managing the state's affairs. I do not regard that as a handicap. It is why we have a system of checks and balances."

Resumption Of Drilling Has Governor's Backing

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has thrown his support behind a proposal to resume offshore drilling for oil, including in the scenic Santa Barbara channel where a 1969 petroleum spill befouled resort beaches for miles.

"I think we are going to have to explore and find and utilize every energy source that is available in the world," the governor told a news conference yesterday in response to a question.

"And I still believe this can be done without suddenly throwing all environmental and aesthetic considerations out the window," Reagan said.

The governor was asked whether he agreed with state Controller Houston I. Flournoy, chairman of the State Lands Commission, who last week said he was prepared to vote to lift the state's four-year-old moratorium on oil drilling on state-owned tide and submerged lands.

Flournoy, who voted to establish the moratorium in the wake of the Santa Barbara eruption on a federal lease in the channel, said he favored the resumption of drilling provided adequate safety measures were assured.

"I think modern technology makes it possible to do these things now with very little disturbance of the terrain and the ecology," the governor said. "We are beginning to develop, I understand, the ability to do underwater drilling with no surface structure whatsoever and underwater pumping."

ALMANAC

By U.P. International

Today is Wednesday, May 16, the 136th day of 1973 with 229 to follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

American educator Elizabeth Peabody was born May 16, 1804.

On this day in history:

In a866, the U.S. Treasury Department was authorized to place in circulation the first five-cent piece, to be called "the hickel."

In 1929, the first Oscar Awards were announced. Janet Gaynor got the best actress award for her role in "Seventh Heaven." Emil Jennings was voted best actor for his role in "The Way of All Flesh."

In 1962, U.S. forces arrived in Thailand to bolster the Asian nation against a spread of fighting from neighboring Laos.

In 1972, Alabama Gov. George Wallace, critically wounded by a would-be assassin a day earlier, won the Democratic presidential primaries in Michigan and Maryland.

A thought for the day: Roman poet Virgil said, "Yield not to misfortunes but press forward boldly in their face."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Schistosomiasis Is Common In Underdeveloped Countries

Schistosomiasis is said to afflice 100 million people in Africa, Asia, and South America. If we can accept this estimate, it is the world's greatest unconquered parasitic disease. Schistosome worms enter the skin of the victim while he swims, washes clothes, works, or bathes in infested rivers. Once inside the body, the worms attack various organs, mainly the liver and urinary bladder. The outcome may be fatal.

THE BEST preventive measure is to kill the freshwater snails that harbor the parasites in their developing stage. No snails, no schistosomiasis. Eradication involves the addition of inorganic copper to the water. However, the ensuing water pollution also kills some fish and aquatic plants. These ecological side effects have led to considerable criticism and scientists now are trying to find a form of copper that specifically kills snails.

The adult parasites live in the blood vessels of the walls of the intestines and urinary bladder. They lay eggs that migrate into the intestine and urinary tract and the symptoms depend upon where the eggs accumulate. Liver involvement is common and many of the victims complain of abdominal tenderness, loss of appetite, headache, muscular pains, dysentery, and weight loss. The liver usually is enlarged.

SCHISTOSOME INVASION of the urinary bladder leads to infection of the urethra, bladder, the prostate in men, and the vagina in women. Urination is painful. All too often, the disease becomes chronic with ulcers and abscesses of the involved organ. Anemia, emaciation, and exhaustion follow. The irritation also predisposes many of the victims to early malignancy.

Antimony is the best treatment and various oral compounds are recommended for this purpose. Prevention is preferred and until something can be done with the snails, physicians must rely on the sanitary disposal of human feces and urine — difficult, at best, in the Orient and Moslem countries.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal.

STRESS DIABETES

Mrs. H. B. writes: After my husband died suddenly, I developed sugar in the blood. Could the shock of his passing do this?

REPLY

Diabetes may follow a period of stress but this usually is coincidental. Chances are you would have developed diabetes even if your husband had lived.

ARCH EVALUATION

M. T. writes: The shoe salesman said I have flexible arches. Is this another name for flat feet?

REPLY

No. There is more to the diagnosis of flat feet than a cursory glance at the size of flexibility of the arches when standing. It is important to know how the person walks and whether the body's weight is borne on the inner or outer aspect of the feet. Positioning of the tendon achilles also gives a clue, as well as studying the shoes to determine where they are worn down.

FLUOROSCOPE

D. G. writes: Will staying under the fluoroscope too long cause cancer?

REPLY

Not to the patient. The physician who works under the fluoroscope day after day is endangered unless he wears leaded gloves and apron.

SHINGLES

S. N. writes: Is shingles contagious?

REPLY

This is a moot question. Shingles is caused by a virus closely related to that causing chicken pox. Some adults have developed shingles when a child in the family had chicken pox and vice versa. On the other hand, we have no evidence that those who come into contact with a shingles victim will develop this condition. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on shingles.

Marin Correction System Revamped

Supervisors Split On New Department

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A sweeping reorganization of Marin's correctional system was approved yesterday by county supervisors who voted 3 to 2 for a new department of corrections to oversee custody and rehabilitation of prisoners. (Other supervisors stories, page 8.)

The far-reaching decision moves Marin to the forefront of a struggle between those favoring and those opposing reform of the state's correctional system by creating small locally controlled facilities.

Under the "correctional master plan" endorsed yesterday, Marin will become one of the first California counties to establish a system that could lead eventually to local confinement and treatment of all prisoners — including those now sent to state prison.

The move, opposed by Supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., sets Jan. 1 for creation of the new department of corrections.

The new department will take over the present jailing functions of the county sheriff and the probation-rehabilitation functions of the probation department.

Between now and January, an 11-member advisory committee will be appointed to work out details of the reorganization with county officials.

The commission, to be made up of both private citizens and professionals in the criminal-justice field, will help chart the department's future course, including confinement and rehabilitation of felons.

Who will head the new department was left hanging. Nor was it clear whether the corrections department will fall under the Health and Human Services superagency, created last week to consolidate health, welfare and probation activities.

A budget and staff will be proposed in June by County Administrator John F. Barrows during budget hearings.

Strongest support came from Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini who moved adoption of the proposal submitted in March by the San Quentin Task Force.

"The time is now to take this

Council Is Under Fire For Lease

An attorney told the Sausalito City Council last night that a city lease of certain underwater streets granted to a private company in March was illegal, and should be renegotiated. (Another city council story, page 7.)

Attorney Leonard F. Rappa told the council that he and some other unnamed Sausalito residents are considering a class action suit against the lease to Jens Investment Corporation.

The 50-year lease was an out-of-court settlement of a suit in which the firm had claimed it owned parts of Humboldt Street, Railroad Avenue and Donahue Street. In return, the firm acknowledged city ownership of the streets.

Rappa claimed that the lease failed to note terms of a state agreement which originally granted the streets to the city. The grant says that tideland streets can be used only for recreational purposes, as docks or for an airport.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan noted that state law "very strictly limited" development on the streets. He said he thought that the lease implied that nothing could be built there which violated state law.

Councilman Evert H. Heynneman said he wished that Jordan had included the limitations in the lease.

Proposal Amazes Planning Board

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael Planning Commission, reeling in amazement at news of a massive, $40-million development proposed for the northeastern tip of the city, last night cast a cold eye on the project.

One commissioner declared he will refuse to listen to plans by Smith, Gonzalez and Associates Corp. for 781 dwelling units and 26.6 acres of commercial development on a sprawling 189-acre parcel when the project comes up for a use permit under the city's building moratorium at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Commissioners also criticized city planning staff for not alerting them of the development plans and moved to "open up the lines of communication" between the commission and the San Rafael Planning Department.

Comments of commissioners came at an unusual, free-wheeling "study session" in city hall which no member of the planning staff attended, a move aimed at allowing commissioners to speak without inhibitions.

Although the commission last week adjourned to last night primarily to discuss commission functions and staff performance, attention initially focused on news of a proposal to develop Smith Ranch lands in northeastern San Rafael.

Commissioners said the first they had heard of the plan was a report appearing in yesterday's Independent-Journal, although the development firm had requested a use permit hearing several weeks ago.

Commissioner Albert J. Boro, citing what he called a lack of staff notice to the commission, said he read about the project in the press and called the situation "embarrassing".

Other commissioners backed Boro's view and said it is "ridiculous" to consider "a project that size when we have a general plan under review."

Commissioner Joseph J. Garbarino said he will "refuse to listen" to the plan when it is unveiled before the commission next Tuesday. "I'm going to tell him to send it back to the homeowners" in the area for review, Garbarino declared.

"There is no way we can consider a project that big at this time," said colleague Jorgen V. Lunding.

The commission unanimously agreed to ask City Atty. Fred C. Robbins to attend the Tuesday session, predicting that a "number of legal questions" will arise at the meeting.

The commission also said it will direct planning staff to prepare a "summary log" of significant development proposals pending before the city but not yet heard by the commission. Garbarino said that the "people in the streets" often know about a proposal before the commission does.

The commission, saying that it has failed to give proper direction to planning staff, also took a number of other actions on coordinating efforts of city leaders with city employees.

The commission asked that staff prepare an "organizational chart" showing the functions and duties of planning staff members and said it would like to take a look at the planning department budget, as well as keep closer tabs on the activi-

SEC Chairman Sends Resignation To Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — G. Bradford Cook resigned today as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) after a grand jury accused him of allowing himself to be influenced in a sensitive case by Republican fund-raiser Maurice H. Stans.

In a letter to President Nixon, Cook said he was resigning "in light of the unfortunate circumstances now prevailing."

Cook, at 36 the youngest man ever to head the SEC, was accused last week of yielding to influence in a case against international financier Robert L. Vesco.

The charge came from a federal grand jury in New York which indicted former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and Stans, former commerce secretary and chairman of the Finance Committee to re-elect the President. Cook was not indicted.

Cook was alleged to have deleted from an SEC complaint against financier Vesco the fact that Vesco had made a $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Vesco was accused by the SEC of illegal manipulation of a

Resigns position

$224 million suit against him. Talking to reporters last weekend Cook acknowledged that he did delete what he called "the infamous paragraph." He underwent intensive questioning about the matter before Senate investigators Monday.

In his brief letter to Nixon, Cook said:

"I have reached this most difficult decision because of my complete respect for the Securities and Exchange Commission and its dedicated staff. I retain my complete confidence in my country, its institutions and myself."

Cook, while admitting he deleted reference to the Vesco contribution, denied altering the suit at Stans' behest. He said reference to Vesco and the GOP was not necessary in the document.

The Vesco money was later refunded to him after allegations appeared that Vesco had made the contribution in order to get the administration not to pursue the SEC suit.

Reagan Appoints Consumer Chief

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan Tuesday named trobert L. Harvey as chief of the Division of Consumer Services in the state Department of Consumer Affairs. Harvey, staff counsel for the division since 1971, will receive an annual salary of $22,584. The 36-year-old Sacramento resident succeeds Raymond M. Reid Jr., who resigned to become executive secretary to the state Board of Medical Examiners.

Novato School Aid Sought

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Special legislation to bail the Novato School District out of a $1,257,000 deficit posed by the cutback at Hamilton Air Force Base has been drafted by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The legislation would appropriate $628,000 in state funds to cover half the deficit and allow the district to hike its tax limit for one year without an election to raise the other half.

The deficit has been threatened because the cutback at the base was announced after the March 15 deadline to fire teachers who will be surplus once students from the base have been transferred with their parents to other military installations.

(Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley estimated last night that if 10 per cent of the base students still are enrolled next fall, the district will have a surplus of 33 teachers. Twenty would be in elementary schools, four in junior high and nine in senior high school.)

Bagley's legislation would cut the drop in average daily attendance — the figure on which district financial limits are based — from a predicted 13 per cent to 2.5 per cent. The district's financial limit would be $8,246,000 if the anticipated 13 per cent cut proves true, but it needs $9,503,000 because of the surplus teachers, according to Bagley's office.

(Supt. James G. Bunker, who suggested the legislation, told district trustees last night "it will go a long, long way" toward meeting the district's financial need. The district also faces the loss of federal funds granted schools serving federal installations.)

Bagley, citing the tough politics in the Democratic-controlled Assembly, said there are three tactics to get the Novato measure moving through the Legislature. Probably the most successful would be to stick it in the budget, a move he will seek through Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco. Brown, as chairman of the ways and means committee, is the prime mover of the budget in the Assembly.

Bagley acknowledged objections to this approach already have been raised by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, who said it would be irregular to make substantive law through the budget. Bagley, however, said he intends to pursue the possibility with Brown and to try to fend off similar objections expected from Legislative Counsel George H. Murphy.

A second approach would be to move a bill in the Assembly, but this was "practically impossible" becuase the Democrats are killing all tax bills except their own.

The third way would be to have the measure introduced in the Senate by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, and then have it tacked onto whatever final overall tax compromise bill is worked out in an expected two-house conference committee.

Bagley reported the legislation already had the support of the Department of Finance, so the "only" hurdle is the politics of the Legislature.

Goldwater Urges Action By Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said today that Americans are losing confidence in their government because of the burgeoning Watergate scandal and urged President Nixon to reassert himself as the nation's leader.

Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential candidate and one of his party's foremost conservatives, made the comments as the White House disclosed that Nixon personally authorized FBI wiretaps on telephones of more than a dozen administration officials four years ago in an effort to track down news leaks.

On Capitol Hill, former CIA Director Richard Helms was called to testify before a Senate subcommittee heard the agency's deputy director swear earlier this week that three former White House aides tried to pressure the Central Intelligence Agency into blocking an investigation into the Watergate bugging.

In his statement about eroding public confidence in the government, Goldwater said:

"It is not easy for me to say this about my country or my President, but I think the time has come when someone must say to both of them, let's get going."

"We are witnessing the loss of confidence in America's ability to govern," he said, alluding to the soaring prices of gold on world money markets as one of several examples.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., head of the special committee that will open public hearings on the Watergate scandal tomorrow morning, predicted that Nixon would have trouble the rest of his term in office because of Watergate.

"The President will be handicapped even if he is not personally involved. It will be a very serious handicap," Ervin said in Brunswick, Maine.

On the eve of the Senate hearings, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica granted a request by the committee for limited immunity for convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy for testimony. But this was no guarantee Liddy would testify because he defied a previous similar order to testify before the Watergate grand jury.

The White House spokesman who disclosed Nixon's role in the 1969 wiretapping of more than a dozen members of his National Security Council Staff defended the action on grounds of "national security."

The wiretaps apparently were installed following a published report about B52 bombers attacking targets inside Cambodia in 1969 and other reports relating to U.S.-Soviet talks on limiting strategic arms. The White House had been described at the time as concerned about leaks to newsmen of confidential material on both subjects.

"It was a national security matter," a White House spokesman said today of Presidential approval of the wiretaps, first reported by The New York Times.

"The procedure was approved by the President and authorized in individual cases by the attorney general in coordination with the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation," the spokesman said.

The taps were said to have been legal at the time. The Supreme Court last year unanimously rejected administration claims to authority to conduct electronic surveillance without a court order in "domestic subversion" cases, but left open the question of whether the executive branch has such power in national security cases involving "foreign subversion."

Acting FBI Director William D. Ruckelshaus said Monday that records found in a safe in the office of former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman indicated taps had been placed on the telephones of 17 individuals, including four reporters.

The wiretaps first came to light last week at the Pentagon Papers trial in Los Angeles. It was disclosed that FBI agents had monitored a conversation by Daniel Ellsberg when he

At Least 23 Die In Bus-Train Crash

SEOUL (UPI) — A bus carrying 85 persons, most of them students, collided with a commuter train early today about 150 miles northeast of Seoul. First reports said at least 23 persons died.

Police said 62 other persons were injured, 25 of them seriously, when the bus struck the train at a railroad crossing. They said a heavy fog in the area may have reduced visibility.

Search For Prosecutor Continues In Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General-designate Elliot L. Richardson today carried on "mutual explorations" with the three remaining top candidates in his search for a special Watergate prosecutor.

WILLIAM H. ERICKSON
Watergate investigator?

As Richardson continued his search for the right man, six Democratic members of the Senate Judiciary Committee met to discuss their concern over his intention to keep "ultimate authority" over the prosecutor.

Some said they could not vote to confirm Richardson unless he granted the prosecutor "complete independence."

Richardson was conferring by phone with Warren M. Christopher of San Francisco, deputy attorney general in the Johnson Administration; Colorado Supreme Court Jusitce William H. Erickson, and David W. Peck, retired New York appellate justice.

"It wouldn't be helpful to keep a score board on who's turning it down," Richardson told reporters late yesterday, saying he would not reveal the order of his choices.

U.S. District Court Judge Harold Tyler Jr. of New York, assistant attorney general in the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, turned down the job yesterday, saying it was not appropriate for a sitting judge to take such a post.

Richardson said that persons may wish not to be considered because of such things as personal problems, a wife's health, finances, or they belong to a law firm that had a client with a connection to the Watergate case. He said for these reasons he wanted to confer with all three of them before announcing which one he was selecting.

How much authority Richardson will grant to the prosecutor remained unresolved in his hearing before the Senate Judiciary committee. After four days of hearings, the committee was in recess today, with no date set for reconvening.

Reasons For Soaring Gold Prices Offered

LONDON (UPI) — Gold soared and the dollar plunged yesterday and there were almost as many experts explaining why as there were experts.

Watergate. Rumbles that the United States must again devalue its dollar. Trade deficits. Oil delivery problems. Fighting in Lebanon.

Experts cited them all—and more—to explain a dizzy day that carried gold to price levels thought impossible 30 days ago and gave the dollar a beating.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said in Paris that all this did not mean another devaluation of the dollar.

"We have no policy to devalue the dollar," he told newsmen. "I do not see any prospect of a devaluation of the U.S. dollar."

"I believe the present exchange rate for the dollar is appropriate," Stein said later at a meeting of international businessmen and bankers. "The system is essentially in balance."

But the balance tilted yesterday, toward gold and away from the dollar. The gold price soared to $110 an ounce in London, up nearly 33 per cent in seven working days. At one point on the Paris market, the metal touched $128.50 an ounce.

"The Watergate affair is causing distrust that can have economic as well as political consequences," a Belgian banking official said.

"There may be political problems behind the newest dollar weakness," said a spokesman for an American bank in West Germany. But he cited other possible factors as well.

Asked if the scandals surrounding Watergate caused the market gyrations, Stein replied: "If you are asking if that is a reasonable deduction to draw, I would say no."

London experts said they thought the markets simply had gone overboard.

"This market is totally irrational and self-feeding," said Bruce Smith, the foreign exchange manager of a major British bank.

"A vicious circle is operating," said William Keegan of the London Financial Times. "The weakness of the dollar is affecting the gold price and the gold price is affecting the currency markets."

Expert after expert cited floods of "hot" money from the oil-rich Middle East countries pouring into the markets, partly in response to Lebanon's precarious situation over the last three weeks.

But bankers in Beirut, bankers to the Middle East, said the flight of money out of the area was not necessarily permanent.

"It often leaves here," one said of the millions of dollars of floating money. "But it always comes back."

"I find the price of gold," Stein said, "much less interesting than the price of hamburger."

Gasoline Rationing Practiced In Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The service station at Fort Sam Houston is rationing gasoline, allowing no more than five gallons to four-cylinder cars and 10 gallons to larger automobiles.

Doyle Morgan, general manager of the Army's Post Exchange Service, said yesterday available fuel is being divided among all the service installations so that no one facility will be without gasoline.

Kissinger Heads For Paris Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger headed for Paris today for negotiations with his North Vietnamese counterpart, Le Duc Tho, aimed at keeping the shaky Vietnam cease-fire agreement from collapsing.

The talks between the two men who worked out the agreement which resulted in return of more than 600 American war prisoners and withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam are scheduled to start Thursday, but already are clouded in uncertainty.

Tho indicated on his arrival in Paris that he would delay the talks with Kissinger —or break them off if they were in progress —if U.S. bombers were in action in Cambodia.

Hanoi claims the bombing is a violation of the cease-fire. The United States and Saigon have accused Hanoi of numerous violations in South Vietnam and other parts of Southeast Asia.

The United States requested the talks in hopes an agreement can be reached for strict compliance of the cease-fire accord. They follow high-level meetings in Paris last month to review the agreements and the charges of violations.

Tho arrived Monday and promptly delivered a warning to Washington, saying that the talks would not begin or continue, if started, if the United States carried out more of what he called U.S. bombing attacks on Communist-controlled areas of South Vietnam near the border with Cambodia.

The United States denied the bombing charges.

Kissinger also is meeting the North Vietnamese only days after committees in both the Senate and the House of Representatives voted against financing more U.S. military involvement in Indochina.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Defense Profits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 100 firms were allowed to retain profits ranging up to 1,902.7 per cent on defense contracts even though they refunded large amounts to the government, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said yesterday.

The National Union Electric Corp., which was directed to give back $8.9 million to the government on its defense contracts in 1967, 1968 and 1969, was nonetheless allowed, even after substracting the refunds, to earn profits of 74, 72 and 91 per cent as a return on net worth for each of those years, Proxmire said.

The largest return on net worth, 1,902.7 per cent, was earned by Eisen Brothers Inc., a manufacturer of ammunition components, which earned a profit of $704,000 even after it refunded $150,000.

Rogers In Peru

LIMA (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers wound up a 22-hour visit to Venezula late yesterday and flew into Lima at the start of possibly the touchiest stop on his 17-day, eight-nation tour of Latin America.

In Peru, he faced perhaps the least friendly government on his itinerary since it has several unresolved issues with the United States, ranging from a recent expropriation of the fishmeal industry to nationalization of an oil company.

But there were no incidents as Rogers arrived.

Arms Discord

VIENNA (UPI) — Western officials said today that negotiations with the Warsaw Pact on reductions of arms and troops in Central Europe has caused some discord among NATO allies.

"It was the first time we had to agree on a common negotiating policy with an adversary and carry it through," one official said. "It was a new experience and therefore caused a certain amount of static within the alliance."

It was the first official confirmation of disagreement among the 12 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) taking part in preliminary talks on reductions of force in Central Europe. NATO spokesmen had denied reports of dissension earlier.

Saigon Blast

SAIGON (UPI) — An explosion tore through a crowd watching an outdoor movie last night, killing 14 persons and wounding 40 others, in an attack Saigon blamed on Communist terrorists.

A government spokesman put the toll at 12 civilians and two militiamen dead with 35 civilians and five militiamen wounded.

The explosion was described as the most serious of 89 Communist cease-fire violations reported by the government for the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. today.

Ammo Seized

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops raided a Belfast Protestant area early today and seized what they said was the biggest ammunition haul in the nearly four-year-old Northern Ireland crisis, the army said.

An army spokesman said the dawn raid on homes on Wilton Street in the Shankill area netted 13,200 rounds of ammunition, 13 firearms and a grenade.

Minimum Pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Labor Committee has approved raising the $1.60 an hour minimum wage to $2.20 in one year and called for a tax credit for persons who employ household domestics.

The Democratic-controlled panel approved the measure Monday on a 23-13 vote after rejecting, by a 20-12 party line vote, a Republican substitute offered by Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Ill., that would raise the minimum to $2.10 over two years.

New Government

PHNOM PEHN (UPI) — Cambodia's new government of "independence, neutrality and peace" took office today with a pledge to strengthen the fight against the Communists.

Military sources said American planes destroyed a large Communist motor vessel and a big sampan in Mekong River air strikes while other U.S. fighter-bombers struck Communist ground units threatening the southern town of Kampot.

Hem Ketsana, the new Interior and Religious Affairs Minister, charged in a speech that Communist forces in Cambodia had destroyed 966 pagodas and killed at least 105 Buddhist monks and wounded 133.

Symphony Fans Hear Europe Tour Opening

PARIS (UPI) — The San Francisco Symphony's triumphant European tour opening was heard by its fans at home.

The Symphony, under the baton of maestro Seiji Ozawa gave a special gala concert at the Champs-Elysees Theater last night before an enthusiastic crowd. Pianist Andre Watts was the featured soloist.

The crowd brought back Watts for one encore and the orchestra for three encores in a concert which did not end until 25 minutes later than scheduled.

The whole concert was broadcast via satellite.

Operation Of Amtrak Trains Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer group said today that two years of Amtrak operation of the nation's passenger trains have been a disappointment and that some of the railroads that operate Amtrak trains are deliberately trying to kill passenger service.

Anthony Haswell, chairman of the National Association of Railroad Passengers, testified before the Senate sub-committee on surface transportation which today began hearings on Amtrak's future.

"Unfortunately ... we believe that Amtrak has not come to grips with fundamental problems which confront it, with the result most of its services are deficient in quality and excessive in operating costs," Haswell said.

He said Amtrak has done some good things —such as more frequent Metroliner service between New York and Washington, reduced fares between New York and Boston, rental automobiles, and improved ticketing and reservations.

But he said Amtrak has failed to improve its routes, has operated trains slower than when it took over service May 1, 1971, has a poor on-time record, still has not improved the basic quality of service in some areas and has excessive operating costs.

Haswell said Amtrak president Roger Lewis had no background or expertise in the railroad industry and that top Amtrak officials have not enthusiastically attempted to sell the passenger train.

He said some railroads have done well in operating Amtrak trains, but "in general the railroads are not satisfied with being relieved of the financial obligations of passenger service but want the trains physically removed from the tracks."

Haswell said the Southern Pacific is by far the worst operator of Amtrak trains, although it is one of the nation's wealthiest railroads.

He recommended that railroad presidents be removed from the Amtrak board and that a long-vacant consumer board post be filled.

Climbers Conquer Himalayan Peak

KATMANDU Nepal (UPI) — Two members of the 16- member American expedition climbed 26,795-foot Himalayan mystery peak of Dhaulagiri-1 on Saturday, the Nepalese Foreign Office announced today.

The message said Louis Reichardt, 30, and John Roskelly, 24, reached the summit at 1 p.m. (3:30 a.m. EDT) on May 12 along with a Sherpa guide.

Election Reform Group Is Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress today to create a 17- member, bipartisan commission to recommend sweeping changes in the nation's election laws.

He suggested as subjects for considerations matters including whether the presidential period in office should be one six-year term, campaign financing, and "the whole range of improper campaign practices."

The President said election reform should be achieved across the board and should not be limited to efforts to plug ethical holes which permitted the Watergate scandal.

"There will be a temptation to attempt reforms piecemeal; this, I believe, would be a, mistake," he said. "The reforms needed are sweeping rather than scattered, and each should be considered in relation to the others. We should think in terms of nothing less than a complete reexamination of our system of elections and campaign practices."

The President said the commission should consider "whether the Constitution should be amended to change the length of terms of office of members of the House, of the Senate or of the President."

Nixon said he personally advocates doubling the term in office of House members from two to four years. He noted some political scientists have suggested a single six-year term for the President. He did not specifically support that but voluntarily raised the matter in a meeting with congressmen Tuesday.

The President said he chose the commission route instead of proposing election reforms himself because he said the reform plan should "come not from one political party, not from one administration, not from one Congress, but from a bipartisan group of recognized experts."

Nixon submitted a draft resolution to Congress which would establish the 17-member commission including Democratic and Republican national chairman, two Democrats and two Republicans each from the Senate and House, and seven members appointed by the President —not more than four from the same political party.

The President outlined his plan in a two-page message to Congress and in a five-minute speech recorded for radio broadcast. Although he did not use the word Watergate in the text of either message, there was no question that the scandal had prompted the commission plan.

In his radio broadcast, Nixon said the commission "will be authorized to examine the cost and financing of campaigns, and look into the various ways in which the cost can be kept down and improper influence or influence-seeking through large campaign contributions can be ended."

"Other areas for inquiry would include the elimination from our election campaigns of violence and the threat of violence; of intimidation; of frauds in the casting and counting of ballots; of the throwing about of misleading or malicious charges; of sabotage and espionage and other infringements on the right of privacy; and of the whole range of improper campaign practices," he said.

The President outlined his plan yesterday.

Hearing Set For Man Facing Other Trials

A 23-year-old San Anselmo man who already faces two Marin Superior Court trials on earlier felony charges, has pleaded innocent to a charge that he burglarized a San Rafael laundry Sunday.

Municipal Court Judge Gary W. Thomas ordered Harris to return May 22 for a preliminary hearing on the charge that he broke into the Lafargue Laundry on Third Street.

Harris was on bail at the time he was arrested by San Rafael police who said they saw him leaving the firm.

Judge Thomas refused to release Harris on his own recognizance in his latest arrest. He remains jailed in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Harris has been ordered to stand trial in superior court the week of July 16 on a charge that he attempted to cash a check belonging to Robert Finn of San Rafael on March 19. He also has a trial the week of July 23 on a burglary charge arising from an attempt April 6 to break into a glass company office on Lincoln Avenue in San Rafael.

Brazilians call a bounced check a "cheque frio" cold check.

British Nuclear Test Is Denied

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath denied Tuesday that Britain plans at least one new nuclear test explosion.

Asked in Parliament about a British press report that such a test is planned, Heath said, "There is no grain of truth in the story."

But when he added, "We have no immediate plans for testing the warheads," Labor opposition members of Parliament shouted: "Immediate, what do you mean immediate?"

Heath snapped back, "If you cannot understand 'immediate,' you had better stop taking part..."

Airlines Allowed Security Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Public Utilities Commission has allowed two more airlines to add a 34-cent cost factor to tickets to partially offset the expense of increased security expenditures.

Three airlines already have received authority from the Civil Aeronautics Board to impose the surcharge, but Tuesday's PUC action added Pacific Southwest Airlines and Air California to the list.

The airlines were ordered to keep a record of passengers and an accounting of the new security revenue.

REVAMP

important step," he said, adding that legislation is pending in Sacramento to offset costs to the county.

The task force, headed by former Municipal Court Judge Hadden W. Roth, was appointed in 1971 by county supervisors to review state studies on prisoner rehabilitation and possible closing of San Quentin Prison.

Roth, now practicing law in San Rafael, told the board yesterday his committee's plan places strong emphasis on rehabilitation of prisoners to reduce crime and save tax dollars.

He told doubters in the audience that studies across the United States showed educational, vocational and social rehabilitation reduces recidivism and costs less than simply incarcerating prisoners. "I don't know if there will be immediate savings but down the road a little ways, there will," Roth added.

The task force's voluminous report urges the county to encourage state legislation to phase out the state prison system and to create a new correctional system with local control.

The state's primary function should be "to help establish, fund and advise local corrections, not directly administer corrections," the report says.

Local "correctional centers" could be established on a county or regional basis, depending on population, and should have jurisdiction "to coordinate and administer all adult and juvenile offender programs," it adds.

Within the new system, emphasis should be placed on "nonconfinement of the offender with confinement as a last resort."

Among those speaking in support of the proposal was Gary Garfinkel, a consultant to the state Senate's select committee on penal institutions.

Garfinkel told the board local correctional systems should be operated by correctional personnel and not law enforcement officers as in Marin, where sheriff's deputies run the jail and are scheduled to operate the soon-to-open honor farm.

"It's not a matter of being pro-law enforcement or anti-law enforcement," he said. "If we are to take adult corrections seriously, we must take it away from the sheriff" whose job is law enforcement and not corrections.

Chief Probation Officer John W. Brewer, who did not speak out strongly in favor of or opposition to the proposal, said his department could take over custodial care of inmates.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos said he does not oppose giving up his jailing responsibilities but questions the need for a new department and claims of cost saving and crime reduction.

Contrary to claims of the state phasing out its state prison system, the sheriff said, recent information shows the state is planning to enlarge that system.

"If the county goes into this correctional system, it will be doing at local expense what the state should be doing," Mountanos said, adding financial relief from the Legislature is not assured.

"That it will cost less and reduce crime is not a true statement," he continued, suggesting Marin wait until some other county had tested local corrections.

Bella Aaron, head of the county's criminal justice planning agency, said the department is unnecessary.

Existing departments with the aid of state grants she is acquiring can do what the new department proposes, she said.

Mrs. Aaron, who has brought more than $1 million in state criminal-justice grants into the county, said a reorganization might mean a cutoff of those grants.

For instance, some $50,000 slated for rehabilitative programs at the honor farm could be cut off if the sheriff is replaced as head of the facility, she said.

Others speaking against the proposal included Betty Machado of Novato, who protested that the Novato area had not been represented on the task force and Francisco attorney Christopher D. Burdick of Inverness, counsel for several police officers' associations, who said his members think the proposal is "kooky."

Roumiguiere, in voting against the proposal, said he was concerned with charges from the sheriff and Mrs. Aaron that they had not been consulted when the task force drafted the proposal.

He joined colleague Arrigoni in urging a decision be delayed until the sheriff's honor farm, due to open in June, can be tested to determine if the probation department adequately handle expanded rehabilitative programs.

Roumiguiere also suggested a committee of judges, law enforcement officials and probation officers to make its own study of county correctional needs.

Supervisor Michael Wornum and Arnold M. Baptiste sided with Giacomini, however, saying it is important to create the department now because correctional reform is overdue.

Among other things, he said, it also would free the sheriff to concentrate on law enforcement. They agreed that deputies running the jail would not be fired but would be absorbed through attrition.

Series Of Concerts Finale Set

"A Grand, Grand Overture" for three vacuum cleaners, one floor polisher and orchestra will highlight the final concert in the Marin Symphony Association Children's Concert Series at 11:45 a.m. Saturday in Meade Theater at Tamalpais High School.

The program, to be performed outdoors by members of the Orchestra Piccola and Marin Youth Orchestra, will trace the development of orchestral music from a selection of medieval music by Gabrieli and a Haydn work from the classical period to the contemporary overture by Malcolm Arnold.

The vacuum cleaners and floor polisher "make a remarkable contribution to orchestral texture" in the work written in 1956, according to the symphony association.

Closing the concert will be original compositions by young Marin composers orchestrated by Hugo Rinaldi, conductor of the Marin Youth Orchestra and Orchestra Piccola. Prizes will be awarded to winning composers.

BUGGING

The testimony linking White House aides to a Watergate cover-up came from the CIA's deputy director, Vernon Walters.

Richard Helms, CIA director at the time the White House aides were said to have sought the agency's help last summer, was called to testify today before a Senate appropriations subcommittee investigating the matter.

Walters said the attempts to use the CIA to halt the FBI probe into financing of the Watergate bugging by funds sent through Mexico were made by Nixon's former chief aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

Walters said he was asked by Nixon's ex-counsel, John Dean III, if CIA funds could be used to help the Watergate conspirators, and he refused.

A summary of Walters' testimony was made public Tuesday by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., acting committee chairman, who said, "I don't think there is any question in the world that Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean were trying to obstruct justice.

"It would appear they wanted to get the CIA to take over the whole situation and eventually take over responsibility for the Watergate itself," Symington told a news conference.

Novato Seeking New Police Chief

Novato has started recruiting applicants for police chief to succeed Allen V. Klemme, who has resigned.

The deadline for applications is June 8 with oral examinations to be held June 22 and hiring of a new chief scheduled for Aug. 1.

Klemme has remained on the city payroll, engaged in planning for disasters, but is no longer in charge of the day-to-day operation of the police department.

Himalayan Bear Is Dead In California

REDDING, Calif. (UPI) — A Himalayan bear brought to the United States in a $500,000 hashish smuggling scheme died of starvation in rugged northern California mountains, game officials reported yesterday.

The bear, which weighed 250 pounds when it arrived last November at San Francisco airport from Katmandu, Nepal, in a cage stuffed with hashish, weighed only 65 pounds and had porcupine quills in her chin and throat when located last weekend. She died before she could be captured.

ties of Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner and his aides.

"I'd like to know what we've got on the staff, what the hell they're doing and why they're always so rushed," said Boro. "The relationship of the staff and the commission is completely autonomous."

"The tail is wagging the horse," said commissioner James Dougan, commenting on a failure of the planning commission to give direction to staff.

He agreed with colleague Thomas R. O'Toole that city staff has been working under heavy workloads in recent months.

The commission also asked that it be provided with the minutes and agenda of the City Council and Planning Council of Marin, called for a joint session with the parks and recreation commission, suggested that a "landscape committee" be established to advise on architectural and design matters' and pledged to give more attention to items requiring architectural review.

Commissioner Alan M. Kay also called for tighter requirements on information furnished by developers, saying "we rarely get significant presentations . . . I want photos and models."

The commission agreed to hold similar study sessions at least once a month, in addition to regular commission meetings.

Ben C. Albritton was absent from the session.

would note the state limitations on development.

The council agreed and also decided to send a copy of the addendum to the Jens firm.

The regulations could affect the building plans of the O'Meara-Chandler Corporation which is planning to develop a commercial-recreational complex on the nearby Schoonmaker Co. property. O'Meara-Chandler plans to purchase land from Jens including rights to the streets for the development.

Rapps said he was concerned that Jens or O'Meara-Chandler would build something illegal on the underwater streets "and then it would be there and we couldn't do anything about it."

Rappa also said that before the lease was approved the city should have required an environmental impact report.

But Jordan said that the Environmental Quality Act did not apply to leasing situations "which don't allow construction. Before Jens can do anything with the property he has to get a zoning permit and at that time the city will exercise its environmental controls," he said.

Applications for the spring semester of 1974 must be submitted during the month of August.

Long career

Private funeral will be held for retired Army Maj. Gen. Richard E. Mittelstaedt of Greenbrae, who died Monday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

General Mittelstaedt, 88, also was a former president of the state Public Utilities Commission.

He was in public service in various capacities for more than a half-century, rising through the ranks from a private to commanding general of the National Guards 49th Division.

The general was born in San Francisco and joined the National Guard in 1903. He served three years as private.

During World War I, he served as a major in France for 18 months.

In 1923 he was appointed state adjutant general and was reappointed in 1927. He left state service in 1930 and subsequently became superintendent of the Sacramento Water Department and later Sacramento police commissioner.

In 1940 he was appointed state director of Selective Service and helped prepare the National Guard for service in World War II.

He himself went to war with the National Guard, serving in the South Pacific under General MacArthur. For a time he was military governor of a group of Pacific Islands with headquarters in Maui. At the end of the war he was commanding officer at Fort Richardson in Anchorage, Alaska.

In 1946 he returned to Sacramento and was appointed by Gov. Earl Warren to the Public Utilities Commission. He served as commission chairman from 1948 to 1952.

General Mittelstaedt and his wife, Alice, moved to Greenbrae in 1948. The family home is at 28 La Cuesta Drive. The Mittelstaedts, married in San Francisco in 1918, celebrated their 50th anniversary almost five years ago.

In addition to many military organizations, General Mittelstaedt also participated in civic and lodge affairs. He twice served as chairman of the Marin United Crusade campaign and was a member of the San Anselmo Rotary Club.

He also was a 50-year member of the Free and Accepted Masons, Doric Lodge No. 216 of San Francisco and the American Legion, Post 61 in Sacramento.

In Sacramento he served as potentate of the Ben Ali Temple of the Shrine.

General Mittelstaedt is survived by his wife.

Only a handful of legislators opposed the measure.

The bill's sponsor, State Sen. Walter Langley, cited such names as Lease-A-Lass, Inc., and Call-A-Girl Inc., as examples of names that could be banned.

Gas Shortage Felt In Atlanta

City officials received bids ranging almost 60 per cent higher on a year's supply of gasoline, diesel fuel and heating oil for city vehicles and buildings.

Purchasing Director J. Forrest Gee said the small number of bids means "we're definitely going to have to cut back on driving, since it costs so much."

Washington Impresses Students

Two Southern Sonoma teenagers got a rare insight into the national government when they traveled to Washington, D.C., as part of "The Presidential Classroom for Young Americans."

Kathleen Kirby, 18, and Bud McMahon, 17, were selected as representatives from St. Vincent's High School in Petaluma, to attend one of the six one-week sessions held every spring in the capital.

Seminars, tours and countless speeches by elected and public officials filled a tiring schedule from 6:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. daily.

"We'd get back to the Shoreham Hotel at 10:30 p.m. and be up until all hours talking about what we'd seen or heard," Miss Kirby said.

"The best part of it was meeting people from all over the country," McMahon said. "We really had some heated discussions between us about busing, amnesty and other things."

Miss Kirby said one of her roommates was from Georgia. "I'd heard southern accents, but I didn't think people really talked that way. At the end of the week the rest of had picked it up and were saying 'yall' to everybody."

Spokesmen from various governmental agencies spoke to the group of 251 students to give insight to operations and to answer questions."

"The seminar speakers were really worthwhile," McMahon said. "We were given free rein to ask any questions we wanted."

He said a representative of the Russian Embassy got special attention as students pressed him on the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. "They really nailed him on the Jewish question," he said. "I really felt sorry for him."

News reporters and columnists also spoke on current affairs. "Watergate was just breaking open at the time and it got mentioned many times," Miss Kirby said.

"J. J. Kilpatrick, a conservative columnist, called the story a slur and a scandal, so we knew then that Watergate would really be a big deal," she said.

The students also saw the Senate in session, but were disillusioned to see only 20 of the 100 senators on the floor.

"There was a big debate on Teddy Kennedy's national health care bill," Miss Kirby said. "We saw (Sen. Thomas) Eagleton and (Sen. Barry) Goldwater debating with him. Kennedy was mad and really red in the face."

The students saw both sides of the face of Washington. "The cherry blossoms and buildings were beautiful," McMahon said. "We also saw the slums and they're worse than anything we have here."

KATHLEEN KIRBY
Impressed by efficiency

Tours also included national monuments, the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Pentagon and CIA headquarters. "We had to go there at night, since they don't let anyone in the CIA during the daytime," McMahon said. "We couldn't take cameras or notebooks with us because everything is top secret."

For entertainment the group saw a production of the rock musical "Godspell" at the historic Ford Theater. "I had seen Godspell before and just couldn't pay attention to it," Miss Kirby said. "I couldn't keep my eyes off Lincoln's box. It's just like the night he was shot."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., spoke at the "graduation" at the end of the week's session. "He was really good," McMahon said. "He spoke mainly about how important it is for people like us to go into public life."

Neither of the high school seniors have such plans, however. Miss Kirby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Kirby of 1205 Schuman Lane, Petaluma, plans to major in journalism next fall at Santa Rosa Junior College.

BUD McMAHON
Made many friends

McMahon will attend Humboldt State College to prepare for a career with the National Park Service. He is the son of Municipal Court Judge and Mrs. Alexander J. McMahon.

Both stayed in the East after the program to tour the countryside around Washington, D.C., and Virginia.

Miss Kirby and McMahon agreed the trip left them with a favorable impression of government operations. "I had heard government was very inefficient, but I was surprised to see as much work going on as I did," Miss Kirby said.

"It was really worthwhile," McMahon said. "The best part was making friends from all over the country."

"I don't know why more schools don't promote it," Miss Kirby said. "It's really a fine program." They were the only students from Northern California to attend.

Food Pills To Remain As Fiction

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — It's one of science fiction's favorite scenes:

Super Tomorrowman reaches into his form-fitting tunic, pulls out a pill and pops it.

And dinner is over, leaving the hero more time to battle bug-eyed monsters and other perils of the 21st century.

For young gourmets who fear today's fiction may be tomorrow's fact, research chemist Horace Burr of the U.S. Agriculture Department has some good news.

"This gloomy prospect will not come to pass," says Burr.

Sufficient minerals and vitamins can be packed into capsules to take care of a day's needs, he contends, but human protein and calorie intake is so great they couldn't conveniently be put in a pill.

Instead, Burr told students at San Jose State University's "21st Century Fair," past trends in food supply and processing will continue.

We'll be eating more processed, convenience and dehydrated food, but it'll be more nutritious, of better quality and will cost less, he predicts.

"They mean more convenience but not necessarily more gracious living," Burr says of the precooked, frozen and dehydrated foods. But he thinks food companies, "which will do anything for a profit," will start competing on nutritional grounds because of new labeling laws.

Atlantic Voyage Ends For Pair

NEW TOPSAIL BEACH, N. C. (UPI) — After a little more than 24 hours at sea, most of it apparently spent sailing in circles and getting seasick, a man and woman have ended for the time being their effort to cross the Atlantic in a 16-foot canoe.

Mrs. Shirley Haycock, 40, of Helper, Utah, and Bob Geedy, 38, of Manti, Utah, ran aground in their fiberglass canoe near here last evening, about 30 miles northeast of their starting point.

Boat dock operator Brad Knight towed the craft into his dock near here and the two spent the night in a beach cottage owned by Harold Geedy of Wilmington, who had served as local host to the two.

Two More Firms Hike Steel Price

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — National Steel Corp. and Inland Steel Co. yesterday announced price increases of $8 to $12 per ton on sheet and strip steel products, joining seven other major producers who had boosted prices since last week.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's No. 1 producer, was first to increase prices on sheet and strip steel, widely used in the production of automobiles and home appliances.

Emperor Haile Selassie, who has ruled Ethiopia since Nov. 2, 1930, is meeting with President Nixon at the White House this week to discuss a range of international topics. Hayakawa To Remain Until Another Named

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley, whose firm hand guided San Francisco State College through the bleak riot days, gave his goodbye speech to the faculty senate yesterday and promised to remain president until a successor was chosen.

The board of trustees meet in Los Angeles next week to select a new president from names forwarded to them by a selection committee of what is now California State University at San Francisco.

Hayakawa said he would retire June 30 if a successor was chosen, but he noted the trustees seemed to be having trouble deciding who should take over.

The fiery semanticist who took the reigns at the college in the winter of 1968, said he would use his "president emeritus" status to "finish up a number of projects" started by his administartion and to help bring the Japanese community into closer relationship with the campus.

$2.4 Million Tiburon Budget Asked

By GEORGE NEVIN

A proposed budget of $2,432,489 — nearly a three-fold increase over this year's spending program of $846,008 — has been submitted to the Tiburon City Council by City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer.

The huge increase, most of which is slated for buying open space and parkland, will necessitate a tax rate of $1.06 per $100 assessed valuation, a jump of 44 per cent over this year's 73.5-cent rate, according to Balmer.

Voters, however, in effect approved the jump, Balmer said, when they voted in October for a $1.25 million bond issue for open space. Bond redemption will cost 32.5 cents on the tax rate, leaving taxes for all other services at 73.5 cents, precisely where they are this year.

(By law, city taxes are limited next year to this year's or last year's rate, whichever is lower, unless voters approve a tax increase.)

When the open space bonds went before voters in October it was estimated their approval would hike the tax rate 27 cents but Balmer has projected the 32.5-cent rate for next year. Thereafter, the amount should drop, he said. Bond redemption will cost the owner of a $50,000 house about $40.63 next year.

Calling the upcoming fiscal year "the year of the land," Balmer has budgeted $1,225,000 for purchase of Ridgeland, $75,000 to buy one-third of Blackie's Pasture (two-thirds already are owned by the city) and $36,000 for Reed Park in the Hilarita area.

Some $46,000 has been earmarked for developing Blackie's Pasture, building two tennis courts at Del Mar School and acquiring and developing a trail system in Old Tiburon.

Other major expenditures will go for work on Tiburon Boulevard and for solving drainage problems. Balmer has budgeted $126,000 to realign Tiburon Boulevard at Blackie's Pasture and install traffic lights at Tiburon Boulevard's intersections with Beach Road and Avenida Miraflores.

Drainage basin studies of three city watersheds, improvements to street drainage and a complete drainage system for Pine Terrace will cost $56,000, with $32,000 of that for Pine Terrace.

On the income side of the ledger, Balmer estimates property taxes will account for $364,894, or 15 per cent, of the budget. The rest of the money will come from other taxes (sales, cigarette, vehicle and gasoline, among others), fees, fines and interest ($416,900), federal and state funds, including revenue sharing and special purpose monies ($314,700) and money from selling the open space bonds ($1,225,000).

Salaries, fringe benefits and retirement fund payments — all considered personnel services — will total $385,415. A contingency fund also is budgeted.

Balmer has not asked for a raise over his present salary of $20,640, but he has requested an increase of $25 per month, to $150, in his auto allowance. A $2,238 increase in the salary of Asst. City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert, to $16,392, has been requested.

Capital improvements, $1,661,500 ($228,000); police, $240,496 ($215,177); bond redemption, $109,294 (0); public works, $87,936 ($79,882); general services, $75,800 ($63,490); city engineer, $15,500 ($15,500); community development, $55,575 ($52,419); city hall, $47,589 ($45,599); city manager, $40,032 ($37,404); retirement, $39,367 ($33,367); contingent, $25,000 ($25,000); city attorney, $19,800 ($15,400); parks and recreation, $12,100 ($22,650); city council, $1,200 ($700), and equipment replacement, $1,300 ($13,500).

The first city council meeting on Balmer's proposed budget has been set for 8 p.m. Monday at City Hall.

Sausalito Council Says Bonds Won't Raise Taxes

The Sausalito City Council pledged last night that taxes will not go up if two bond issues pass on June 12 for the purchase of sites for a new city hall and library. (Another city council story, page 1.)

Voter approval of the measures would give the council the authority to raise taxes, but council members unanimously promised to finance those bonds through leasing the present city hall on Bridgeway and part of the land they hope to buy.

The council gave the reassurance after learning recently that some cities are being challenged in court for trying the leasing arrangements Sausalito councilmen agreed on last month when the date for the election was set.

Council members declared last night that if the leasing procedure falls through, they will not use the bond issue as an excuse to raise taxes.

In the adopted statement, the council noted: "Should the leasing technique fail for whatever reason and a tax increase is the only feasible financing alternative, the city council will go back to the voters to request a tax increase to achieve the community objective. . ."

Voters will be deciding on two bond issues, one for $306,000 to buy Central School for the new city hall and another for $260,000 to purchase the adjacent Northwestern Pacific Railroad property as a library site.

Annual payments to redeem the 30-year bonds are to be funded not only from the leasing arrangements but also through continuing Sausalito's 5-cent library tax.

Franklin Anderson, a nurseryman, who leases part of the property the council hopes to buy, said that the council was embarked "on a trail of ruin."

Mayor Robin Sweeny tried to rule him out of order when he badgered the city manager with questions about who would lease the land from the city.

But Councilman Stephen A. Fraser insisted: "This guy has a right to ask questions. Every developer who comes in asks thousands of questions, and we never interrupt them."

City Mgr. Albert R. St. Cyr told Anderson that the city has made no plans for the property because it has not bought it yet.

Over Anderson's objections, the council unanimously voted to give him as much aid as possible, short of giving him city funds, if he should have to relocate.

"No thanks," Anderson said. "I built my business up from nothing, and I don't need help from any man."

The Sausalito City Council also:

ENCROACHMENTS — Asked for a staff report on whether the planning commission should handle applications for encroachment permits instead of the community appearances advisory board, which now decides on them.

APPOINTMENTS — Continued until its next meeting May 22 a discussion of appointments of new members to the planning commission and community appearances advisory board.

BUILDING PERMIT — Upheld the fire chief's denial of a building permit for 3-5 Marion Avenue, requested by William L. Hynes. Chief Robert Quayles contended that the present water lines would not provide enough pressure for fire fighting in the area.

CONDOMINIUMS — Adopted an ordinance to give the city jurisdiction over small (five units or less) as well as large condominium projects.

GASOLINE — Adopted an ordinance prohibiting self-service gasoline stations.

BONDS — Agreed to pay bond counsel, Wilson, Jones, Morton and Lynch, a fee of $5,000 if the June 12 bond issues pass and $1,500 if they fail.

CLOSED SESSION — Held a closed meeting to discuss hiring a new building inspector and a replacement for a clerical employee who is retiring.

Lack Of Contact With Skylab Is Bothersome

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab space station can send data back to earth only about 20 per cent of the time, presenting the same type of communication problems the space agency faced in the Gemini program of the mid-1960s.

Flight controllers admit they were spoiled the past few years by the constant communication with the Apollo moon flights and find it hard to get used to the intermittent communication of an earth-orbital flight again.

Misson control receives information from Skylab only when the spaceship is over ground stations in Australia, Guam, Spain and the United States.

Long Beach To Refine Own Gas

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The city government, squeezed by the gasoline shortage, has an option not available to many others: do-it-yourself gasoline.

In this oil rich city the municipal government has its own crude oil reserves.

The city has been buying its gasoline from major oil companies but so far has been unable to get any company to bid on the contract for 1.5 million gallons it needs for the coming year.

The oil companies say that with the shortage coming, they don't want to be tied to such big contracts.

So the City Council yesterday unanimously approved a resolution to seek a company to refine the city's own oil reserves, to get the gasoline needed to keep its police cars and other municipal vehicles running.

Skeletons Found From Civil War

The state medical examiners' office indicated the skeletons were part of an unmarked Civil War burial ground. It said artifacts found with the skeletons seemed to verify that belief.

The Virginia Historical Society confirmed that a number of casualties from a Civil War skirmish were buried in a common grave somewhere in the area of eastern Henrico County.

The skeletons were reburied and no further investigation was planned.

Newspaper Printing Is Delayed By Fire

NEW YORK (UPI) — A brief electrical fire in an excavation hole in front of The New York Times building delayed the publication last night of the newspaper's first edition.

$300,000 For Paving Is Approved

The vote found all but Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini agreeable to paying half the amount out of this year's reserve fund and the remainder from next fiscal year's budget.

Giacomini, who made no comment in voting against the expenditure yesterday, had protested last week that $300,000 was too much.

At that time he was joined by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere in asking for alternative solutions for repairing the chuckholed parking lot.

Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr. and Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella outlined the alternatives ranging from a $30,000 economy paving of the lot, to last about two years, to partial paving and landscaping at $200,000.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said it would be a waste of funds to go with the economy solution and successfully urged the others to finance the entire project at $300,000.

Perlman Reluctant On Housing Records

The chairman of the Marin County Housing Authority board yesterday bitterly accused Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere of being on "a fishing trip" in requesting records on the authority's leased housing program. (Another board of supervisors story, page 1)

Irving Perlman, appearing before the board of supervisors, demanded to know "what authority" Roumiguiere had to request the addresses and amounts of rent paid for the 260 leased housing units.

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste responded that any supervisor had the right to make such a request.

"It's my opinion that Supervisor Roumiguiere is on a fishing trip," Perlman said angrily. "I don't think this request is reasonable."

In March, Roumiguiere requested a grand jury investigation of the leased housing program after finding two leased housing homes in Santa Venetia standing vacant and deteriorating for seven months despite a long waiting list.

The grand jury later reported "human error and negligence" was responsible for the homes standing vacant and said a random check around the county found most units to be in fair condition.

Roumiguiere said at the time he couldn't believe two homes could be in such poor condition and the rest in good shape.

He requested the list of addresses last week so he could expand the grand jury's investigation.

"We received a quite favorable report from the grand jury," Perlman said, adding the county auditor also had given the authority "a clean bill of health".

The auditor's report, prepared earlier this year, noted the agency had crossed off about $30,000 in unpaid rent in Marin City over the last three years.

Perlman said that in spite of "tremendous harrassment" from outside sources, the local housing authority is surpassed by few others for efficiency.

"I hope you're right that everything is peaches and cream," Roumiguiere said to Perlman. "If you decide you want to refuse us the right to look at those properties, that's okay. . . but I hope you don't."

Perlman said he would get a legal opinion whether he has to reveal the records, which he claimed are confidential.

(If Roumiguiere is refused the records, he can seek a majority vote from fellow supervisors for a legal order demanding the records.)

In another action, supervisors agreed to consider next week increasing the size of the housing authority's five-member board to seven.

The proposal was suggested by the Marin City Council, which complained that no Marin City resident is on the board.

Daley Celebrates Birthday Quietly

The mayor quietly spent the day in his south side neighborhood known as Bridgeport.

Wallace's Wife Is Cancer Free

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Cornelia Wallace, wife of Gov. George C. Wallace, told reporters Tuesday she relaxed and sun bathed for two days after undergoing a surgical process last week to correct "an atypical pap smear."

The abnormal smear, a test for uterine cancer, was detected during a physical examination, but a cervical conization—a scraping of the cervix wall—performed on Mrs. Wallace showed no malignancy present.

Mrs. Wallace said she was released from a local hospital last Thursday on orders that she rest.

Supervisors Ease Endorsement Of Large Regional Government

The Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday watered down a proposed policy statement endorsing large, multipurpose regional government.

On a unanimous vote, the board modified the policy statement so that it endorses consolidation of existing regional agencies but makes no reference to creating more.

The policy statement had been drafted by County Administrator John F. Barrows for submission to the Governor's Council on Intergovernmental Relations, which is conducting a series of statewide hearings on local governmental reform.

Also deleted were statements of county support for legislation to make it easier for cities to consolidate with each other and their county.

In its final form, the statement will support consolidation of existing regional agencies (such as the air pollution control district and the regional water quality control board), legislation making it easier for cities and counties to revise boundaries and legislation making consolidation of local special districts easier.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

RENAISSANCE — Postponed to June 12 an appeal hearing on the environmental impact report for the permanent site of the Renaissance Pleasure Faire and Village north of Novato. The County of Sonoma is appealing and needs more time to draft its arguments.

MEETING — Set next Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. for a special meeting of the Marin County Transit District board to discuss bridge toll hikes proposed by the Golden Gate Bridge District. The hike would increase the 50-cent toll to 75 cents.

REZONING — Approved agricultural zoning for owners of property that was once the Moreda Ranch near Samuel P. Taylor State Park. The zoning ranges from 20 to 30-acre lot sizes.

NOMINATIONS — Nominated Merritt A. Robinson and Polly Smith of the county parks and recreation commission and Jerry Friedman of Inverness and Jo Julian of Tamalpais Valley to the advisory commission for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

TRIP — Heard a report from Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. on his trip to Washington, D.C., in support of immediate funding for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. He said special legislation may be introduced to include Wolfback Ridge overlooking Sausalito.

HOSPITALS — Endorsed legislation in Sacramento (AB 448) which would delay the closing of state mental hospitals until local communities could absorb the patients.

SHERIFF — Approved a $7,000 agreement with the county housing authority to provide sheriff's protection to the authority's Marin City office. The agreement will be reviewed in a month.

THEFT — Appropriated $2,119 from the reserve fund to replace a mower, rototiller, and miscellaneous tools stolen May 2 from Stafford Lake Park.

Novato Play To Run Another Weekend

The Novato Community Players will present performances of Cole Porter's musical "Kiss Me Kate," at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Novato community house.

A review of the production in last Saturday's Independent-Journal erroneously reported that the final performance was last Saturday.

Trial Of Magee Is Transferred To Santa Clara

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Convict Ruchell Magee's kidnap trial has been transferred to Santa Clara County, where codefendant Angela Davis was acquited last year.

Superior Court Judge John A. Ertola set the site for Magee's second trial Tuesday from a list of possible locations supplied by the State Judicial Council. No date was set.

Magee and Miss Davis were charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in the 1970 Marin County courthouse shoot out in which four men died, including Judge Harold J. Haley. Miss Davis was acquitted of all charges last June and Magee's first trial on murder and kidnap charges ended with a hung jury. Magee will not be tried again for murder.

Seale Vows To Continue 'People's Plan' After Loss

OAKLAND (UPI) — Black Panther cofounder Bobby Seale, 36, soundly defeated by nearly a 2-to-1 margin in his drive to be elected mayor of this industrial city, vowed today to carry on his drive for a "people's plan."

Seale, who discarded the militant posture of his party to work within the electoral system, was beaten by a vote of 77,476 to 43,719 by two-term incumbent John Reading yesterday in their runoff election.

"I won't make a concession speech," he told campaign workers. "All the work we have done today has blown (the city government's) minds. In six months we're going back to the ballot. You worked for a program. You've worked for a people's plan and we haven't stopped yet. You have a people's victory."

JOHN READING
Reelected in Oakland

An aide said that Seale would begin work on an initiative to bring the "people's plan" before the electorate in six months. The plan called for better housing, a reduction of crime, a big cultural center and more jobs.

Reading said the campaign was "more a question of issues than of racial confrontation."

Seale, tried for the slaying of a Panther informer in Connecticut two years ago and himself a member of the Chicago Seven, placed second to Reading in an April primary election. Reading missed election by an absolute majority by only 54 votes.

In the post-primary campaign Seale said he must get 40,000 minority voters who stayed away from the polls in April.

Oakland's population is 362,000 and 51 per cent is made up of minority group members.

Despite the high percentage of minority group members, Reading was a heavy favorite. "The only thing I'm really worried about is that, if many of my supporters think the election is in the bag and fail to vote, I could be in real trouble," he said before the runoff.

Royle Named As Acting Principal

Robert R. Royle, long-time educator in the San Rafael High School District, last night was named acting principal at San Rafael High School.

The appointment of Royle, 62, was unanimous by the San Rafael Board of Education but did not follow the recommendation of a screening committee composed of two teachers, a student, a parent, two administrators and one classified employee.

The committee had recommended that Florence Abraham, vice principal at Terra Linda High School, or John Donovan, a San Rafael High vice principal be named to the post temporarily. Royle's appointment is for up to a year.

Two students who serve in an advisory capacity on the board of education, Todd Gulick and Brian Perkins, voted against the appointment.

Royle is currently vice principal in charge of curriculum at San Rafael High School.

He will fill a slot being vacated by Peter Palches, who has resigned to become superintendent of the Mill Valley schools.

Royle graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1929, College of Marin in 1934 and the University of California at Berkeley in 1936. He later earned an administrative credential at the University of California.

Before coming to the San Rafael schools, Royle taught in Berkeley, Martinez and Crockett. During World War II he worked in the Richmond shipyards.

He joined the faculty at San Rafael High School in 1947 as a business education teacher and later became dean of boys and an administrative assistant.

From 1957 to 1960 he was assistant principal and teacher at Davidson Junior High School and from 1960 to 1971, he served on the Terra Linda High School staff.

He returned to San Rafael High School last year.

Royle and his wife, Mildred, have lived in Santa Venetia since 1947. They have four children, all of whom have gone to San Rafael High School. One is still a student there.

Negative Results In MIA Search

VIENTIANE (UPI) — A U.S. Embassy spokesman said today American officials have contacted the Communist Pathet Lao over the past few weeks in efforts to obtain information on missing American servicemen in Laos.

But the spokesman said results so far were negative.

The Pentagon lists 314 U.S. servicemen as missing in Laos since the Indochina war began, most of them pilots whose planes were downed over the southern part of North Vietnam while trying to reach American air bases in Thailand.

Bicentennial Park Proposal Is Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a little over three years before America celebrates its 200th birthday, the American Bicentennial Commission has rejected a proposal for construction of a park in each state to serve as the nucleus of the observances.

"I believe we are back where we were three and one-half years ago (when the commission started work)," said one member, Anne Hawkes Hutton, after the 14-9 vote Tuesday against proceeding with the parks plan estimated to cost $1.3 billion.

Some commission members concluded that the plan was too costly and unfeasible, particularly because of the relatively short time remaining before 1976.

West End School Parents Win A Delay On Closure Decision

The San Rafael Board of Education last night listened again to parents of children at West End School plead not to "close our beloved school," and postponed until next month a decision on the matter.

District Supt. John F. Plank has recommended that the small school, as well as Gallinas School in Santa Venetia be closed this year because of declining enrollment.

Gallinas parents, some of whom attended last night's meeting, indicated they are just as unhappy as the West End residents over the proposed closing.

The board agreed to make no decision on Gallinas until a survey aimed at predicting school enrollment in the area is completed by Parent-Teacher Association members.

The board met last night in a kindergarten room at West End, which had been lavishly decorated with child-made butterflies and a sign proclaiming, "Welcome to West End." In a hall outside, another sign read, "Save our school."

Many parents who opposed the closing questioned the $23,000 saving estimated by Business Mgr. Donald E. Leisey, who has said that much overhead will be saved by closing West End.

West End is expected to shrink from 164 students this year to 147 next fall. The saving would reflect elimination of secretarial and janitorial services. Leisey also said he has had two nibbles, one from the Marin County Schools office and the other from a private school, for leasing the building, which would bring in more income.

Parents, however, termed saving $23,000 out of a budget of $5 million by closing a school "ridiculous."

They also seemed unimpressed by the argument that their children would receive a better education at a slightly larger school where more flexibility is possible.

A father of eight children told the board, "people are saying 'we like what you've done; now just leave us alone.'"

Board President Herman L. Childress repeatedly told the audience of about 100 persons that the board is faced with financial difficulties and must make budget decisions by a July 1 deadline.

He postponed further discussion of the possible school closing until at least the June 12 board meeting. In the meantime, Lew Pollock, chairman of a subcommittee of the district's citizens advisory committee, asked time to study projected enrollment and finances for the elementary district as a whole.

He asked that no school be closed in 1973, saying, "It's not an easy thing to open a school back up" if that need should arise after a closing.

Parks Air Base To Be Center Of Tree Project

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The abandoned Parks Air Force Base near Livermore will serve as the California Ecology Corps center for "Operation Blue Gum" —the eucalyptus clearing project in the East San Francisco Bay hills.

The Department of Conservation said an 80-man team will be assigned to the effort to clean up an estimated 2 million dead trees, which pose a fire threat.

The trees were killed by last winter's freeze.

MAURREN REAGAN
"I'm a militant moderate."

Daughter Of Reagan Has Talk Show

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The beautifully rounded, face, wide mouth, doe eyes and blonde hair remind you of her mother, actress Jane Wyman.

But when she starts to talk you feel the imprint of her father, Gov. Ronald Reagan of California. She's got an opinion on just about everything and is ready to back it up at the drop of a hat in the political ring.

Maureen Reagan, actress, singer and Republican campaigner is now the hostess of a Saturday afternoon show on KABC Talkradio, where she says she is out to explore "revolutionary ideas."

A radical thought for the governor's daughter but Miss Reagan feels that like her father she has been wrongly typecast as a conservative.

"I'm a militant moderate," she said. "I'm either militantly moderate or moderately militant."

Although an ardent Republican, she said she gives Democrats "a fair shake" on her show. "I don't care what their politics are, if they're willing to discuss the issues intelligently."

But they had better come prepared. She is on the air only once a week and spends the other six days preparing for the shows. She defends her positions with intelligence, wit and charm. When she was hostess on a local TV talk show she was upbraided by the producer for not cutting up her guests.

For her month-old interview and telephone talk show, she said, "I look for revolutionary ideas. Like the proposal that the country be divided into two time zones instead of four. The time zones were originally set up for the convenience of the railroads but now with jets we don't need them any more.

"People are so conservative. They're afraid of change. These are ideas people have to think about because the world does change and unless we think about them we're going to be left behind."

Miss Reagan lanched her radio show with her father as the first guest. She said she did it to show that she is no apologist for his administration and point out that the governor - as she refers to him doesn't see eye-to-eye with her on every subject. For one thing, she's for single taxpayer relief and he's against it.

Miss Reagan, 32, who is divorced, said having famous parents has been helpful in some ways. She also has a famous stepmother, former actress Nancy Davis Reagan.

"It was a help in that my parents are delightful people who've helped me over the years by being my biggest fans," she said. "More than moral support I wouldn't expect or accept.

"My biggest problem was growing up extremely loyal to those I love or even like. But I was also born an individual. You are so loyal, you don't want to hurt them, but you must be you. You must do your own thing.

"I was 25 years old before I was able to find a middle road. My father was elected governor of California. I was invited by the Republican organization as a speaker. There were two reasons. I had a good reputation and because my name was Reagan. People bought tickets because my name was Reagan, but when they came out they knew I had something to say,"

She laughed. "In 1965 I was known as Jane Wyman's daughter. In 1966 I became Ronald Reagan's daughter."

Miss Reagan said she still thinks of herself primarily as an actress. She does an occasional guest shot on television, makes commercials and acted in four plays in stock last year.

"I love to act," she said. "I'd love to do a TV series. But I love to do what I'm doing now. I don't see why one should preempt the other. The more work I do the more energy I find."

ABOUT McPHAIL'S

The opening of McPhail's new Distribution Center in Petaluma opens another level of expansion which began back in 1884. That's when Neil McPhail started his livery stable next to the Grand Hotel in San Rafael. Through the years, the family owned business prospered as it changed with the times to meet the needs of the lower Redwood Empire.

McPhail's is now a modern corporation led by an aggressive young management team which includes Vice President and Treasurer, Jack McPhail, a grandson of the founder.

The new facility in Petaluma is the result of years of planning, and adds a unique new concept to consumarized marketing. The consumer oriented distribution center contains warehouse and truck loading facilities to serve the other McPhail's stores in Santa Rosa and San Rafael.

Besides offering customers a complete line of appliances, television sets, stereo components, and "Blue Ribbon" Service for these products; McPhail's also offers a wide range of fuel oils, propane, sand and gravel, Readymix concrete, aggregates, and many other related building products and construction supplies.

Congress Halts War Showdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A showdown between President Nixon and Congress over bombing in Cambodia was delayed today until early June to see how Henry A. Kissinger makes out in talks with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho over ceasefire violations.

Senate Republican leaders insisted on their right to hold up action until a minority report is written to a $3.2 billion supplemental appropriations bill. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he had no choice under the rules but to accept the delay.

"It is felt that an opportunity should be given for the Kissinger-Tho talks to proceed so that the Senate action would not endanger those negotiations," GOP Leader Hugh Scott told reporters.

The supplemental bill, as a result of Tuesday's 24-0 vote by the Senate Appropriations Committee, now contains language to cut off funds entirely for further military action in, over or from the shores of both Cambodia and Laos.

In both houses, sentiment against the war has grown to such proportions that administration supporters were no longer even trying to fight the issue on its merits.

The House, ending its record of unwavering support for the President, voted last week against further funding for the Cambodia bombing.

And the Senate appropriations panel, which has given Nixon and his predecessor every cent they asked for the war in past years, unanimously voted Tuesday to cut him off without a dime for further military action in either Laos or Cambodia.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd said the vote indicated the Senate not only has a majority to end the war but to override a presidential veto.

"As far as I'm concerned, I want to get the hell out of there as quickly as possible and I don't want to fool around while they capture any more prisoners," said Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., after he broke with the President and supported legislation offered by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

The Eagleton amendment, added to a $3.2 billion supplemental appropriations bill, would bar the administration from using any funds appropriated by Congress for military action "in, over or from the shores of" Cambodia and Laos.

If enacted, it would require an immediate end to the bombing.

The same supplemental bill carries an antiwar amendment which the House passed last week. That amendment, however, applies only to Cambodia and does not affect funds appropriated by Congress in other acts. Consequently, it would not stop the bombing.

Ellsberg Says Trial Was A Political Plot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg testified Wednesday he believes the administration prosecuted him in the Pentagon Papers trial as part of a plan to undercut Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and other 1972 Democratic presidential hopefuls.

Ellsberg, appearing before a Senate subcommittee headed by Muskie, acknowledged that much of his testimony was based on conjecture but that he was convinced the government was trying to tie Democratic presidential candidates to disclosure of the secret Pentagon documents on Vietnam.

Ellsberg told Muskie that Robert C. Mardian, then an assistant attorney general, made a conscious attempt "to prove that there was a link between the papers and your candidacy."

Ellsberg also said Mardian directed "a special task force" in the Justice Department that sought "to establish a link with the Pentagon Papers and the Democratic candidates for President, particularly with you," referring to Muskie.

All charges against Ellsberg and his co-defendant, Anthony Russo, were dropped last week in the Pentagon Papers trial after a series of startling disclosures growing out of the Watergate scandal.

The decision to try him on charges of stealing the documents was made when it appeared "as though Mr. Nixon would lose if you won the Democratic presidential nomination," Ellsberg told Muskie.

Ellsberg was called as a witness by the Senate government operations subcommittee which has been holding hearings on the doctrine of executive privilege.

Ellsberg said that "government secrecy played a role in the path that led off to Watergate."

Not Guilty Plea Given To Murder

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — San Rafael mechanic Lawrence Charles Brown, 35, yesterday pleaded not guilty in San Francisco Superior Court to a charge of murdering a man who tried to crash a party at a San Francisco motorcycle clubhouse.

Brown, whose home is at 3550 Redwood Highway, also pleaded not guilty to a charge of being a convicted felon and carrying a gun.

A pretrial conference was set for June 18, with Brown's trial set for June 25.

Brown is accused of shooting to death 47-year-old Harold Mayfield outside the Rattlers Motorcycle Club on Ellis Street.

Mayfield died a short time after the shooting on April 5. Brown was arrested by police near the club. Witnesses said he had fired three shots at the victim.

Sleepy Fall

UITENHAGE, South Africa (AP) — Veteran sleepwalker Gary Pike, 12, dreamed he was taking part in a gym exercise, fell 23 feet from a window without waking and knocked on the front door still asleep. He woke up as his fractured heel and two broken toes were being tended.

ROADSIDE WRECK

A giant truck lies on its side amid roadside grass beside Highway 101, while its driver is carried from it by a Novato policeman and an ambulance attendant. Despite the seeming seriousness of the accident driver Virgil R. Gibson, 23, of Watsonville needed treatment at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma only for a cut above his right eye. The California Highway Patrol said the truck was southbound about 6:30 a.m. today when it swerved and overturned in the southbound lane just north of the Marin-Sonoma county line. Howit came to swerve was not known.

Student Is Freed After Burglary, Theft Charges

A College of Marin student, after spending 22 hours in jail, has been released in a Georgia burglary investigation and cleared of suspicion his car was stolen.

Solution of the burglary matter followed a series of inconclusive communications with Georgia authorities, while the auto theft case turned out to be a matter of two cars with the same identification number.

Stephen Allan Sharp, 23, of Norwood Avenue, Ross was arrested Thursday by Belvedere police when a computer check revealed he was wanted by DeKalb County police in Georgia for a 1972 residential burglary. He had been summoned to the Belvedere police station in connection with property damage at a city home, damage he denied doing.

Sharp was booked at Marin County Jail about 1 a.m. Thursday. Although the student, who remained in jail, was informed by police about 11 hours later that the burglary matter was being dropped by Georgia officials, authorities rebooked him on $5,000 bail on suspicion of grand auto theft when another computer check showed that the manufacturer's number of his Volkswagen van belonged to another vehicle.

Police further discovered evidence that the plate carrying the identification number may have been tampered with. But, said Chief John W. Jaeger, a California Highway Patrol inspection of the car revealed the identification plate to be the auto's original one and Sharp convinced police he had bought the car legitimately from a Georgia service station in 1972.

Jaeger, moreover, told the I-J today it is not unusual for autos of different make to have the same identification number.

The I-J was told today by DeKalb County police that the burglary warrant for Sharp was dismissed after his arrest Thursday, because authorities doubted they could produce the needed witnesses. Jaeger said his department had been in touch with DeKalb authorities several times since Thursday and not only was not told of the warrant's dismissal but was led to believe the case was still alive.

Missing Gemini Camera Is Found

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A $3,000 camera used in the Gemini space program has been recovered by FBI agents two years after it disappeared from a museum.

Kim E. Christensen, 19, Salt Lake City, was arrested Tuesday on charges of possessing stolen government property.

Reception Set For John Plank

A reception honoring John F. Plank, retiring chairman of the Marin County YMCA Board of Managers, will be held from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. June 4 at the Loch Lomond Yacht Club in San Rafael, according to James Looney, YMCA director.

Plank, superintendent of San Rafael City Schools, has been board chairman for the past year and one half. He has been a board member since 1969.

Plank has accepted a post as head of the Singapore-American School.

Legalities Thicken In Proposal For Madera Del Presidio Housing

By JEFF GREER

Work legally can proceed on the huge Madera Del Presidio housing project in Corte Madera, even though a judge has ordered the Corte Madera Town Council to rescind its approval of project plans.

As a result, attorneys for opponents of the project said today they will ask the court to order the town and the developers each to post $2 million bonds to guarantee that if the project eventually is outlawed, any buildings will be torn down.

Announcement of the demand for bonding threw into doubt whether the city will continue with an appeal of a judge's finding illegal the procedures under which the town had approved the housing development.

The latest development in the long controversy emerged in a hearing before Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson, who on April 30 had ordered the town council to rescind permission for the developers to proceed with building 528 units on 75 acres near the Koch luggage plant.

Today had been set by Wilson for hearings on compliance with that order.

However, both the town and Harder and Odenthal of Orinda, the developers, have filed appeals of Wilson's ruling and the judge said today the appeals automatically stay his action while the aipeals went through higher courts in a process that could take two years.

Attorneys Joseph A. Forest and Paul D. Kayfetz, representing opponents of the project, Larry P. Weingarth and Marilyn L. Hallin of Corte Madera, responded with the declaration of intent to demand bonding.

This will assure, the attorneys said, that the developers will have to tear down any housing built and restore the land to its original state if the appeals lose and Judge Wilson's ruling is upheld.

Attorney Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the developers, said he has advised his clients against construction until their appeal is resolved.

Forest and Kayfetz said they were puzzled why the town also filed an appeal, because it could involve the city in legal expense duplicating that of the developer.

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the town, explained that he had filed a "pro forma" appeal without waiting for the town council approval. It can be withdrawn at any time.

"This merely allows us to audit" the appeal proceedings, Bianchi said. "It will be up to the council to decide whether we will actively participate, since the real fight is between the developers and the plaintiffs (Weingarth and Hallin) and the town is merely an interested agency."

Corte Madera's finance director Frank Bigley said today the town council will decide at its meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the town hall whether to proceed with the appeal.

He said the town's insurance policies probably won't cover a $2 million bond.

At its May 7 meeting, the council voted to rescind its approval of the planned unit development and tentative subdivision map for Madera del Presidio, making the rescission effective today. At that time Asst. Town Atty. John Rosenberg advised councilmen that if the developers appealed Judge Wilson's ruling before today, his decision would be stayed.

Nixon Highway Choice Endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 14-member Senate Public Works Committee Tuesday unanimously endorsed President Nixon's nomination of former Nebraska Gov. Norbert Tieman as federal highway administrator.

Tieman, a Republican who served as governor from 1967 until 1971 when he was defeated by J.J. Exon, won approval after a brief appearance before the committee.

Flurry Of Bills Beats Deadline

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin's two state legislators, pouring 32 bills in the hopper to beat the deadline for laws to take effect by the end of the year, have proposed measures ranging from state financing of housing to permitting a bar in the Marin Civic Center.

Other bills introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr, both R-San Rafael, would allow child care training at Tamalpais High School, protect existing developments on tidelands in Tomales Bay and allow women to serve as volunteer firemen.

California voters last November approved a proposition sought by the Legislature to allow two-year sessions, a "reform" the Legislature claimed would prevent logjams of bills. The annual logjam, however, was repeated in recent weeks after months of little activity.

Bagley's housing bill, AB 2145, would create a state agency to sell general obligation bonds to finance low-cost housing. Similar legislation has failed to pass before.

Behr's housing bill, SB 1259, proposes a state revenue bond issue to be put to the voters to finance mortgage subsidies to low and moderate-income persons. The bill, proposed by Winifred Frederick of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin and endorsed by the county board of supervisors, also would provide 15-year subsidies on new mobile homes.

Applicants under the Behr bill would have to have a gross income of no less than $4,000 or more than $10,000. Behr's staff said the measure would fill gaps in the Federal Home Loan program, which has been crippled by Nixon administration fund freezes.

Both legislators also introduced bills to "clarify" property rights under the court decision that Tomales Bay tidelands could not be developed because of the public trust to use them for navigation and fishing.

Bagley's bill, AB 2154, requires the regional coastal commission to "ascertain the scope of the rights and obligations of owners of tidelands" and to define "the extent of the restrictions" imposed by the public trust.

Behr's version, SB 1257, would assure owners of the tidelands of their right to maintain and improve improvements which existed before the 1971 court decision.

Other bills introduced by Behr are:

SURPLUS LANDS — Permits the state to transfer surplus lands to other state agencies or local public agencies for parks and recreation at no cost except for administrative transfer expenses. (SB1328)

AIRPORTS — Permits cities, which may receive $5,000 a year from the state for capital improvements to local airports, also to use the money for maintenance of airports. (SB1161)

PARKING — Permits community college districts to use student parking permit revenues to subsidize public transportation for students. The bill was suggested by a College of Marin student. (SB1160)

INMATES — Permits the Marin County Superintendent of schools to provide educational programs for inmates of the county jail and honor camp. (SB 1329)

SPECULATORS — Permits counties to prevent land speculation at public expense by cutting from five to two years the period between the declaration of a tax delinquent property as tax sold and the actual deeding of that property to the state. (SB 1328)

CARS — Permits welfare recipients to own an automobile for purposes other than employment. Current prohibitions work a hardship on senior citizens. (SB 1159)

FOSTER CARE — Assures the same financial aid and services for a foster child placed with a relative as for those placed with unrelated persons. (SB 1061)

AREA PLANNING — Permits a county to enter into a joint powers agreement with cities to establish an area planning agency. The agreement would be subject to referendum and initiative. (SB 1255)

VOTERS — Requires annual rather than biennial purging of county voters registration lists (SB 1258)

SCHOOLS — Creates a state fund to finance replacement of structurally unsafe schools. (SB 1324)

OPEN SPACE — Authorizes changing the name of the Marin County Regional Park District to the Marin County Open Space District.

PLANNERS — Eliminates the requirement for referral back to the planning commission of any modification of a proposed ordinance or amendment by the board of supervisors.

MOTOR BIKES — Prohibits the use of unauthorized motor vehicles on marked bicycle paths and hiking and horseback riding trails. (SB 1250)

FOOD STAMP — Designates the attorney general as the prosecuting officer in cases of violations of the Federal Food Stamp Act. (SB 1253)

FOSSIL — Declares the trilobite as the state fossil.

INFANT CENTERS — Uses federal funds to finance a pilot infant care center at Tamalpais High School. It would accommodate 24 infants 6 to 33 months of age, and would be aimed at keeping teenage mothers in school and providing child care training for students. (SB 1323)

ENERGY — A spot bill to be used if needed to establish a state commission on energy policy. (SB 1063)

Other bills introduced by Bagley are:

INVERNESS — A spot bill for acquisition of park lands on Inverness Ridge in case funds become available. (AB 2146)

LIENS — Adds real estate appraisers to the categories of persons who can slap liens on property for the value of work for which they are not paid. (AB 2147)

BLIND — Strikes totally blind persons and those using canes from the category of totally incapacitated persons who are prohibited by fire laws from the upper floors of certain buildings. (AB 2148)

SALARY — Raises the salary of the attorney general from $42,500 to $45,418, the same as the chief justice's salary, effective after the 1974 election. The bill was asked by Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger. (AB 2149)

FUND — Appropriates $70 million to the Bagley Conservation Fund for strengthening the Capitol and buying beaches and parks. (AB 2150)

AIRLINES — Exempts food served aboard interstate airlines from California taxes. Bagley's staff noted such a tax is prohibited by the U.S. Constitution, but imposed anyway by the state Board of Equalizatin. The airlines asked for the bill as faster and cheaper than challenging the board in court. (AB 2151)

SALARIES — Appropriates an unspecified amount to finance salary hikes for academic employees of the University of California and state colleges. (AB 2156)

SOCIAL SECURITY — Makes the Health and Welfare Agency the single state agency with jurisdiction over Social Security programs now scattered throughout state agencies. (AB 2311)

Carpenters Scholarships Are Given

Three Marin County high school seniors and a Sacramento youth have won scholarships given annually by the Carpenters Local 35 and the Marin Central Labor Council.

Winning $750 scholarships given by the Carpenters Union were Carol Susan Osborn of 275 Center Street, San Rafael, of San Rafael High School, and Carey Pope of 38 El Cerrito Avenue, San Anselmo, a Sir Francis Drake High School student.

Susan Skakel of 233 Sycamore Avenue, Mill Valley, of Tamalpais High School, won a $500 labor council scholarship.

A third Carpenters Union award went to Mark W. Evans of Sacramento.

All the young people are children or grandchildren of carpenters local 35.

The awards were made on the basis of academic records plus a special essay contest covering labor matters.

Senate Approves Medical Funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate yesterday approved authorization for nearly $1.5 billion worth of medical programs.

By 69-26, the Senate passed a three-year, $805 million program of grants and subsidies to promote pre-paid health care services projects.

Also approved, 79-15, was $390 million program to improve delivery of health care by authorizing up to eight regional centers plus a Health Care Technology Center and a Health Care Management Center.

The third bill would provide $225 million, spread over three years, to provide incentives for creation of emergency medical services. The vote was 79-13.

Ferry Repair Is Rushed After Blaze

The Sausalito ferry, knocked out of service yesterday morning by an engine room fire, was out of service most of today, too, but expected to be back in operation for the heavy 5:30 p.m. commuter run from San Francisco.

If finishing repairs prevent the late run today, the ferry definitely will be back in service for its first run tomorrow morning, reported Stanley M. Kowleski, ferry transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Cause of the blaze was a ruptured oil line, he said. Crewman Mark L. Pearson, 52, of Concord, was tightening a fitting on the line when it ruptured. Oil spurted onto a hot manifold and caught fire, Kowleski said.

Pearson, who suffered burns on his hands, forearms and face, will be away from work for several weeks, Kowleski reported.

Cost of the accident was estimated by Kowleski at up to $2,000. Most of the cost was in cleaning up the mess, he said. Damage was confined largely to wiring, he said.

Kowleski said it probably never can be determined if the line ruptured because of a faulty fitting or because Pearson tightened it too hard.

Suit Seeks Petaluma School Split

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A suit has been filed in Sonoma County Superior Court seeking to split the Petaluma elementary and high school districts.

The petition filed by the Petaluma Federation of Teachers, American Federation of Teachers and Clair F. Norman, a teacher, charges that two school districts operated by one board of education is unconstitutional.

The suit is similar to one filed last year in Santa Barbara County. The superior court there ordered a special election to set up an independent elementary district. The case has been appealed to the state supreme court and a ruling is expected in a month or so.

San Rafael, Santa Rosa and several Southern California school districts also operate under the system being tested.

The Petaluma suit claims that 10,000 registered voters are in the elementary district, but that school issues are governed by the joint board with the high school district that includes 23,500 voters from North Marin to Rohnert Park. The petition claims that the arrangement dilutes the vote of the elementary district since persons who live outside the district can elect the board of trustees.

A hearing before Judge Kenneth M. Eymann was set for June 18 at 9 a.m.

Novato Man Is Held To Answer

Dennis Leslie Yates, 26, of Novato, has been held to answer in Marin Superior Court May 21 on a burglary charge, following a preliminary hearing before Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith yesterday.

Yates was arrested by Novato police last Aug. 3 after he and a companion allegedly forced their way into the apartment of Deborah Ann Duncan, 19, of Novato, threatened her and fled with $125 in cash.

Yates failed to appear on the original date for his preliminary hearing and Judge Smith issued a bench warrant setting bail at $100,000 on which he recently was arrested.

Supervisors Veto Power Is Derailed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — An attempt by Marin County supervisors to get a new law giving them a veto over court security expenditures has been derailed by the presiding judge of Marin Superior Court, Henry J. Broderick.

The supervisors and judges have been at odds for several years with each side insisting it has the final power over the expenditures.

The supervisors in February moved to settle the issue in their favor by asking the county's state legislators to introduce a bill subjecting the expenditures to the supervisors' approval. Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr, both R-San Rafael, divided the 16 bills asked by the supervisors and Bagley got the one on court security.

The assemblyman, it was learned yesterday, changed his mind at the request of Broderick and the proposed bill was not included in a batch of measures he introduced for possible passage this year. Now it is too late for such a bill to be effective before early 1975.

Bagley said that he had phoned Broderick for the court's views on the proposal and Broderick then voiced objection.

The assemblyman said he will refer the proposal back to the supervisors to see if "they really want to fight the courts up here." He added the Legislature traditionally was loath "to get into a domestic dog fight."

Bagley, an attorney, said he expected to advise the supervisor to drop the proposal "and not take on the court system." If they insist on it, however, he said he will introduce it.

His policy always has been that a local governmental agency has a right to introduce legislation.

Four Injured In Prison Mishap

Three convicts and a guard were hurt yesterday at San Quentin Prison when they were hit by pieces of concrete and metal sprayed by a bullet fired by a guard trying to break up a fist fight, a prison spokesman reported.

The bulled was a "warning shot" that hit a pipe and ricocheted into a wall in the old south block of the prison, a special block that houses problem prisoners, the spokesman said.

The four men suffered only cuts and bruises and were treated at the prison hospital and released following the 12:20 p.m. shooting.

Elevator's Fall Is 'A Wild Ride'

OAKLAND (UPI) — "It was a hell of a ride," a bank messenger said Wednesday after an eleavator dropped four stories, hit bottom and bounced back to the first floor.

Russell Baker, 62, the City Hall elevator's only passenger, then shrugged and walked away, apparently unharmed.

Baker is a Bank of America employe.

Policeman Slayer Gets Long Term

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A jury sentenced John L. Harris, a 26-year-old accused of murdering a city policeman, to 2,000 years in prison Tuesday and added 200 more years because of a robbery conviction.

The day before another jury sentenced Eugene Spencer Jr., also accused of killing a policeman, to 10,000 years in prison.

Fairfax Board Eyes Lowest Budget Plan

The Fairfax School District board last night took its second look at a proposed budget for 1973-74, but made no cut or addition to the spending program.

Although three fiscal programs have been suggested by Supt. H. Reginald Hammond, the board last night focused attention on a $1,119,257 spending program, least expensive of the three.

The proposal — which cuts many accounts budgeted this year — is down from this year's $1,200,986 budget, Hammond said, but it does not include salary hikes for employees.

If the board approves salary increases of about 5 per cent, the spending program will increase by about $40,000, he said.

The proposed budget of $1,119,257, along with salary increases and a $10,000 allocation for special programs, would match projected income next year of about $1,170,734, he said.

Proposed in the budget is a $3,000 reduction in book expenditures over this year's $9,000 book allocation, he said. Cuts are also proposed for the district's general supply account, and the budget eliminates completely any money for teaching aides or for renewal of the district's Boyd Museum 'contract, he said.

The board last night suggested the possibility of cutting a $21,000 allocation for transportation — meaning an end to district bus service — to replenish these accounts, he said. No action was taken, he added.

The board will next discuss the budget at 7:45 p.m. May 29.

The Fairfax School District board also:

MIDDLE SCHOOL — Heard the Middle School study committee recommend that the board develop a multiuse facility at White Hill School with an eye toward converting the school to a middle school in the future.

TEACHERS — Heard a request from the teachers salary committee for 5 per cent pay increases for district employees.

DEER PARK — Asked the Fairfax Town Council to annex the Deer Park School area to the town and directed Hammond to develop the cost of turfing two ballfields at the school through use of volunteer labor.

HUMAN — Accepted a human torso model from three parents clubs for use at Deer Park, Manor and Central Schools.

BOOKS — Adopted science and health texts for district use.

ACCOUNTANT — Said Sleezer and Eckhoff will be the district accountants next year.

ENROLLMENT — Said enrollment last week was 957 pupils, up four from the previous week.

NEXT MEETING — Postponed the remainder of the agenda to 7:45 p.m. May 29.

Marin City Pair Faces Drug Count

Two Marin City men were arrested by Novato police yesterday on suspicion of possession of amphetamines for sale after officers reported discovering 4,500 white pills in their car.

Arrested were Robert Ward, 26, of 345 Drake Avenue, and Michael Earl Harris, 23, of 49 Cole Drive, Apt. 14.

Officers said they stopped the car at Highway 101 and Grant Avenue at 6 p.m. because it didn't have a 1973 registration tab, saw an open can of beer inside and searched the car.

Four plastic bags, containing about 4,000 pills were in the glove compartment, and smaller bags, containing about 500 pills, were above the visor on the driver's side, police said.

Harris and Ward were booked at Marin County Jail, posted $1,000 bail each and are scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Friday.

Tenants' Lawsuit Peace Is Reached

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In return for $17.5 million to be spent on low rent apartments, a tenants' organization has agreed to give up a suit that has stalled a $385 million redevelopment project for three years.

A peace pact was signed to that end yesterday in the lobby of a Skid Row hotel by the Tenants and Owners in Opposition to Redevelopment and the city's Redevelopment Agency.

Those Appointed Must Take Oath

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Anyone elected or appointed to state office in Kentucky must swear he never has fought a duel with deadly weapons. Statewide officeholders must take an oath which includes this provision:

"...and I do further solemnly swear that ... I, being a citizen of this state, have not fought a duel with deadly weapons within this state nor out of it, nor have I sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel with deadly weapons, nor have I acted as second in carrying a challenge, nor aided or assisted any person thus offending, so help me God."

Reed Trustees Delay Clsoing Tiburon School

The absence of two members of the Reed School District board last night forced trustees to delay a decision on closing Tiburon School.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said three board members discussed the proposed closing with parents, who spoke both for and against the closure, then postponed the matter until the full board can hear it.

Absent last night were Dr. John J. Osborn and Kenneth G. Wells, he said.

Giovanniello has proposed four possibilities, three of them involving closing Tiburon School, which has 77 students and three teachers. Better education would result from the step, the superintendent said.

Trustees also postponed until a special budget session at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Del Mar School consideration of spending about $10,000 to correct deficiencies in the Reedland Woods School heating system and an unknown sum to improve drainage at Del Mar.

Once A Reason For Tire Kicking

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — It's almost a tradition to kick the tires of the car you're thinking of buying. But why?

Experts at Goodyear think it all began back in the early 1900s when the "clincher" tire was used on cars. This tire was held tight against the rim by clamps, and you kicked it to see if it was properly fastened and inflated.

Tires in those good old days lasted about 50 miles on average, Goodyear notes. By contrast the company's newest tires are guaranteed for 40,000 miles, so kicking them doesn't really make much sense.

Hitchhiker Arrested In Rock Tossing

A 29-year-old hitchhiker, who reportedly threw rocks at cars that wouldn't stop to give him a lift, was arrested by Novato police last night on suspicion of throwing things at vehicles with intent to injure.

Officers arrested Andrew Leonard Sarabyn of 1091 San Jose Boulevard, Novato, an Air Force staff sergeant at Hamilton Air Force Base, shortly after 10:30 p.m. at Sunset Parkway and South Novato Boulevard.

He was arrested after three drivers reported that rocks hit their car while they were driving along South Novato Boulevard in the area of the 1500 block, police said.

Sarabyn was booked at Marin County Jail, posted $1,200 bail and is to appear in Marin Municipal Court Friday.

Density Problem Stays Before Sonoma Board

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Compromise eluded the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors last night as members failed again to agree on future density for land surrounding Sonoma State College.

At issue was the request of the college and the City of Rohnert Park to limit development around the campus to one dwelling per 10 acres so the rural atmosphere can be preserved. Property owners, however, asked for higher density zoning, permitting one dwelling on one or two acres, so they can profit from their land.

As happened a month ago, the supervisors again deadlocked on the issue, which requires three votes for either zoning. Supervisors Ignazio A. Vella and Charles Hinkle supported the low-density plan while Philip L. Joerger supported property owners. Supervisor Henry Spomer, who voted with Joerger last time, was absent and Robert Theiller could not vote because he is a partner in a group that owns 200 acres in the area.

Theiller, who owns property south of the college, had been told by the Sonoma County counsel's office that he could vote on the matter without conflict of interest provided property within a mile of his was excluded from the vote.

His suggestion last night that it be excluded received no support and his vote was barred.

The board said it would try to muster a full board and reach a compromise agreement at yet another session June 5 at 7:30 p.m.

Vella said his proposed 10-acre zoning for land from the Rohnert Park city limits to Petaluma Hill Road should be in effect for two years to give the county planning department and Rohnert Park city council time to plan a feasible means of buying land for open space or at least acquiring the development rights.

He said the area would be considered in a "holding zone" which would not harm landowners since actual development is still several years away. Vella suggested that land on the east-side of Petaluma Hill Road and into the foothills of the Sonoma Mountains be zoned for two-acre homesites.

RABIES FEAR EXPRESSED AT HAMILTON

Animal bites at Hamilton Air Force Base are increasing and the base "has all the factors needed for a rabies epidemic," according to Capt. Andrew C. Mills, veterinary services chief.

"There are lots of loose, unleashed animals, Marin County has had an increase in rabies cases, the number of skunks on the base is large and the number of animal bites on the base are increasing," Mills reported. So far this year there have been 19 dog bites reported on the base, he said.

With the large population of wild, unvaccinated cats and dogs, as well as skunks on the base that can transmit rabies to a house pet, it should be reason enough to keep pets leashed or confined."

Bond Payoff Said Best For Surplus

State Controller Houston Flournoy yesterday renewed his call for using surplus state funds to pay off about $300 million in bonds, a move he said would save about $150 million in interest.

Speaking before the Novato Republican Women at the Marin Country Club, Flournoy said, "It seems a better use than a one-time rebate."

Flournoy cautioned that the reported $850 million surplus was just an estimate, subject to changing conditions.

"A couple of months ago I raised a warning flag that it ($850 million) might not be there," he said.

For instance, Flournoy said state withholding tax refunds have been higher than expected and might run as much as $100 million beyond estimates.

Some of the comments by Flournoy on other topics were:

REAPPORTIONMENT — The State Supreme Court could devise a better state reapportionment plan than the legislature, which has been stalemated on the issue.

PARTY POLITICS — The Republican Party hasn't fared as well as it might with young voters, who will be voting in statewide elections for the first time next year.

OFFSHORE DRILLING — The state moratorium was set pending development of adequate safety measures to prevent oil spills "and hopefully at this point they (oil companies) have equipment" and the state can lift restrictions in the near future.

Board Sets Sewerage Annex Rule

Novato Sanitary District directors have determined that if private sewage disposal systems are permitted at World College West and the Renaissance Center, west of Highway 101, south of San Antonio Creek, the area shouldn't be annexed to the district.

As planned, World College West would eventually have 600 students on about 200 acres and the center, about 250 persons on 275 acres.

Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph said directors agreed Monday night if public sewerage is required the land should be annexed to the district, but not if the sewerage system is private.

The board also urged that Gov. Ronald Reagan appoint the Bay Area Sewer Services Agency as the areawide sewerage planning agency for the Bay Area.

Group Readies Fable Updating

"The Great Cross-Country Race," a modern adaptation of the fable "The Hare and the Tortoise" will be presented Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Tomales High School.

The presentation by the Actor's Theatre for Children from Santa Rosa is the classic tale of the speedy hare being bested in the race by the slow but steady moving tortoise.

The hare is diverted in the race by a courting couple and pauses to gorge himself on a picnic lunch. The tortoise, however, plods steadily and relentlessly to the finish line.

The production is designed for pre-school aged children through adults.

PORK, A good source of thiamin, is excellent for a company meal. Here pork chops are well browned and the other fresh ingredients are added to make this appetizing dish. Broccoli with lemon sauce and fresh rhubarb mousse complete the menu.

Economist Suggests Pork Dish

Orange tomato pork chops are the suggestion of home economist Peggy Hopkins of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Rafael for a good company main dish.

The recipe uses fresh orange juice and slices as well as fresh tomatoes and slices of avocado.

With it she suggests fresh rhubarb mousse which she finds to be not only delicious but a very attractive dessert. Potatoes and fresh green vegetable such as broccoli will round out the menu. Read all the recipes through before you begin cooking.

The rhubarb is sliced and cooked in orange juice with some sugar. The slices soften and "shred" themselves during cooking, to just the right texture for making the mousse. No blender is needed for the job.

Unflavored gelatin is added, the mixture is chilled, whipped cream is folded in, and the mousse is then chilled till firm. The color is a beautiful pink. It's a festive and fascinating dessert.

Enjoy the seasonal fresh fruits and vegetables in your menus. It makes meals ever-changing, appetizing, and rich with the nutrition that fresh foods bring.

FRESH ORANGE TOMATO PORK CHOPS

2 tablespoon salad oil
4 loin pork chops
½ cup chopped fresh onion
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup chopped peeled fresh tomatoes
½ cup fresh orange juice
½ cup water
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 avocado, sliced
2 oranges*, peeled and sliced

Heat oil in skillet. Add pork chops and brown on both sides. Remove. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender. Sprinkle with flour; stir to mix well. Add tomatoes, orange juice, water, salt and thyme. Add pork chops, cover and simmer one hour or until meat is tender. Add sliced avocado and oranges; heat. Makes four servings.

Note: To prepare oranges, cut slice from top, then cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane. Or cut off peel round and round spiral fashion. Go over fruit again to remove any remaining white membrane. Cut into crosswise slices.

BROCCOLI WITH LEMON BUTTER

1 bunch fresh broccoli
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

To prepare broccoli, cut off large leaves and the bottom of the stalks. Wash well. Cut into flowerets. Cook, uncovered, in boiling salted water to cover for 10 to 15 minutes, until crisp-tender. Drain. Turn into heated serving dish and keep warm. Melt butter in same saucepan; add lemon juice and pour over broccoli. Garnish with lemon slices.

Serves four.

For best results, purchase rhubarb that is firm and crisp, with stalks not excessively thin.

FRESH RHUBARB MOUSSE

1 pound fresh rhubarb, cut in 1-inch pieces (3 cups)
½ cup fresh orange juice, divided
1 cup sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
1 cup heavy cream (or chilled evaporated milk)
Red food coloring

Combine rhubarb with ¼ cup orange juice and sugar in saucepan. Simmer, covered 10 minutes, until rhubarb pieces come apart into "strings." Meanwhile, soften gelatin in remaining ¼ cup orange juice; stir into hot rhubarb mixture until dissolved. Remove from heat. Add lemon juice.

Chill until mixture is thoroughly cool and mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Whip cream; fold into rhubarb mixture. Add a few drops of red food coloring to tint delicate pink. Turn into dessert dishes. Chill until set.

If desired, garnish with whipped cream. Makes six to eight servings.

Mexican Foods Will Be Feature Of Market Day

Mexican foods are a favorite with Marinites and the Northgate Group's Market Day will take a Mexican theme May 23.

To create a new sampling booth Northgate Group members have cooked some Mexican style foods that can be sampled and the recipes bought at the booth, open 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

They have consented to share a few of the casserole recipes as a preview with Independent-Journal food page readers.

CHICKEN ENCHILADAS

2 cups diced leftover chicken or turkey
1 cup sharp cheese, grated
1 can sliced black olives, drained
8 corn tortillas

Mix together the chicken, cheese and olives. Reserve tortillas.

Sauce

2 tbsp. oil
1 clove garlic, mashed
½ cup onion, minced
10 oz. chicken broth
10 oz. water
1 or 2 Tbsp. chili powder
¼ cup flour
1 tsp. MSG
1 Tbsp. oil
½ cup chili sauce

Saute onions and garlic in two tablespoons oil. Add broth and water. Mix remaining ingredients into a paste and add to broth mixture. Simmer 15-20 minutes.

Fill the tortillas with the chicken mixture, roll up and place in a greased 7 x 12-inch baking dish, seam side down. Cover with the sauce. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or until bubbly hot. Sprinkle extra cheese on the tops. Serves four.

CHILI CHICKEN CASSEROLE

2 medium packages Mexican chips, crushed
2 cans chili con carne, without beans
3 cooked chicken breasts, sliced
1 pint sour cream
2 onions chopped
Grated sharp cheese

Line bottom of an 8 x 12 inch casserole with half of the crushed chips. Layer the other ingredients in order given, topping with remaining crushed chips.

Bake in 325 oven for 40 minutes.

Radio Show Features Astrology

Cooking with astrology was the theme for Diane MacMillan's KTIM radio show, Kitchen Time in Marin, with guest Walden Welch. The recipe shows how the guest may be entertained with his or her Zodiac sign.

ANGEL CAKE WITH TAURUS IN MIND

1 cup sifted cake flour
1½ cups granulated sugar
1¼ cups egg whites (8-10) room temperature
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract

Sift the flour and 1/4 cup of the sugar together. Add salt to egg whites and whip at high speed until light and foamy; then add the cream of tartar. Whip until stiff enough to form shiny peaks, but not dry. Blend in the remaining sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating and blending in each addition. Fold in the vanilla extract. Sift 1/4 cup of the flour-mixture over the meringue and fold in lightly. Repeating until all is used. Spoon into an ungreased 10-inch tube cake pan.

Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until cake springs back when pressed with the tip of the finger and "hang" the cake until completely cool.

Vegetables Vary Menus

SWEET AND SOUR RED CABBAGE

Currant jelly adds fine flavor and color.

1 medium head (about 2½ pounds) red cabbage
¼ cup butter
1 tablespoon sugar
⅓ cup cider vinegar
¾ cup water
3 medium apples
½ cup red currant jelly
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Remove tough outer leaves from cabbage. Cut head in half and with a sharp knife cut each half into fine shreds, discarding core. (Firmly packed shredded cabbage will measure 2 to 2½ quarts.) In a large saucepot over moderate heat melt butter; stir in sugar; mix in cabbage and cook, stirring, about 3 minutes.

Mix in vinegar and water. Cover and cook over low heat for 1½ hours, mixing occasionally and adding a small amount of water if needed. At end of cooking time, peel and core apples and coarsely chop (there should be about 2 cups); add to cabbage with currant jelly, salt and pepper. Mix until jelly is dissolved.

Continue cooking, uncovered, about 30 minutes, mixing several times. Makes eight servings.

HERE'S AN appetizer tray that's hard for company to resist. It features prawns, fresh zucchini, cooked asparagus and cherry tomatoes with a parsley garnish and can be served with Pistachio mayonnaise for dunking.

Fix Quick Appetizers With Tray Of Shrimp

Create a trayful of appetizers in a jiffy for company with shrimp, tomatoes, vegetables and a dip.

PRAWN PLATTER

1 package (about 12 oz.) frozen shrimp
1 basket cherry tomatoes
1 bunch asparagus, trimmed
1 zucchini, cut in long spears
Parsley
Pistachio mayonnaise

Cook shrimp according to package directions, drain well, then cover and refrigerate until chilled.

To serve, arrange shrimp, then tomatoes, zucchini and asparagus to your taste on a platter or arrange asparagus in a pitcher as shown. Garnish with parsley and serve with the mayonnaise for dunking.

Pistachio Mayonnaise: In a blender, mix two egg yolks and one tablespoon lemon juice. Then pour in ⅓ cup melted butter in a slow steady stream; then pour in ¼ cup salad oil. Stop blender and add four torn spinach leaves, two teaspoons chopped chives and ⅓ cup chopped pistachio nuts. Force into mayonnaise; then blend until thoroughly distributed and spinach is well chopped. If mixture becomes too thick for the blender, add water, a teaspoon at a time and continue to blend.

English Dessert Can Be Americanized

Here's an American adaptation of a dessert from England. It's Strawberry Trifle and its main ingredients are the luscious red berries, ladyfingers and whipped cream.

STRAWBERRY TRIFLE

- 2 pints fresh strawberries
- Sugar
- 1½ tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- Dash of salt
- ½ pint heavy cream
- ¼ cup port or sherry
- Red food coloring
- 1 package (3 ounces) ladyfingers (about 12 whole separated into halves) or an equal number of homemade ladyfingers

Wash and hull strawberries. Reserve half a dozen whole strawberries for garnish. Puree half of remaining berries in electric blender; set aside. Slice remaining berries and sweeten with ¼ cup sugar; set aside.

In a medium saucepan thoroughly mix together six tablespoons sugar, the cornstarch, lemon juice and salt. Stir in pureed strawberries. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and clear. Cool.

Whip ½ cup of the cream. Fold the whipped cream, two tablespoons of the port and a few drops of red food color into cooled strawberry mixture.

Line the bottom and sides of a glass bowl (holding about six cups and preferably with straight sides) with halved ladyfingers. Sprinkle with the remaining two tablespoons port. Spoon half the sliced strawberries on top of ladyfingers; spoon half the strawberry-cream mixture over sliced strawberries. Repeat the two layers with remaining sliced strawberries and strawberry-cream mixture. Chill for several hours or longer.

Shortly before serving, whip remaining cream. Garnish trifle with whipped cream and reserved whole strawberries.

Makes six to eight servings.

Pimiento Potatoes Are Popular To Prepare-Ahead

This version of prepare-ahead pimiento potatoes is a popular one.

PREPARE-AHEAD PIMIENTO POTATOES

- 6 medium baking potatoes, about 2¼ pounds
- 6 tablespoons butter
- ⅓ cup milk
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- White pepper to taste
- 1 can (4 ounces) drained canned pimiento, diced
- ⅓ cup finely grated cheddar cheese
- Paprika

In a preheated 425-degree oven bake potatoes until soft — about 50 minutes. Cut a thin lengthwise slice from top of each potato. Scoop out pulp, reserving shells; mash pulp and beat in butter, milk, salt and pepper; stir in pimiento. Spoon back into shells. Sprinkle with cheese and paprika.

Cover with transparent plastic wrap and refrigerate for six to eight hours or overnight. Place potatoes on a cookie sheet and bake in a pre-heated 425-degree oven until hot through and tops are brown and crusty — 30 to 40 minutes. Makes six servings.

New Flavors With Spinach

An interesting combination of flavors is the result of anchovy spinach. Suggested menu includes fish fillets, potatoes, salad and a peach upside down cake.

ANCHOVY SPINACH

- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach
- ¼ cup finely diced celery
- 4 flat anchovy fillets, cut up
- 2 tablespoons butter
- Pepper to taste
- 4 slices bacon, crisply cooked and crumbled

Cook spinach, adding the celery and omitting salt, according to package directions; drain. Add anchovy, butter and pepper and reheat. Sprinkle with bacon. Makes four servings.

Thawing Chickens

Whole frozen chickens that weigh three pounds or less defrost in about 12 hours at refrigerator temperature. To thaw at room temperature, allow two to three hours per pound for whole chicken, or 1½ to 2 hours per pound for smaller parts.

Advice Given To Consumers In Tam High School Series

By BETTY FROST

"Seek advice before entering into a contract or purchase agreement," advised Lawrence A. Mayer, attorney and chairman of the Marin County Legal Aid board.

Mayer was one of three panelists discussing consumer rights and responsibilities at the final program in the current series conducted by the Consumer Resource Center at Tamalpais High School yesterday.

"Take your time, find out what the sales agreement really means, and if you don't understand, seek advice at that stage, "the attorney suggested. "This is the cheapest way," he stated, indicating it is far less expensive than litigation.

Donald W. Schwartz, executive vice president of the San Francisco Better Business Bureau, outlined the work of that organization, founded nationally in 1912 and established in San Francisco in 1928.

The five major functions of the bureau in the protection of the consumer are complaint handling, keeping records of the reliability of merchants, working for truthful advertising, checking the trustworthiness of business and non-business groups soliciting funds, and consumer education, Schwartz said.

"Within the last two years the Better Business Bureau has stepped up its programs in response to the demands of the consumer movement," he said. The organization is financed by businessmen themselves, and was originated to raise ethical standards within the business community.

A consumer arbitration program, at no cost to the participants, is offered by the bureau for those whose claims are around $200, Schwartz said.

Roderick D. McPeak, director of the Marin County Better Business Bureau, which was established with offices in San Rafael last month, attended the program.

Mrs. Bette W. Wallace of the Marin County Human Rights Department staff, gave information about the consumer hot line center.

"Since the center was opened on April 15 as a pilot program under the human rights department, it has averaged 35 to 50 calls a day," Mrs. Wallace said. "I am deeply convinced of the desperate need for this service," she continued.

"We can only mediate and have no legal power," Mrs. Wallace said. The hot line service receives complaints and will contact local business and company representatives and work with regulatory agencies to resolve complaints.

Emphasizing that no item is too insignificant for concern, she spoke of "the case of the rotten brassiere." Through the offices of the hot line the faulty merchandise was returned and the $12.50 paid for the garment refunded within 24 hours, she said.

By JOAN LISETOR

The Junior League came to San Quentin Prison yesterday. Some 60 of the 600 delegates attending the annual conference of the Association of Junior Leagues, which ends tomorrow, participated in a day long workshop at the prison.

The women arrived by bus from the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, where they are staying, and were given a tour of the prison grounds. From a windy hill top they surveyed the prison grounds for an over all view of the facility.

Each delegate to the conference is involved in an in depth study and was given a choice of problems of education, arts and the environment or alternatives to correctional institutions. The group choosing correctional institutions was broken down into conventional and unconventional facilities, explained Sally Reese of San Jose, chairman of the San Quentin tour. Other women yesterday toured Vacaville State Penitentary and an unconventional facility in Redwood City, Mrs. Reese said.

The purpose of the tours was to give the women a view of prison reform in California. When they return home their local chapters will be informed of possible volunteer involvement by the delegates, she said.

"THE JUNIOR League is a change agent, and our purpose is to educate members. Some chapters are already working toward improvements in the criminal justice system counseling families," she said.

Following the tour Warden Louis S. Nelson addressed the women.

"Most of the women at our gates are interested in their own little games. I welcome visitors who are genuinely interested," the warden told the women.

He discussed his background in prison work. Like most, he said, he got into prison work by accident and was not prepared for it.

"Historically prisons have had the purpose of getting the person who is transgressing against the standards of society out of the midst of society," he said.

In times past the criminals were banished to islands until there were no longer enough places, and places of banishment were established in communities with the purpose to restrict movement. Prisons cannot be termed failures, he said, because no one knows what prisons are supposed to do.

"Are prisons to protect the public or offer those inside an opportunity to modify their attitudes?" he asked rhetorically.

Somehwere between is the answer, according to the warden, and that is to afford inmates the opportunity to do something for themselves. Prison time is punishment, he said, and punishment is good if it is not too long, and the end is followed by some reward.

FOLLOWING THE warden's talk the prison's public information officer Lee DeBord introduced a panel of prison officials, Jim Ingram, acting associate warden in charge of the classification and treatment section; Bud Bolton, acting superintendent of the prison's education programs; and William Merkle, in charge of the 320 uniformed personnel at the prison. Also on the panel were three members of the general prison population.

Most of the women's questions were directed to the inmates.

In answer to questions the women were told that any prisoner can make an appointment for an interview with the warden. Men would not feel resentment to volunteers working with them on a one-to-one basis, and they are generally opposed to the indeterminate sentence.

The biggest concern, one of the prisoners said, is to keep from getting bitter. The man, a murderer and former resident of death row, said he keeps busy by going to church, having a hobby and playing tennis to keep from becoming embittered.

Reentering the community is the most difficult obstacle, one of the prisoner said.

"The state gives you $68, and you have no moustache, short hair and some khakis. It's like an animal that has been domesticated and then turned back into the forest. You can not matriculate back into society with a job in a car wash that pays $1.50 or $1.75 an hour."

Following a luncheon in the prison cafeteria the women toured the gas chamber and then attended another workshop.

Panelists, the Rev. Larry Baulch of Job Therapy, a volunteer visitation program; Bill Elliot, a parole administrator; Paula Hubbell, a parole agent; and Margaret Muirhead of Friends Outside, a volunteer organization; offered the women ideas for volunteer programs for their Junior League chapters.

Tips On Care Of The Skin

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Should you be using a soap or detergent, acid or alkaline skin cleanser? Understanding your skin's chemistry should help you to decide, according to Dr. David A. Zackson, and this knowledge could be the key to skin beauty for many skin-sensitive individuals.

At a recent meeting on skin cleansing Dr. Zackson, who is medical director of Winthrop Laboratories, explained to the beauty editors present that for some individuals almost any popular skin cleanser used regularly and correctly is sufficient to get skin clean. However, the physician said, many individuals may require a specifically engineered skin cleanser that is hypoallergenic and finely controlled, with a slightly acidic measurement and contains a detergent.

Normal skin has a measurement of about 5.5. Therefore, it is considered slightly acidic. Skin care experts agree than an ideal skin care product should have the same measurement as normal skin.

In Dr. Zackson's opinion, the best skin cleanser for daily use is one that cleanses thoroughly, is an emulsifier of oils, moisturizes, is non-drying, is non-irritating, is hypoallergenic, pleasant to use and does not disturb the skin's chemistry.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Wife, Boss In Triangle And He Wonders If He Should Tell

DEAR HELEN:

I've known for some time that my wife has been seeing another man. Two weeks ago I found that the other man was my best friend, and my boss.

He's married, too, and his wife thinks he's still madly in love with her. She has no idea he's being unfaithful.

I really feel obligated to tell my friend's wife what's happening, but I don't want to go against a friend (and boss). I have an excellent position in the firm, by the way.

What should I do? — DESPERATE

DEAR DES:

Some friend! Some wife!

Since you seem more concerned about losing the former than the latter, why don't you send your wife away on a long trip — I mean make her an offer she can't refuse, like the choice between an ocean cruise and a messy divorce.

I'm sure your very friendly boss will get the message. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Watching another National Geographic-type show the other night, I started wondering: How come "topless" and occasionally "bottomless' dances are okay if the skin is black and the locale, Africa, but TV network heads quake or even sometimes roll if more than routine "cleavage" slips past the censors of made-in-America films?

A nude is a nude is a nude, so what's the difference whether she's in a tribal village or an East Village play? — DOWN WITH DISCRIMINATION

DEAR D WITH D:

You're talking about custom versus skin flicks. Should the United States adopt nudity as its national "dress," the TV censor would take his scissors elsewhere — H.

(Which sorta proves "bare" isn't bad — it's the way you look at it.)

DEAR HELEN:

I really love this married man. Please tell me how I can get over being jealous of his wife? — HIS ON TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS

DEAR HIS:

The same way you can cure his wife's jealousy of you: get out of this married man's life! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

"Hurt," who gained 25 pounds in the first five months of her marriage, may need more sympathy than her "nagging" husband gives her. She could be eating excessively to fill an emotional need, as I did.

I was somewhat heavy when I married, and my husband nagged and poked fun at me. I was hungry for love and compassion, so when he pushed me away — literally — I fulfilled that need by stuffing myself with food. The fatter I became the more unhappy (and repulsed) I was.

Several years later I met a very kind man at the office. By then my whole world was falling apart. This man talked to me about my problems, he listened and he cared. I began to gain self-respect and, happily, I started shedding pounds. No, there wasn't an "affair," just kindness.

My eating pattern changed and I found those gooey treats no longer tasted good. I now have a size-10 figure and a new outlook on life.

Perhaps if "Hurt's" husband will be more understanding and less critical, she will find her pounds melting away too. Be it emotional or physical, an overweight person needs help, not sneers.

My story has a happy ending. My husband and I are now happily married. He realizes his approach to my former problem was wrong and he knows why it's no longer a problem.

Sometimes overeating is as much of an illness as alcoholism. Foodaholics need proper treatment, and that doesn't mean ridicule. — ONE WHO KNOWS

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, care of the Independent-Journal.

THE DEBATE over the safety of the microwave oven is heating up again. Whether the amount of microwave leakage is dangerous is a major question.

Safety Of Microwave Ovens Debated

By NANCY IRAN PHILLIPS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Can it leak radiation? Is it dangerous to be near while food is being cooked? Can the food cooked in the electronic range absorb radiation and become dangerous to eat?

Answers to these questions came from a panel of three of the world's leading radiation scientists who were here recently at the request of Amana Refrigeration, Inc., to answer a report by Consumers Union.

The report said it had found "measurable radiation leakage" in 15 leading models of microwave ovens and "was not convinced that they are completely safe."

Microwave ovens do their rapid cooking by setting the molecules of the food in motion, thus creating heat within the food items themselves. Electromagnetic waves, much like the waves transmitted by a radio or TV station, are generated by a vacuum tube called a magnetron. The frequency of the microwaves is in the range of 2,450 megacycles, and cooking is done at approximately 100 milliwatts per square centimeter of energy (mw cm 2).

CRITICS ADMIT that this level is safe for cooking, but charge that during cooking some of the microwaves leak to what may be a harmful degree.

They say that the exposure standard for leakage of 10 milliwatts per square centimeter set by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) and supported by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) "may be inadequate."

Dr. Sol. M. Michaelson, professor of radiation biology and biophysics, University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y., reported that: "The interaction of biologic tissues and microwaves of radio frequency energies has been studied for the last 50 years, and since World War II the response of the body to microwave exposure has been investigated. It can safely be said that as of today, there is no substantiated evidence of injury to man following exposure to microwave levels that are within the protection guides recommended by ANSI for personal exposure or the microwave oven emission standard promulgated by HEW."

Dr. James A. Van Allen, professor of physics, University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa, who helped prepare the radiation safety standards for the Mercury, Gemini, and Apollo flights and discovered the radiation belt which surrounds the earth, also commented on the safety of the ovens.

HE POINTED out that the intensity and duration of exposure to any radiation are significant. "Within the cooking volume of a microwave oven the effective intensity is about 10 watts per square centimeter. Such an intensity is clearly hazardous. It causes the cooking of a hamburger in only three minutes and would do the same for a human hand, if similarly exposed.

"But, the shielding by the metal enclosure is so nearly perfect in household ovens that the intensity outside the oven only two inches from the door seal is reduced by a factor of 10,000 and at the typical position of the operator by a factor of at least 100,000. This shield is the secret of safety of the microwave ovens," he concluded.

Dr. Van Allen compared the hazard of the oven to the likelihood of "getting a skin tan from moonlight," and in fact, he volunteered to sit on top of his own family's oven for "a solid year while it is in full operation, with no apprehension as to my safety."

Experts from Amana, one of 15 makers of microwave ovens, pointed out that direct sunlight is a great source of radiation, and most of the sun's rays are harmless except at high frequencies when exposure is extended. A microwave oven such as the Amana gives off less than 1 per cent of the amount of radiation one gets from sunlight on a summer day. Or, to put it another way, the total power leakage from an oven is less than 6 watts, equal to the power consumed by a penlight flashlight bulb. The company's standard, checked as ovens come off the assembly line, is .1 mw cm2.

ALSO, THE energy which does leak from the oven diminishes rapidly as the distance increases. So the homemaker who sets something to cook in the microwave oven closes the door, and continues the meal preparation around the kitchen, is in no real danger, should there be a low level of leakage since the standard measurements are taken at two inches from the oven, where she may stay for only a few seconds.

Dr. John M. Osepchuk of Raytheon Company's Research Division, the company which manufactures the magnetron used by its subsidiary, Amana, in its ovens, explained in answer to an editor's question that if the leakage reached levels of 20 to 40 milliwatts, the user would feel the heat and move away from the oven, thus realizing the need for repair.

Litton Industries, another manufacturer of microwave ovens both for the restaurant industry, which has used them for almost 20 years, and for the consumer, reports that in 1971 some 100,000 microwave ovens were sold for home use. In '72 the number reached 300,000 and this year it's expected that 500,000 will be added to the kitchens of the United States. By 1972, they predict, 1.5 million units will be in use and 7 million of them will be in combination ranges with a microwave unit combined with gas or electricity.

Litton calculates that daily some 20,000 homemakers use ranges which have counter top microwave units which vary in price from $179 to $500.

But Litton experts point out that the lower priced counter top units, whether made in the U.S. or in Japan, as a number are, don't sacrifice safety in scaling down the cost of the unit.

At the conclusion of Amana's press briefing, George C. Foerstner, president-founder of Amana Refrigeration, reported that his company had filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission, asking that the publication Consumer Reports justify its report in the way a company must prove its advertising claims to the commission. The complaint states that, through the story, "the consumer is prevented from being in a position to make informed buying decisions."

It also charged that Ecometrics, a California-based manufacturer of a device for checking radiation emissions from microwave ovens, has been found unreliable for compliance testing by the Bureau of Radiological Health.

MICROWAVE OVEN safety remains as debatable a topic in the nation's capital as anywhere else around the country.

The government maintains the federal standard of radiation emission — five milliwatts per square centimeter at a distance of about two inches from the oven — effective since October, 1971, is quite sufficient as it stands.

"At the time the standard was written, it was soundly attacked as being ultra-conservative — we had a difficult time defending it," says Dr. Morris L. Shore, director of the Food and Drug Administration's Division of Biological Effects. "It's stringent. Any microwave oven that meets the standard, in my opinion, would be safe for use in the home."

Dr. Shore adds that in practice manufacturers must tailor their products to even tighter safety specifications to be absolutely sure that they will meet the federal standards.

Not all agree that the standards are tough enough. Some, such as Richard Sandler, energy researcher for Ralph Nader and a former staff member of the Senate Commerce Committee where he specialized in work on electronic production radiation, argue that the standard does not take into account enough risk possibilities.

"THE STANDARD is written for pristine lab use conditions," he explains. "While it may be reasonable to assume that under most conditions, individuals won't sit right next to the oven for long periods of time in conversation, it's within the realm of possibility. You may not place the load exactly in the middle of the oven, and the door could be left slightly open. . .It should be public policy to set standards that take into account the worst conditions.

"Our knowledge of low-level microwave-radiation biological effects is very incomplete. It is possible these could be significantly worse than they are now thought to be. Given that possibility, you have to weigh the risk against the benefit — decreased cooking time. Personally, I wouldn't expose my family to the possible risks in exchange for that known benefit."

Fall Coats

Trends in fall coats stress dolman sleeves, shawl collars, fur vest trim, soft cashmere, peplum coats that look like suits, woven cotton that looks like suede, and big fur trims, such as Canadian lynx, fox, raccoon tails and mink.

Bacon Is Best At A Low Heat

The secret to successful bacon cookery is low heat. Place the meat in a cold skillet and separate the slices as they begin to cook so that each slice is flat in the pan.

Continue cooking over low heat, turning the slices often, until they are browned evenly on both sides. Remove the slices to drain on absorbent paper.

She Starts Building Healthy Bodies Early

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Just as one would not build the Empire State Building from its roof down, so one does not develop a healthy body in middle age."

Suzy Prudden, physical fitness authority, speaking. Miss Prudden believes in starting that body building in infancy. Her mother, Bonnie Prudden, fitness expert too, started her two daughters on exercise programs when they were about four years old.

Suzy Prudden starts the little ones even earlier, some as early as only three weeks of age.

MANY EXPERTS hold that a child's mental growth is greatest in the first few years of its life. Miss Prudden says that the same goes for its physical life.

"Just as you realize that a fetus, an infant and a growing child require the proper nourishment in order to develop a healthy body and good brain cells, you know they need exercise as well. Those years are the child's foundation," she says.

UPI photographer Maurice Maurel and I sat in one afternoon on two of Miss Prudden's exercise sessions for infants. One was an individual session of 20 minutes with Lily Fertik, an agile 7-month-old charmer with a toothless grin and a fuzz of dark hair.

The other ran about 30 minutes with 10 children from 16 months to two years doing group play and exercises on swings, trapeze, ladders, bars and "horses"—Miss Prudden's adaptation of the type used by carpenters.

For the small ones (up to two and three years), Miss Prudden insists that the mothers all participate. But on the day of our visit, Mrs. William (Robin) Fertik sat on the sidelines while Miss Prudden and baby Lily exercised on a large mat.

"MY OTHER child, Joshua, now two, has been coming in weekly since last October," said his mother. Did the children show any fright, I asked Mrs. Fertik, whose husband is a film director and writer.

"No," she said, "but I was scared to death at first. Look at Lily, though. She's so joyous all the time. And I'm more comfortable."

"A baby won't break," said Miss Prudden, mother of 7-year-old Robert, who's exercised with his parents (she's married to Jeffrey Sussman) since infancy.

"It's an old wives' tale, this whole concept of don't touch," she said. "Then you see how the nurses toss them around in the hospital.

"We want to build straight, strong bodies, not make muscly babies. Exercising with the infant gives mother and child an opportunity to be very close."

Miss Prudden works with parents and child once a week, trying to introduce a new exercise at each session. Parents are urged to do the routines daily.

THE EARLIEST exercises simply are stretching, the 29-year-old Miss Prudden said. "Remember," she explained, "that little thing has been lying curled closely inside the womb for nine months. We need to stretch arm and leg muscles."

But Miss Prudden was helping little Lily with such things as knee bends, chest stretch with baby's arms folded across the front, shoulder and chest stretch with baby's arms above its head as it lay on its back, the bicycle or rotating legs in a circular motion as if she were riding a bike, doing the "airplane" (make like flying while on stomach), wheel barrow pushups with baby's arms the "wheel" and legs the handles.

She also helped Lily through a gentle somersault and supported her in the "ship's prow" (mother helping support baby at a 45-degree angle to mother's body). Yet Lily is just beginning to experiment with crawling.

All exercises are designed to strengthen specific parts of the body.

Miss Prudden and a staff of 10 run classes for some 475 children (from age four months to 12 and 13 years) at two New York City locations. There are also classes for adults. And in summer she runs a children's recreation day camp at Bridgehampton, N.Y.

With her husband as photographer-writer, she's also done a "Suzy Prudden's Creative Fitness for Baby and Child" (William Morrow & Co.) illustrating the exercises.

Miss Prudden says parents always should consult a pediatrician before beginning any exercise regimen. But carried on through childhood, the results "are a self-confidence that shows in everything he does for a whole lifetime."

A New Perfume Called Brunette

A brunette perfume is what Andre Courreges calls the scent, Empreinte, which has recently been introduced to the United States.

Empreinte is a combination of 15 different oils and ingredients, including exotic woods, a musk base, with hints of jasmin and Bulgarian rose.

Correct Height For Chandeliers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — You've heard about the housewife who never sees her husband because he's hidden behind a newspaper at the breakfast table.

A chandelier hung too low can inhibit comfortable viewing across the table. As a general rule, advises Scovill's Lightcraft of California division, the chandelier should be 30 to 40 inches above the table. On higher ceilings the chandelier should be even a little higher.

Program Aims At Cigarette, Alcohol Abuse

Recognizing that alcohol, not heroin, is the number one drug problem in the United States, the National Parent-Teacher Association has initiated special pilot education projects to combat alcohol and cigarette smoking in five states.

The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA), a unit of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has provided funds for the National P-TA to work toward solutions for the growing problems related to alcoholism in young people.

The pilot programs are being conducted in Connecticut, Louisians, Mississippi, Texas and Wisconsin. To further its emphasis on alcohol abuse and alcoholism through public education programs the National P-TA has scheduled a workshop, "Alcohol: A Family Affair," for its annual convention May 20-23 at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis, Mo.

College Of Marin's Fast-Swimming 'Fish'

With a name like Dunker it's only natural he be a fine swimmer. The Dunker in this case is Bob, a sophomore at College of Marin who starred in swimming and water polo for the Tars.

But his contemporaries still came up with a nickname for him. "Some of the kids call me 'Fish,'" smiled the handsome, blond Dunker. During the school months he was competing in swimming and water polo and during the summer months he is a lifeguard at Stinson Beach. So you can see: he's in the water the year 'round. 'Fish' as a nickname fits him well.

BOB DUNKER

Dunker set College of Marin records in the 100-yard freestyle, 49.6, and the 100-yard backstroke, 59.3 and tied the Marin record in the 50 free, 22.6. He was anchor man on the team's 400-yard freestyle relay team which set a Marin record, 3:23.1. He was also named to the All-Camino Norte Conference water polo team last season.

"He is one of the top three or four swimmers I've had since coming here," said Marin swim coach Bob Justice, who has been coaching at the Kentfield school for nine years.

The broad-shouldered Dunker, who stands 6-foot-1 and weighs 185 pounds, is from Ohio and came to Marin with his parents after his graduation from high school. He has been in competitive swimming since he was seven, starting with the age group program.

Now with his junior college competition behind him, the 19-year-old Dunker is planning to enroll at San Jose State University and work toward his bachelor's degree and possibly a master's. And, of course, he will be competing in water polo. He says his days of competitive swimming are over, but he is going all out in water polo.

Quite a spokesman for College of Marin, Dunker feels that too many water polo players in high school are looking past Marin to four-year colleges. "Believe me, they won't be ready for water polo teams at UCLA or San Jose State," he said. "They should play at College of Marin first. if I had gone to UCLA or one of the bigger colleges out of high school I would have been on the bench."

During the summer of 1971 when he first came to California, Dunker practiced at De Anza Junior College under Art Lambert, the man who coached the U.S. Olympic team in 1968. After that summer he enrolled at College of Marin and helped build up a team which was really lacking in manpower.

At San Jose Bob will be studying to become a history and physical education teacher and then "I'll probably go back east or maybe the midwest and teach and coach water polo."

Dunker said he felt sports interest would be picking up. "The kids are getting back into sports. . .they're dropping the drug scene."

FORE FOR FORD — Yes, that was Ken Venturi in front of all those cameras around the 18th green at San Rafael's Peacock Gap Country Club yesterday. The cameras were whirring all morning catching Venturi blasting from the bunkers, putting and hitting some approach shots. The footage is to be used in a Ford commercial.

And while we're at Peacock Gap, I see that Harry Lawrence has been unretired for the sixth time in the P.G. pro shop. Lawrence, 71, is helping out until things get settled there following the resignation of Rob McQuade.

Ryan's No-Hitter On Super Fastballs

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — There was nothing flukey about Nolan Ryan's first no-hitter. He blew the Kansas City Royals away 3-0 and he looked like he could do the same thing for nine more innings Tuesday night.

"He's throwing the ball harder than anybody I've ever seen in my life," said John Mayberry, the major league RBI leader who struck out three times against the California flame-thrower.

Amos Otis, who knew Ryan when both were with the New York Mets, said, "I yelled at him all through the game. I called him every name you can think of and told him we were going to break it up. All he did was look at me and shake his head. The man derailed the Big Blue Bus."

Otis made the last out of the game, taking rightfielder Ken Berry to the warning track about 380 feet from home plate. But Berry, who was inserted into the game for defensive purposes in the seventh inning, made the catch and lifted the ball over his head in a victory salute. Ryan's teammates poured from the dugout to pump his hand.

Otis was the only Royal to pull a ball against Ryan, who struck out 12 and walked three. He grounded out routinely to shortstop Rudy Meoli in the seventh.

Kansas City catcher Carl Taylor said, "The man was throwing harder at the end than he was at the start. After the first time around, I thought I could hit him. But when I saw him the second time, I knew there was no way."

Ryan himself took the feat rather calmly.

"I've never felt like I was the type of pitcher to throw a nohitter," the 26-year-old righthander said. "My curve isn't the type that is overpowering. And I don't have the type of fastball that really moves like some left-handers throw."

The most difficult play turned in by the Angels came with two out in the eighth when pinchhitter Gail Hopkins lofted a soft line drive to center. Meoli raced back and grabbed the ball with his back to the infield.

Ryan's gem was the second no-hitter of the major league season. Kansas City rookie Steve Busby pitched the first, winning 3-0 at Detroit April 27.

Marichal Gets Call For Giants Tonight

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Padres and the high-flying San Francisco Giants play the rubber game in their three-game series tonight with Mike Cadlwelln 1-4, facing Juan Marichal, 4-3.

The Giants won Tuesday night 4-2 when Chris Speier led off the sixth inning with his fifth homer to spark a three-run rally. The Padres had upset the Giants Monday night 7-1.

The Giants remain atop the National League West 2 ½ games ahead of Houston, three ahead of Cincinnati and five ahead of Los Angeles.

Ron Bryant got the victory Tuesday night with relief help from Randy Moffitt. Bryant now has a 5-3 record. Moffitt got his seventh save.

Vicente Romo, 2-1, took the loss. He was lifted in the sixth after giving up all four runs and eight hits.

The Padres got their two runs in the eighth. Enzo Hernandez led off with a double and scored on Johnny Grubb's single. Moffitt came on and was touched for singles by Nate Colbert and Clarence Gaston and Grubb scored.

Speier opened the sixth inning with his homer. Willie McCovey fanned but then came successive singles by Ed Goodson, Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews for two more runs. The same trio single in the eighth off Gary Ross to make it 4-0.

Moffitt could have been in big trouble when he relieved Bryant but he got catcher Fred Kendall to hit into a double play with two runs in, two men on and only one out.

"I tried to jam him and got it in close," said Moffitt. "That was the big play."

Moffitt, of Mill Valley, revealed he is having trouble with an old knee injury. He broke his left kneecap last year and reinjured it four days ago. He says he has it bandaged so tightly that he can hardly bend the knee.

Goodson, the third baseman, complained about the lights.

"You just can't see a high bouncer at third on account of those lights," he said. "They're unbelievable."

At least two Giant hitters got lucky singles when the ball was lost in the lights by Dave Hilton, Padres third sacker.

After the game, Padre Manager Don Zimmer and General Manager Peter Bavasi had a private meeting about the lights. Bavasi said he is going to try to put filters on the lights to cut down on the glare at third.

A's Hoping To Forget Tough Loss

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's and Chicago White Sox parted ways today but the result of their latest meeting figures to linger a lot longer than both clubs might admit.

The White Sox, with a spectacular relief performance from former San Francisco Giant Steve Stone, scored a 6-5, 12-inning victory over the A's Tuesday night, then left for Minnesota for a five-game series with the Twins while the A's went to Anaheim for a two-game set with the Angels. Tonight's game will be televised by KTVU, Channel 2, starting at 8 o'clock.

"This was a big victory for us," said Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner, "because it came over a fine club and it gave us a little breathing room."

"It was the toughest loss of the year for us," said Dick Williams, the A's' skipper. "We should have won it but we didn't. I only hope the effects of the loss don't linger. We had a shot to win it four times and we didn't. You just can't do that against a club like Chicago. When you have a chance to beat them you should."

John Jeter, hitless in five previous at-bats, opened the Chicago 12th with a single and stole second, the Sox' fourth steal of the game. Pat Kelly, the American League's top hitter, doubled and Jeter scored with what proved to be the winning run, although the drama was yet to come.

SAFE ON THE PLAY — Redwood High School's Jeff Vogel (8) was safe on his slide into third base as the throw from Terra Linda shortstop Nick Mattos hit him in the back and bounced away from third baseman Greg Watroba (1) in the fifth inning yesterday. Vogel died on third and the Trojans went on to upset the already-crowned Marin County Athletic League champions, 4-1, at Albert Field.

Marinite Sets Judo Fund Push

Mel Augustine, juvenile supervisor in the Marin County Probation Department, is starting a fund drive to help send the 12-man U.S. judo team to the world championships in Lucerne, Switzerland.

Augustine, president of the Pacific Association, Amateur Athletic Union and manager of the U.S. judo team who will be in charge of the delegation in Switzerland, is about $2,000 short of the goal needed.

Total cost for the trip, June 4 through 26, is approximately $16,000. The U.S. Olympic Committee has put up $5,000 and the U.S. Judo Federation has put up another $5,000. Augustine has come up with about $2,000 worth of equipment and uniforms and the judoists themselves are going to pay another $2,000 out of their own pockets. That still leaves Augustine $2,000 short and would force him to cut two of the men off the squad.

The judoists who will represent the U.S. come from Illinois, Texas, Tennessee, New Jersey, parts of California and one as far away as a U.S. air base in the Phillipines. The Northern Californians on the team are Tom Martin of Stockton and Mark McCready of San Francisco.

Contributions, tax deductable, should be mailed to: U.S. International Judo Team in care of Bank of America, 1201 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael 94901, according to Augustine.

Hate Mail Continues For Aaron

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hank Aaron, the Atlanta Brave's super slugger who is fast approaching Babe Ruth's career record of 714 home runs, says he receives hate mail every day berating him because he is a black man approaching a white man's record.

"If I were a white man, all America would be proud of me," Aaron said. "But I'm black. You have to be black in America to know how sick some people are. I've always thought racism a problem, even with as much progress as America has made."

Aaron, in Houston for a series with the Astros, is just 31 homers away from tying Ruth's legendary mark. He says the intensity of the mail increases the closer he comes to the record.

"Last week I got 416 pieces of mail one day and 600-some-odd the next. I'd say the ratio is 60-40, that 60 per cent of it is of a racist nature," the 39-year-old star said.

"It's very offensive. They call me 'Nigger' and every other bad word you can come up with," he said.

All-League Honor For Marin's Olson

College of Marin's versatile Tom Olson was named to the first team on the Camino Norte Conference all-star baseball squad announced today, while the Tars' Don Bianchini and Jim Thompson were chosen for the second team.

The team was chosen by the league's coaches, who earlier had polled their players, according to Marin coach Vic Petreshene. Thompson was selected as an outfielder, while Olson and Bianchini were picked as utility men.

"The coaches decided about three years ago to create the utility category for players who were used at several positions," Petreshene said. "It is an honorable spot."

Olson and Bianchini each pitched, caught, and played first base, third base and the outfield. Olson hit .341 and Bianchini .337 in one play, with Olson's five home runs leading the league.

As pitchers, Bianchini had a 4-2 record and 2.10 earned run average, while Olson was 3-3 and 3.64.

2 Seals' Stars Ink Contracts

OAKLAND (UPI) — Goaltender Gilles Meloche and rookie wing Hilliard Graves, two of the outstanding players of the California Golden Seals, have signed multi-year contracts.

At the same time, Coach-General Manager Fred Glover selected nine juniors in the annual National Hockey League amateur draft at Montreal. All were big, with the smallest at 5-foot-11 and 180 pounds.

Tuesday's signing of Meloche and Graves, both 22, brings to seven the number of players signed to 1973-74 Seals contracts. Others signed earlier are Joey Johnston, Walt McKechnie, Craig Patrick, Reggie Leach and Bob Stewart.

First player picked by the Seals in the amateur draft was Jeff Jacques, 20, a 5-11, 185-pound center from St. Catherine's of the Ontario Junior A's. He scored 32 goals and 46 assists last season.

Next two players picked were defenseman Ron Serafini, 19, of St. Catherine's and left wing Jim Moxey, 20, of the Hamilton Red Wings. Moxey had 40 goals and 40 assists.

Terra Linda Beats Champ Redwood, 4-1

Lee Peterson and Mark Collischonn fueled Terra Linda High School's drive for second place yesterday by batting and pitching the Trojans to a 4-1 victory over champion Redwood in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Albert Field.

Terra Linda's fourth straight triumph moved the Trojans into a tie for second at 8-5 with San Rafael and Novato, and broke Redwood's four-game winning streak. The Giants are 11-2 with one game left.

Peterson hit a line-drive single to left field in the fifth inning to score two runs, then knocked in another with a sacrifice fly in the sixth, on which Redwood center fielder Mike Connor made a spectacular diving catch.

Collischonn saved the victory for Kevin Kirby by entering with the bases loaded and nobody out in the seventh inning and getting one batter to pop up and another to hit into a double play. In his last two relief appearances, Collischonn has earned two saves by facing six batters and recording eight outs, having induced two double plays.

Drake Surprises Novato Nine, 2-1

Last-place Drake High School scored twice on squeeze bunts while pitcher Don Asay held second-place Novato at bay for a 2-1 Marin County Athletic League baseball upset yesterday at Novato.

Asay struck out six and allowed five hits for Drake (2-11), which dropped Novato into a three-way tie for second at 8-5.

Jeff Brauner squeezed home Matt Elliott with a bunt about eight feet in front of home plate in the seventh inning. Elliott had doubled and taken third on a sacrifice by Bob Mayer.

Drake scored in the fifth as Warren Pino singled and his pinch-runner, Carlo Parachini, eventually came home from third on Ron Nerviani's squeeze. Novato tied the game in the sixth as Joe Robinson doubled, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Dave Brazell's sacrifice fly.

'Scoreboard Game' In The Astrodome

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

They played the "scoreboard game" at the Houston Astrodome again Tuesday night, and Astros' General Manager Spec Richardson figures to be the biggest loser.

The promotion department of the Astros, under the direction of Richardson, delivered a rather scathing attack at National League umpires Bruce Froemming and Augie Donatelli Tuesday night in bold letters on the $2 million Astrodome scoreboard.

Richardson became upset over a call which went against the Astros in the ninth inning of their 4-1 loss to the Atlanta Braves and ordered the publicity department to post the following notice on the scoreboard for everyone to see:

"Manager Leo Durocher has announced the game is being played under protest and that umpires Froemming and Donatelli have blown decisions in two of the last three games."

The play started with Atlanta runners on first and second with one out in the ninth. Dave Johnson grounded to third baseman Doug Rader, who tossed it to Tommy Helms at second to start a double play,

Helms relayed to first baseman Lee May to apparently end the inning but Froemming ruled Helms did not touch second and Atlanta's Mike Lum was safe. May didn't see Froemming's signal and routinely tossed the ball to first base umpire Paul Pryor as Dusty Baker of the Braves went from second to third.

Pryor said he dropped the ball when he saw Froemming's signal and Baker raced home before May could retrieve the ball. Helms cussed Froemming and was ejected.

Durocher protested the run scoring after Pryor had caught the ball.

"He had the ball in his hand two or three seconds," Durocher said of Pryor. "If he throws the ball back to May, May throws the ball to the plate and gets the guy."

Richardson, flushed with anger, ordered the message displayed and more than 11,000 fans stood to applaud it. Many of them threw paper cups and other things at the umpires.

Donatelli, though not involved in the play, was included in the message because of a call he made on a home run by Cincinnati's Bobby Tolan Sunday in the Reds' 2-1 victory. Tolan hit a home run which was ruled fair by Donatelli but was considered foul by the Astros' players.

Pryor called it "bush" and said it was the worst thing he'd seen in his 27 years as an umpire, including his time in the minors. Plate umpire Ed Vargo, the crew chief, also was incensed, and said it was inciting the fans to riot.

The Braves actually didn't need the controversial call to win. Dusty Baker hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning and Phil Niekro, making his first start of the season, pitched a five-hitter to spark the victory.

In other National League games, Cincinnati downed Los Angeles 4-1, Pittsburgh nipped Montreal 9-8 in 11 innings, Atlanta topped Houston 4-1, San Francisco beat San Diego 4-2, St. Louis whipped Philadelphia 8-4 and Chicago downed New York 4-3.

Nolan Ryan pitched the first no-hitter of his career as California blanked Kansas City 3-0, Minnesota whipped Texas 9-5, Chicago edged Oakland 6-5 in 12 innings and Milwaukee topped Cleveland 2-1 in 17 innings in the only American League action. Detroit at New York and Baltimore at Boston were postponed by rain.

Novato, Terra Linda Win In Golf

Doug Henderson and Tom Lamore of Novato High School each shot one-under-par 33s yesterday to offset an identical score by Tamalpais' Steve Gaddis and give the Hornets a 180-198 Marin County Athletic League victory at Mill Valley Golf Course.

In yesterday's other league match, Terra Linda (10-1) kept its hold on first place with a 198-220 triumph over San Marin at Indian Valley, as Doug Talley was medalist with a 36. The Trojans are one match ahead of San Rafael and Novato (both 9-2), and face San Rafael today on the Bulldogs' course at Peacock Gap.

San Rafael spent yesterday disposing of Balboa of San Francisco in what Bulldog coach Marion Howze called "sort of a fun match" at Peacock, 228-297. Sophomore Greg Bryson shot a 39 for San Rafael.

San Rafael Edges Tam In Baseball

San Rafael High School scored five times yesterday in what may have been the Marin County Athletic League's strangest inning of the year to take a 5-4 baseball victory over host Tamalpais.

The uprising in the fifth inning erased a 4-0 Tam lead and moved San Rafael into a three-way tie for second at 8-5 in the league. Tam is 3-10 and has lost six straight.

The first four runs in the San Rafael fifth scored without benefit of a hit, the result of two errors, three consecutive walks, a catcher's interference, a sacrifice fly, a passed ball and another error. Steve D'Ambra concluded the scoring with an RBI single.

Ducey Hurls Two-Hit Victory

Joe Ducey pitched a two-hit shutout and inaugurated the winning rally with a single as Marin Catholic High School took a 2-0 Marin County Athletic League baseball victory over visiting San Marin yesterday.

Ducey struck out 11, walked only two and retired 12 straight batters at one stretch, as the Wildcats moved into a fifth-place tie with the Mustangs at 6-7.

With two out in the fourth inning, Ducey singled, moved to third on two walks and scored as Tim Haley singled deep into the hole at shortstop. A wild pitch scored Jeff Knotts with the other run.

is lined a shot off pitcher Cy Acosta's leg to fill the bases.

Stone then entered for his first relief appearance ever.

"I knew I had to keep them from hitting the ball anywhere out of the infield," he said, "or we were through. I made up my mind to throw strikes, mostly curveball strikes, and it worked out just fine."

Stone struck out Joe Rudi on four curveballs and Gene Tenace on three fastballs after falling behind on the count at 2-0.

"Sure I'd like to be a starter as I was with the Giants," Stone said , "but as long as I can make a contribution, even in relief, it's all right with me. I just want to help the club."

Hot Week For Hall In Minors

Marin City's Clifford Hall batted a sizzling .417 for the week and was easily the top performer among the six Marin County baseball players toiling last week in the minor leagues.

Player Periscope statistical service figures from Novato showed that Hall, a Chicago Cubs' outfielder with Quincy, Ill. in the Midwest-D League, had five safeties in 12 at-bats good for one double and a run batted in and raised his average to .280.

Novato's Tom Thomas, performing for the Pittsburgh Pirates' Salem, Va. team in the Carolina-A League, batted .250 for the seven-day period. The outfielder had a triple among his six hits collected in 24 at bats. Thomas drove in three runs and scored two more and now is batting .298.

Another Novatan, outfielder-first baseman John Dolinsek had batting difficulties last week. The Houston Astros' property at Denver in the American Association, AAA level, hit a paltry .192 with five hits in 26 at-bats; his hits included a double, triple and homer. He also had two RBIs and scored five runs. For the season, Dolinsek has a .255 average.

San Rafael's Dewey Forry had a light work load last week as a relief pitcher with the Los Angeles Dodgers's team at Bakersfield in the California-A League. In his lone appearance, he faced one batter, surrendering a hit. However, he maintained his sparkling 0.00 earned-run average and 3-0 won-lost log.

Novato's Russ Dillon, a pitcher with Savannah of the Southern League, AA level, was 0-1 in four games with a 7.50 ERA in the Atlanta Braves' organization this season.

Al Curtiss of Fairfax, laboring with the Oakland Athletics' Burlington, Iowa squad in the Midwest-A League, was saddled with a meager .071 average.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Helpful Hints On Houseboats

Houseboating was big all through the Sixties and although it hit a slump in the recession of 1969-70, once again, the demand is getting ahead of the supply. Many people who ordered a houseboat last fall are getting delivery this spring.

Five years ago houseboats accounted for less than two per cent of the boating market. This year they could account for 12 per cent.

It's difficult to pinpoint the changes that have caused this upsurge in interest. Of course houseboats are much faster than they used to be, they are much more efficient, roomy, better value, safer and trouble free.

One thing that has appealed to a lot of new buyers is the fact that the new breed of houseboats will handle rough water. There was a time when a houseboat was a flat, unseaworthy barge but the modern boats have deep-V, or similar rough water hulls, and they will take a lot of punishment.

However, houseboats are not designed for hurricanes, and although one was driven across the Gulfstream at 35 miles per hour through six-foot waves in the Miami to Nassau race, (it came through unscathed) this sort of thing is not to be recommended.

Houseboats are for leisurely cruising along sheltered waterways, where in quiet relaxation one can enjoy the fishing and the scenery. However it is comforting to know that if you do get caught out in a blow you have a boat that can handle it.

Houseboating is a little different, and brings up a new set of questions from readers:

Q. I'm told I'll have to wait until next year for the particular model of houseboat I want. What's happened?

A. This is how far behind a couple of the U.S. manufacturers are with orders for some of the most popular models. The makers of such things as houseboats usually make enough of one model early in the year to supply what they estimate their dealers will sell. Then they go on to another model or something else. If they make a poor guess, and many did, it takes a long time to set up the production facilities again to produce more.

Q. If I buy a houseboat can I anchor it anywhere?

A. No. You can't anchor, for instance, so as to impede traffic in waterways and channels. But there are hundreds of thousands of miles of quiet, sheltered, interesting and picturesque waters where you can anchor.

Q. Do I pay taxes on a houseboat parked near shore?

A. You don't pay realty taxes as for a house or building sitting on real estate. But in some areas, notably Florida, you can be taxed for the possession of a houseboat.

Q. I want to build my own houseboat. I'm told building on pontoons is simplest. Where can I get them?

A. Write Weeres Industries Inc., P.O. Box 98, St. Cloud, Minn., 56301.

Q. I've built a summer cabin, can I build a houseboat?

A. If you build it on a platform on pontoons it's much the same as building another cabin, and is fairly simple carpentry. However, the pontoon boat is not likely to be as speedy and as versatile as the more modern designs built into V-hulls.

Q. If I get a houseboat, must other boats get out of my way?

A. A houseboat is still a boat and must follow the rules of the road just like any other.

Q. Are houseboats economical to operate?

A. At relatively slow speeds operating costs won't break you. But I once towed a couple of water skiers with a big powerful 4-½ ton houseboat that would skim along at 35 mph. It used a gallon of gasoline for every three quarters of a mile at top speed. But at its economical cruise speed, it did five miles per gallon.

Q. Is there a danger in houseboats?

A. One that should be mentioned strongly. If you are caught out in a sudden squall with wind and waves high, stay headed into the wind. To try to turn the boat so that you are broadside to the wind and waves is just asking to be capsized. I clip news stories of such happenings and I have one that reports 12 persons drowned, eight of them children, on an usually quiet inland lake when the skipper tried to turn a houseboat in a squall.

Yvonne Hits Triple In Babe Ruth Game

The rule book says that Babe Ruth baseball is for boys only. But R. W. Case of Trenton, N.J., international president of the organization, said in a telephone interview that his office will take no action to keep Yvonne from playing unless a formal complaint is filed.

And the coaches of the eight teams in Cabarrus County have not objected, so it looks as if Yvonne, an attractive tomboy, will continue in right field for the South Cabarrus Optimists.

Case said that times have changed since Babe Ruth baseball for teen-aged boys started in 1951. He said that when his 33-member board meets again in the fall he may suggest a study of whether girls should be allowed to play. Almost 300,000 boys in the United States and 16 foreign countries play in the league.

Yvonne got two hits in three at-bats and caught some fly balls easily as her team won its opening game 10-6 Monday night.

Comeback Win For San Rafael

Despite losing the first two singles matches, San Rafael High School collected itself and went on to a 4-3 victory over Marin Catholic yesterday in a Marin County Athletic League tennis match.

Other matches saw league-leading Redwood blank Drake, 7-0; Tamalpais whitewash Novato, 7-0; and Terra Linda overwhelm San Marin, 6-1.

Though Marin Catholic's John Doherty and Tony Trembley captured the Nos. 1 and 2 singles, San Rafael's Larry Levy, Pete Neuwald and John (Spike) Harry triumphed in singles and Bob Hoffman and Dave Peugh added the necessary doubles win.

Redwood (11-0) ran its undefeated streak in league competition to 76 team matches, and has lost only one individual match in 77 this year, that to Terra Linda. The Trojans (10-1) kept pace with Redwood yesterday, eyeing a rematch with the Giants in the season finale.

Lockhart said Miller has now qualified as the candidate from Marin County for the Pop Warner national scholarship award.

Miller, 13 was chosen out of 14 other candidates by a College of Marin faculty committee. A member of the eighth grade class at Hill Junior High School in Novato, Miller is a straight-A student and a class representative on the student council.

He played two seasons of Pop Warner football under coach Gene Ferrari of the Novato Junior Hornets and Novato Yellowjackets. Miller played both ways in several positions; quarterback, guard, tackle and end.

Rodgers Gets Canadian Offer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska has been offered a multi-year contract at more than $100,000 annually by Montreal of the Canadian Football League, his agents said Tuesday.

Steve Perram, vice president of World Sports Management, which represents the Heisman Trophy winner, said, however, the negotiating team would entertain a counteroffer from the San Diego Chargers of the National Football League, who picked Rodgers in the first round of the pro draft.

We think a car dealer should do more than just accept your money

That's why we did not raise our prices on cars in stock when the dollar was devalued. Fortunately, we have a few Audis and Porsches left to offer at the old prices. You'd better hurry, though.

Drop by and we will show you more good things.

Rancho Clinches Crown

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park clinched its third consecutive Sonoma County League baseball championship yesterday, as Jerry Wachowiak pitched a three-hitter over visiting Analy of Sebastopol for a 1-0 victory.

In other Southern Sonoma high school diamond action yesterday, Petaluma was mathematically eliminated from the North Bay League race despite a 13-6 win over visiting Santa Rosa.

Wachowiak, a senior southpaw, allowed just four Tigers to reach base safely on two singles, a double and an error. He walked none and fanned six.

The Cougars scored their only run in the third inning on a one-out double to right field by Tim Peterson which scored Ray Jones from first. Jones was on base due to Kelly Huck's only walk of the game. Huck also gave up just three hits.

Petaluma's scoring was a little more prolific, if not artistic, than Rancho Cotate's, as the Trojans scored nine unearned runs off six Panther errors.

With the win the Trojans raised their NBL mark to 8-5, but co-leaders Napa and Vallejo both won yesterday to up their records to 10-3 with just one game left.

McPhail's Distribution Center Will Celebrate Grand Opening

McPhail's new half-million-dollar retail and distribution center in Petaluma will celebrate its grand opening this weekend from Friday through Sunday.

David G. Stephens of Mill Valley, president of McPhail's Inc., announced that the grand opening hours will be 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday, 9 to 6 on Saturday and 9 to 5 on Sunday. Customers who register at the store during the grand opening will be eligible for door prizes to be awarded on Sunday. John M. MacPhail Jr. of San Rafael, grandson of the founder of the company, will manage the new Petaluma center.

The 26,000-square-foot building is located on a five-acre parcel at 1000 Lakeville Street, at the Highway 101 Petaluma overpass. It will serve as the central warehouse for the appliance, television, propane and fuel oil divisions of McPhail Inc. in both Marin and Sonoma Counties.

Opening of the new center is the latest expansion for the 89-year-old firm, which was established in San Rafael in 1884 as a livery stable by Neil McPhail. The company has its main office in San Rafael and a branch in Santa Rosa.

Besides offering a complete line of appliances, television sets, stereo components, and services for these products, McPhail's also has a wide range of fuel oils, propane, sand and gravel, ready-mix concrete, aggregates, and other related building products and construction supplies.

St. Clair founded the firm with the late W. Shephard French in March of 1921 and has headed the company ever since. "There will be no material change in the operation of the company," said St. Clair. "I will continue my usual office hours and will be concentrating on giving my personal attention to clients who have over the years favored this office with their business."

St. Clair lives with his wife, Florence, in Novato.

DEPENDABLE ALUMINUM Window Manufacturing Co. at 23 Lisbon Street in San Rafael will build new and expanded quarters at 30 Castro Street between the San Rafael firehouse and Francisco Dodge Center. The new building will be completed about August.

Designed by Wagstaff & McDonald of San Anselmo, the new facility will have 11,240 square feet of office, manufacturing and warehouse space. The window manufacturers will occupy 2,500 square feet, with the remaining space to be leased.

Steve Metcho and his family started the business in 1948 in South San Francisco as the Dependable Weatherstrip Co. and moved its operations to San Rafael in 1959. In 1971, the Metchos expanded into the manufacture of aluminum windows and moved to the present location at 23 Lisbon Street.

Both Dependable Aluminum and Dependable Weatherstrip Co. are family businesses operated by Metcho, his wife Vera, and their three sons, Steve Jr., Rodney and Martin.

Small Gain On Market In Moderate Turnover

Brokers said investors were taking some comfort from an advance in the dollar on foreign currency markets and a corresponding fall in gold prices due to profit-taking.

Shortly before noon, the Dow Jones industrial average had gained 1.51 to 918.95 . Winners outpaced losers, 649 to 480, of 1,538 issues across the ticker.

Two-hour volume reached 6,610,000 shares, compared to 10,350,000 shares changing hands by noon yesterday.

On the American Stock Exchange, prices drifted slightly lower in moderate activity. Teleprompter headed the actives, off 1 ¼ to 16 ⅛ on 31,400 shares.

Vacancies In Rental Property Up

Housing vacancies are on the rise, especially in rental apartments, according to a housing survey conducted by the Federal Home Loan Bank of San Francisco.

The bank survey covered the housing situation in the 11th district, including metropolitan areas in California, Arizona and Nevada.

In the San Francisco-Oakland metropolitan area, the latest survey taken in June of 1972 showed a multi-family vacancy rate of 4.1 per cent, compared with 2.6 per cent vacancy rate in June of 1971.

This, however, was one of the lowest vacancy rates among all metropolitan areas surveyed by the Federal Home Loan Bank. Stockton has the highest vacancy rate of 10.1 per cent, and Monterey the lowest rate of 4 per cent.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Broker Holds Stocks Safely

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Our securities are held by our broker and we would like to know if you recommend this practice. This is very convenient but how is the safety factor? — R.F.

A. Your brokerage account is at one of the largest national retail firms and you have no cause for concern. There are now several built-in safety factors in the securities industries, measures which have been adopted to protect investors against a possible brokerage failure.

First, your account is covered by the Securities Investor Protection Corp. (SIPC), which was set up after the credit crunch of 1970. Under this insurance plan an investor's account is protected up to $50,000 including up to $20,000 in cash. A further protection is afforded investors by an "early warning system" set up by the New York Stock Exchange. Member firms are required to report monthly to the NYSE on their financial condition. Capital requirements have been tightened as well.

Q. What is lettered stock? — G.D.

A. Lettered stocks are unregistered or restricted securities for which no public market exists. In order to sell such stock publicly, it must be registered under the Securities Act of 1933 or exempted therefrom. Some growth mutual funds hold limited quantities of lettered or unregistered stock. In valuing portfolios, these funds assign a fair market value based on prospects for the issuing company or based on the market price of a similar unrestricted security of the same company.

Because of the limited marketability, buyers are able to obtain substantial discounts on purchases of restricted stock usually from a young company in need of capital. An open-end fund, which must stand ready to redeem shares at all times, limits such investments in order to maintain its liquidity. Careful reading of a mutual fund's prospectus will ascertain the percentage of assets actually invested in lettered stock and what limitations the fund observes in this area. Generally speaking, most funds which invest in these issues have an upper limit of 10 per cent of assets.

Ways Are Eyed To Repair Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) — The space agency reported today soaring temperatures have made the interior of Skylab 1 uninhabitable and said a spacewalk by the first astronauts to visit the station probably would be necessary to correct the problem.

Flight director Chuck Lewis said engineers at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., and backup Skylab 1 Commander Russell L. Schweickart would begin tests today on a jury-rigged sunshield that might be deployed outside the orbiting station to cool it.

Lewis said the space agency is still trying to meet a proposed Sunday launch date for sending the first three spacemen up to Skylab. But he said it was "marginal" whether the repair equipment could be readied and checked out by that time.

Lewis is head of a special team assembled yesterday to determine where the emergency repair equipment could be stowed inside the Apollo command ship in which astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz will blast off for Skylab.

Reporting on latest Skylab developments in a news conference at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Lewis said temperatures inside the orbiting workshop (OWS) were well over 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Internal temps are too high to inhabit the OWS," he said. "It doesn't mean we wouldn't want (an astronaut) to go into the OWS, but it does mean we wouldn't want to use that as our living quarters."

One proposal, which would cool the workshop down enough to make it habitable, was a sunshade probably made of aluminized plastic. One of the astronauts would extend it along the side of Skylab where a vital built-in heat shield ripped away during the station's launch Monday.

"It would be just like taking a curtain and attaching it to one end of the vehicle and pushing it down to the other," Lewis said.

This was one of hundreds of ideas, ranging from the simple to the exotic, dreamed up by teams of space agency engineers and evaluated during crash working sessions which extended throughout the night.

Among the other far-out solutions proposed to save the $2.6 billion space station project were inflating a big balloon between the sun and Skylab to cast a cooling shadow, and wrapping a thermal blanket around the 110-ton tubular spaceship like a loose-fitting blanket.

Lewis said if the sunshade idea is adopted, an astronaut would stand in the Skylab hatch and use aluminum rods with "T" shaped cross braces to push the shade down the vehicle. The shade would be about 40 feet long and 10 or 12 feet wide. After it was extended, the rods to which it was attached would be clamped to the Skylab superstructure.

If this worked to cool the station down, he said, the astronauts would attempt to follow as closely as possible their normal 28-day flight plan aboard Skylab. A chief restriction would be how their electric generating equipment—cut to half its planned capacity by the same mishap that caused the overheating problem — performed.

Should the sunshade fail, the astronauts would be restricted to living in their Apollo command ship and entering the space station living quarters for only brief periods of time. They will carry an eight-day food supply aboard Apollo and might be able to retrieve more from inside Skylab if the space station food supply remains frozen, he said.

In an effort to lower temperatures in Skylab a little in the meantime, mission controllers sent remote-control signals to the vehicle to tilt it at an angle so only the nose was exposed to the sun.

They aimed the 118-foot long station so its four good solar-cell wings would still get a little sunlight and keep electrical equipment aboard the station alive.

The proposed spacewalk would be the first ever to repair a vehicle in orbit.

The astronauts, still under preflight quarantine to keep them from getting sick, flew from Cape Kennedy to Houston Tuesday to join in the crash program seeking a way to keep Skylab alive.

Gold Fever Cools Down In Europe

LONDON (UPI) — Gold's price dropped and the dollar's value climbed today as some of the gold fever went out of European financial markets.

In London gold was fixed at $106.50 an ounce in the afternoon price-pegging session. This was $4.50 lower than the morning price, a dollar or two above the figure at which most trades were made, and about $8 lower than the price of most of Tuesday's sales.

The dollar firmed in late afternoon trading in London, Paris, Zurich, Frankfurt and other European trading centers. It went up by amounts valued in fractions of cents.

Markets all over Europe were calmer than Tuesday's frantic sessions. There was no repetition of the market pressures which in the first two days of this week buffeted the dollar to new lows but sent gold soaring to the highest price in history.

Dealers said wealthy investors from the Middle East were now switching from gold back to dollars, restoring strength to the American currency.

In London, the world's main free market for gold, the first of two daily official price settings put the precious metal at $111 an ounce. The price setting was up 50 cents from Tuesday's closing price, and was the highest fixed price in history.

But it was lower than the dizzying $128.50 an ounce which gold touched at one point Tuesday in Paris, and lower than the $114 at which gold changed hands in London during Tuesday's trading.

The British pound slid lower as the dollar strengthened. Trading opened at higher rates, but it quickly took less and less dollars to buy a pound.

While a pound cost $2.57 and more Tuesday, the price dropped below $2.56 today and traded at $2.558 at midmorning.

"Conditions are much quieter" in the markets, one gold dealer said. He said "interest is still keen" in gold, but the price "moved around quite a bit."

"It was definitely Arab buying of the dollar that sent sterling lower," said one major foreign exchange manager.

In Paris, French and American officials discounted the dollar devaluation speculation which drove markets feverishly upward earlier this week.

Canadian Girls Shot In Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Zambian troops firing across the Victoria Falls gorge into Rhodesia Tuesday killed two Canadian girls and wounded an American, a government spokesman said today.

One of the Canadian girls was killed instantly, the spokesman said. The other was hit and fell into the Zambezi River but her body has not yet been recovered, he said.

The spokesman said an American man with the tourist group was seriously wounded in the stomach.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The Proper Discard Presents Problem In Action At Slam

Trumping your partner's ace is commonly supposed to be the unforgivable sin in bridge. Remember, however, that bridge is not life. At the bridge table, success washes away all sin.

PONDERS DUMMY

West opens the king of hearts against the ambitious slam contract. And South wonders what to discard from dummy.

Suppose he postpones the decision. He ruffs the first heart in dummy and leads a trump to the ace. Then the plan is to cash the ace of hearts and lead a spade to force West into the lead.

What does West return?

WEST'S PLAN

West will return whichever suit has been discarded from the dummy. This return will give declarer three tricks in that suit, but South will still have to lose a trick to the queen of the remaining suit.

For example, suppose dummy discards a diamond on the ace of hearts. West is then given a trump trick and returns a diamond. This gives South three diamond tricks, but he must still eventually lose a club trick.

ONLY SOLUTION

The solution to the problem is to trump the ace of hearts in the dummy! To put it another way, dummy discards a trump.

West is then given his trump trick and cannot find a safe return. If he leads away from either queen, declarer takes all four tricks in that suit. If West instead leads another heart, dummy ruffs while South discards a club. South takes the top clubs and ruffs a club, establishing dummy's last club for another discard.

And now a word of advice: Save this kind of "fancy" play for holidays. Don't look for chances to trump your partner's ace.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one heart and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- Q 9 6 4 3
♥- None
♦- K 7 6 5
♣- K 9 8 7.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You plan to bid the hand very cautiously since your void in partner's suit is a liability rather than an asset.

Lighthouse In 112th Year

MIAMI (AP) — For more than 112 years, Jupiter lighthouse has kept vigil over Atlantic waters, warning mariners of dangerous coquina shoals.

The 105-foot tower's beacon first was lighted July 10, 1860. The light was darkened during the Civil War and its mechanism hidden by Southern sympathizers. Relighted June 28, 1866, it has not missed a night since.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Birthday news! Can you guess when today's notables were born by the headlines of that year?

1 - HENRY FONDA was born the year President Theodore Roosevelt ended the war between Japan and Russia by bringing them to the peace table in Washington, D.C. It also was the same year Zane Grey published "The Spirit of the Border." Years later Fonda would be starring in war movies and westerns — "War and Peace," "The Immortal Sergeant," "How the West Was Won," and "The Ox-Bow Incident." His birthplace: Grand Island, Neb.

2 - WOODY HERMAN was born the year the songs "Peg o' My Heart" and "You Made Me Love You" were most popular. It also was the year Teddy Roosevelt attacked an exhibition of modern European art as "lunatic." Woody later would be making popular music history as a swing band leader, selling one million copies of his recording of "Woodchopper's Ball." His birthplace: Milwaukee, Wis.

3 - LIBERACE was born the year President Woodrow Wilson went to Paris to attend the peace conference ending World War I. It also was the year of such tunes as "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm" and "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles." Twenty-three years later Liberace would be catching the fancy of TV viewers in Los Angeles as the pianist whose flashy clothes and candelabra would be his trademark. His birthplace: West Allis, Wis.

4 - BILLY MARTIN was born the year the New York "Yankees" blanked the St. Louis "Cardinals" in World Series play. It also was the year Herbert Hoover defeated Alfred E. Smith for the U.S. presidency. Years later Martin would bat an amazing .333 in four World Series for the Yankees, then go on to manage the Minnesota Twins and the Detroit Tigers: Birthplace: Berkeley, Calif.

City Council Loser Seeks Planning Seat

Richard C. Fox, a research chemist who made an unsuccessful bid for a San Rafael City Council seat last month, has applied for one of two vacancies on the San Rafael Planning Commission.

The seats of commissioners Albert J. Boro and Thomas R. O'Toole expire June 30 and the city council has issued a call for applicants.

The 45-year-old Fox, who gained 1,144 votes at the polls April 17, billed himself then as a "conservative conservationist" and declared the city had been guilty of poor planning in the past.

The need for long range planning, Fox said yesterday, has prompted him to apply for a commission appointment. "I like to be generous but let's face it, city planning hasn't been hot," he said.

"I guess I can plan as well as the best of them," said Fox, a member of the city's citizen advisory committee on the general plan. "I want to bring a concern for long range planning to the commission."

As in his council campaign, Fox stressed the need to require open space dedications of developers and creation of a park and recreational area in the Canal Area.

Fox received his Bachelor's degree in chemistry from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and won doctorate honors from the University of Illinois. He is a 17-year resident of San Rafael and lives at 12 Humboldt Street.

Lease Plan Goes Before Marin Board

The Marin Community College District Board will be asked to approve leasing part of Pacheco School from the Novato Unified School District for its Indian Valley Colleges classes at its meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in room 101 of the science building at College of Marin.

The Novato district is closing Pacheco School because of falling enrollment. The college district's Indian Valley Colleges classes currently are strung out in San Jose Junior High School, Novato High School and Hamilton Air Force Base.

The proposed lease will cost the district $12,000 a year for eight classrooms, restrooms, office and corridor space totalling 19,200 square feet. Presently the district pays $5,000 for use of San Jose and Novato High classrooms and gets Hamilton AFB facilities free.

Other items on a long agenda include an agreement with the North Marin Municipal Water District for water services to the Indian Valley Colleges campus and going to bid for phase one of the North Marin campus buildings.

Country Music Invades New York

By JO ANN LEVINE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, N. Y. — "Like a moon in June. . .like a fork needs a spoon. . .like a song needs a tune" — do country music and New York go together?

The very presence of the country couple Tammy Wynette ("Stand by Your Man") and George Jones ("White Lightning") singing their "We Go Together" song in Philharmonic Hall twangs of a big "yes."

After all, they were singing the first country-music concert ever to be held in Lincoln Center; on the first day a mayor had proclaimed as "Country Music Day in New York City;" in the first week a slick city magazine had featured the "Cornball Invasion" on its cover; as well as the first full month a New York radio station had ever broadcast all-country music.

Country music and New York may not only go together, but New York may need country music more than country music needs New York.

Country music is simple words and simple stories about children and love and heartbreak ("sad sloggin' tear-jerkers" George Jones calls them).

"Country music is not tearing down music, but it offers hope," says John Van Buren Sullivan, general manager of WHN. "Many of the people who have liked this music over the years have had little but hope." Sullivan thinks New Yorkers can relate to such music. "Why the man on Wall Street," he said, "is hoping his stock doesn't go down."

"I'll just keep on falling in love 'til I get it right," pledges the persistent and often pleading Tammy Wynette, who like many country singers is a symbol of hope. A hairdresser, who loved to sing, she ended up marrying her long-time favorite singer, George Jones, and in the past five years has sold nine million records and grossed more than $30 million.

As for the listener, "country music brings out the best in a person," says Ray Macken, who drove in from New Jersey with his two sons, his brother, and sister, to hear the Wynette-Jones concert. "Rock and roll can hold younger people for a short time. . .But it can lead a person wrong. Its words and lyrics are not clean, its thoughts can stray you. . .This is wholesome music. Can't you just see how much in love Tammy Wynette and George Jones are?"

Some record stores in the New York area are already reporting an increase in country-music sales as part of the potential 19 million people are being exposed to it over WHN.

The Country Music Association (CMA) in Nashville claims that 16 per cent of all records sold in the U.S. are country-music records. That is not surprising when one discovers that in 1961 there were 81 full-time country stations in the U.S. and Canada.

By April, 1972, there were 806 full-time country stations, and an additional 1,046 stations that programmed country music three hours or more per day as well as 990 stations which played three hours or less of the music. (Since WHN's format wanders off into talk shows and ballgames, it is considered by CMA to be a part-time country station.)

In 1967 radio station WBRZ in Hackensack, N.J., picked up the Nashville sound, but the station had a weak signal, never got the support WHN is getting from the country musicians and Nashville performers — "Hackensack sounded too much like Nashville" — and until now the area has been without a country station since 1970.

The sound of country in New York is a smoother sound, and the twanginess of a Ray Acuff or an Ernest Tubb takes a back seat to the kind of country music which has jumped over into the "Top 40." These include records like Glen Campbell's "By the Time I Get to Phoenix," Ray Price's "For the Good Times," Jeannie C. Riley's "Harper Valley PTA," and the "Dueling Banjos Theme" from the movie "Deliverance."

The popularity of such singers as Glen Campbell, Johnny Cash, June Carter, Loretta Lynn, Wayland Jennings, Sonny James and Kris Kristofferson has broadened the public acceptance of country music.

Many feel that New York will change country music, slick it down, smooth it out, and take away its genuineness. "They are true to life, them people," maintains Macken, "and when you are true to life nothing will change you."

And while the New Yorker may have to strain as much as those down south to imagine it being "Two Below in Tupelo," it seems possible that he can happily sing along with Ernie Tubb "Walking the Floor Over You."

One can even imagine the Mayor bowing out of City Hall while singing with Lynn Anderson "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden."

Male Needleworkers 'Liberated'

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, — Men, some claim jubilantly, have at last been "liberated" to practice needle skills whenever and wherever they please. Secret needleworkers have come out from under cover and asserted their independence from the outgrown notion that needle crafts are for women only.

Advertising executives, politicians, editors, athletes, financial experts, designers, and actors are among those men who now participate in creative stitchery. Some say they still endure a few snickers and dubious looks when they haul out their needles and yam on planes, trains, and subways. Most feel they have helped establish a climate of acceptance.

Social commentator Russel Lynes needlepoints. So do former pro football stars Rosey Grier and Matt Snell. Artie Johnson of TV's "Laugh-In" program is purported to be a whiz with wool.

Arthur Kilcup, a New York advertising man, discovered the fun of needlepoint at a rained-in resort where he watched a woman guest contentedly stabbing away at her canvas. He invited her to teach him, too.

Today, a good many pillow covers later, he teaches "men only" needlepoint classes two nights a week at the Grenadier Restaurant here and offers his own $16 kits that feature such "masculine" designs as fishing flys, a geometric, a sports cartoon, and a seascape with a single bobbing buoy in the foreground. He calls his kits "kingpoint" as a further male come-on. Harry Markson, director of boxing at Madison Square Garden, is one of his students at the Grenadier, as are City Commissioners Joseph W. Halper and Nick Pappas.

Innovative needle artists, both men and women, have given the old craft a contemporary look in the past 10 years. Louis J. Gartner Jr., a House and Garden magazine craft editor, became so intrigued with needlepoint that he opened his own shop, called "Needlepoint" on Worth Avenue in Palm Beach, Fla., and a needlepoint department in Bergdorf Goodman in New York. His book, Needlepoint Design (Morrow, $15.95) divulges his design secrets.

Popular patterns with men at Lou Gartner's shops are bamboo, cane, malachite, seashells, geometrics, and animals. His latest "animal kingdon" pets make three-dimensional animals, including a rabbit, cat, dog, monkey, lion and lamb. These range from $50 to $70 per kit.

Two members of the American Institute of Interior Designers, Daren Pierce and Inman Cook, have turned their talents to needlepoint design. Ample evidence is their Woolworks shop on Madison Avenue here and their book, The Betty Crocker Home Library Pleasures of Needlepoint (Scribner's). They say it's pretty funny to be the male Betty Crockers of needlepoint, but they are delighted to be able to teach others to "paint on canvas with wool."

"Anyone who can sew a basic running stitch can learn to do needlepoint," says the authors. They explain that needlepoint is simply a form of embroidery worked on canvas with wool in a variety of stitches.

Pierce says their men customers ask for abstract designs and geometrics in such colors as black, brown, beige, and white. They also love following with their needles such personal interests as yachting, golfing, tennis, dogs, horses, and houses.

Henry Coger, an antiques dealer from Ashley Falls, Mass., sat in his booth recently at the Coliseum Antiques Show, spectacles resting on the end of his nose, peacefully working on a big brilliant piece of bargello stitchery. He attacted almost as many interested spectators to view his handiwork as to price his furnishings.

Jack Waxman, who will soon open his Westhampton Beach needlepoint ship called "Xanadu" for the fourth season, commented, "Men are far more adventurous with the needle than women. They enjoy undertaking big projects — like chairs and rugs and sofa covers."

More aptly, it should be called "Cesar and Rosalie and David," since it is about two men in love with one woman, or perhaps one woman in love with two men. It is difficult to tell since the enigmatic role of Rosalie is played by Romy Schneider, who is no Mona Lisa.

The film might also be called "Cesar and David" because it is a pale echo of Francois Truffaut's "Jules and Jim." That bittersweet classic about two men, friends, in love with the same woman, had a sensitivity and depth lacking in this picture.

What this picture does have is what Rosalie tells David and Cesar they have in common: charm. The camera work is charming, the French countryside is charming, Yves Montand is especially charming as Cesar.

But the charm fades as the plot unravels tediously, and Rosalie alternates between her two lovers. She is like some erotic see-saw, and there is so little character motivation that by the end of the film the audience has stopped caring which side she is on. The slight and derivative script by director Philippe Sautet and Jean-Loupe Debadie also tries to suggest an implausible friendship between David and Cesar.

David is a cartoonist whom Sami Frey plays incongruously, like one of the great romantic painters. Montand really sweeps the film along with his talent and charm as Cesar, the self-made scrap metal baron with a tough, swaggering view of everything in life except Rosalie. For Rosalie he even learns to hum a Bach concerto by heart. It is almost like seeing Montand play Jean-Paul Belmondo, and it is a fascinating performance.

Director Sautet's earlier film, "The Things of Life," also focused on a triangle and bore the same weakness that this one does. Sautet concentrates so hard on the gloss, on the look of things — even a heap of scrap copper is photographed ravishingly. But he ignores the depths of character, relationship, and thought which might give some significance to his work. He is gifted, and if he could find himself a script with some substance, he would be a director to conjure with.

Novato School Board Approves Bond Sale

The Novato Unified School District board last night authorized sale of $330,000 in bonds, rather than the $100,000 previously approved.

The vote came after Trustee William T. Eckhoff, a certified public accountant, advised it "might be wise" to sell all remaining bonds now because interest rates might be less favorable in the future. The $330,000 is the last of a $3,840,000 bond issue approved by voters in April, 1965.

The board plans to use $100,000 to finance building projects. Supt. James G. Bunker said the remaining $230,000 would be unused and invested.

Eugene F. De Brecht, assistant superintendent for business, estimated it would require a tax rate of two cents per $100 assessed valuation to pay off $100,000 and a rate of 6.5 to 7 cents to pay off $330,000.

After protests from several parents who sought delay, the board approved shifting junior high school boundaries to ease overcrowding at Sinaloa Junior High School.

Under the plan, 42 sixth graders from the Marion school attendance area will go to Hill Junior High School, rather than Sinaloa. All sixth graders from Bel Marin Keys, 29 in all, will go to San Jose Junior High School.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

SCHOOL SITES — Received a report from De Brecht that all six of the district's unused school sites purchased through state loans will be paid off by July, 1975 resulting in a drop in the tax rate of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

JUNIOR HIGH — Approved changes in the junior high school graduation requirements eliminating the exploratory program in the seventh grade and adding five social studies electives for ninth graders. Trustee Carolyn M. Crabtree dissented, saying she believes all seventh graders should have an exploratory course in music.

GIFTS — Accepted as gifts, $2,000 from the estate of Minnie Niemeyer, $500 from the Pleasant Valley Parent-Teacher Association and $400 from the Lu Sutton Parent-Teacher Association.

HIRED — Approved reemployment of all certificated personnel except those hired for limited periods, long-term substitutes and hourly employees.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Barbara Schmidt, speech therapist, Elizabeth Hillman, teacher of educationally handicapped, Ruth Snodgrass, attendance clerk, and Patrick Karinen, Transportation Assistant.

EASEMENT — Agreed that public access to Lu Sutton school from an apartment project across Warner Creek, as proposed by the city of Novato, isn't needed at present.

BULL FIGHTING — Received a plea from Allan Roberts, teacher at Sinaloa Junior High School, against approval of an itinerary for traveling students which included the bull fights at Tijuana, which he described as barbarous, cruel and inhumane.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to a special meeting May 29 to review the proposed 1973-74 budget.

Trustee Jan Murray was absent.

Petaluma Board Hears Water Plan

The Petaluma Planning Commission heard last night that water projects under way should supply enough water to Petaluma through 1984.

John Kunselman, an engineer with the Sonoma County Water Agency, told the commission that new wells on the Russian River combined with a new pumping station at Cotati should greatly increase Petaluma's water supply and accommodate a population of 55,000.

Kunselman said the new operation will allow Petaluma to draw 9.8 million gallons of water per day from the county system. Petaluma now draws four million gallons during peak summer months and has a capacity of two million gallons from city wells.

He said that unless the population rate increases dramatically the water supply should suffice through 1984.

In other business, the commission set a May 29 hearing on the request of William McCoy for apartment zoning on three parcels located between Hinman and Fair streets.

Mill Valley Groups Seek Art Center

The city council, art commission and parks and recreation commission agreed to explore two locations for a proposed county arts council, one at a former supermarket and the other in the city's small craft harbor area.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard said the council instructed city staff to write the owners of the old Purity market at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue about their plans for the structure, which might serve for the countywide facility.

Councilmen also asked the planning firm of Sedway, Cooke, which is preparing a new Mill Valley general plan, to explore putting a center for the visual and performing arts at the small craft harbor.

Mrs. Barnard also said those at the meeting learned the Sausalito Art Center is being evicted from its quarters at Bayside School in Sausalito July 15 by order of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

She said she will ask the city council Monday to intervene on behalf of the art center and ask HEW to allow the group to remain at the school another year.

The council also voted to urge Mill Valley's art-oriented groups — the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, the Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival and the Mill Valley Arts Guild (Genesis Gallery) — to keep in touch with the city art commission and bring to it any problems the groups may have before going to the council with them.

A suggestion by the art commission that the entrance foyer at city hall be painted blue, earlier vetoed by City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, will be discussed at the council's June 4 meeting, said Mrs. Barnard.

Kentucky Waters

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky has 18,000 miles of streams with running water, making it second only to Alaska in that category.

Library Friends Plan Annual Sale

Friends of the Larkspur Library will hold their annual used book and plant sale Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the library.

Sallyanne Wilson, spokesman for the group, said members have made many more cuttings of plants than in previous years, because so many Marin residents lost plants in winter frosts. Baked goods also will be on sale.

Guyana Trade

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (UPI) — The first trade union in Guyana and the British West Indies was formed in 1919 by Hubert Nathaniel Critchlow, a waterfront worker.

FLUORIDATION, ANYBODY??

Why object to vegetables and fruits being sprayed with poisonous materials if artificial fluorides are added to our drinking water?

If the MMWD fluoridates our water will they guarantee that, when delivered, the concentration will never be more than "1 part per million"?

How will they label it "Contains poison"? The Food & Drug Dept. is particular about having everything labeled correctly.

Every 1 part per million is poison!

Plain Talk
. . . . ABOUT LUCKY-TRIM MEATS

The way meat is trimmed of excess fat and bone is more important than the price per pound. For example, the chine bone, gristle and excess fat in an ordinary Standing Rib Roast can add up to 14 per cent of its total weight... that's 14 percent of the roast you can't eat!

In plain figures, there can be as much as 70 cents worth of waste in a $5.00 roast . . . waste that Lucky demands be trimmed away BEFORE the cut of meat is weighed and wrapped. And with T-Bone Steaks, the excess fat and tough tail end of the steak can add 4 ounces of weight . . and a proportionate amount to the price you pay for it. But again . . . NOT at Lucky. These are carefully trimmed away before you buy your steak.

An $80,000 Study Without Purpose

On April 3, the Marin County Board of Supervisors engaged a recently formed San Francisco consulting firm, Baxter, McDonald and Smart, to make a study of the cost of the proposed Marin Countywide Plan, at a price of about $80,000.

According to William R. Zion, a member of the firm (who may be remembered for his studies of Novato and Terra Linda incorporation and of Larkspur-Corte Madera merger), Baxter, McDonald and Smart does not expect to have even the first phase of its cost study completed before September.

However, the board of supervisors has scheduled its final hearing on the plan for Saturday, May 26 (the first day, incidentally, of the long Memorial Day week end). And, according to County Administrator John F. Barrows, the board probably will adopt the plan then or soon afterward.

OF WHAT purpose, then, is the Baxter, McDonald and Smart study for which $80,000 of our tax money is being spent?

The outside cost study was ordered by the supervisors after numerous questions had been raised about the cost and economic impact of the plan. Its transportation proposals alone pose costs that appear excessive for Marin taxpayers. So also do its subsidized housing features. The economic impact of forcing all population growth into a narrow corridor embracing little more than a tenth of the land area may be tremendous.

The plan has been assailed as financially impossible by the Marin Property Owners Association, the Irate Taxpayers of Marin, and the Peacock Gap Homeowners Association, among others. County planning commissioners themselves became so worried about lack of sufficient economic studies that they asked the supervisors to hire an outside firm.

Yet, according to Barrows, the supervisors probably will adopt the plan without waiting for completion of the study — or even for a preliminary report on it.

THE REASON, again according to the county administrator, is to meet a state "deadline" of June 30.

Asked what happens if the deadline is not met, Barrows replied, "Well, nothing, I guess."

The so-called deadline is, in fact, pretty meaningless. If a county plan is not adopted by that time, the county may not be eligible for some federal-state planning funds (assuming there are any such funds). Other than that, the deadline carries no penalty.

Most counties in California are simply ignoring it.

IF THE Baxter-McDDonald-Smart study shows the plan completely unfeasible to finance, what will the board then do? The intention, according to both Barrows and Zion, is to then amend the plan.

In other words, try to correct a bad job by patching it.

That is just as ridiculous as the timetable the supervisors are following.

ERWIN D. CANHAM: Mishandling Brings Crisis

Needless in the sense that President Nixon could speedily have set matters right, assuming the very worst about what had been going on.

And not even now, nearly 10 months later, are the right things being done to clear the air and get the President out of the mess to the extent that may be humanly possible.

FOR EXAMPLE, there is no valid reason for the President and Elliot Richardson to continue opposing a totally independent investigator and prosecutor.

We must assume, as the President has repeatedly insisted, that the investigation must be independent in fact. Why not have it also in form? That would make a lot of difference in its credibility to public opinion. It would make a lot of difference in the caliber of persons who will take the job.

As long as the investigator is held responsible to Mr. Richardson, the attorney general-designate, and through him to the President, we will never have the appearance of independence. The great virtue of the Teapot Dome investigation, in the 1920s, was its complete freedom from White House control.

Possibly the President will be forced by Congress (perhaps before it will confirm Mr. Richardson) to accept an independent investigation. Why did he not make this concession freely and voluntarily, without having been forced, without leaving the impression that somehow he is trying to hide something?

THIS UNNECESSARY burden is typical of all the other unnecessary positions the President has taken regarding the Watergate incident over the last 10 months.

Assume that he did not know in advance of the stupid plan to bug the Watergate. The next morning, he tells us, he "immediately ordered an investigation." Can we possibly assume that he was not given information fairly soon about substantially what had been going on? Was it not advisable for him to clean up the business as swiftly as possible? Could he not at once have gone to the country, admitting the events he now calls "a very deplorable situation," and tell the nation he would immediately set things right?

We really need to know what he was told on the morning after the Watergate arrests, what he was told that necessitated John Mitchell's resignation a fortnight later. Surely he was told something — enough at least to suggest the need for clean-up. The country would have responded to frank and honest statements, even admissions of improper doings, letting the chips fall where they might.

Or, at many other subsequent points, the President could have taken the initiative to bring events to light, however damaging, as long as he was willing to do the cleaning up to which he now pledges himself and his office.

HAD SUCH ACTION been taken, we would not be in today's dreadful plight. The facts of Watergate would have not been brought out piecemeal by the media, some of them admitted and proved, some of them still conjectural and conflicting.

Why in the world did a high official, with the President standing by, make an alluring job offer to Judge Matt Byrne, presiding over the delicate Ellsberg case? We have still no explanation whatsoever of this incredible episode.

We are in a national crisis. It has not been conjured up by the media. It has been created by events, and the way they have been handled or mishandled.

It has all been so unnecessary.

The Pill May Bring Peace As China Curbs Population

WASHINGTON — The People's Republic of China is making significant headway in population control.

This may prove to be the deciding deterrent to a major Asian war.

Here is the reason.

PEKING CLAIMS large areas of Asian territory which, it contends, were extracted from it by the coercion of the czars —and it wants its lands back.

Moscow vehemently rejects this claim although when the Russian Communists came to power they said they would return this territory.

Today the Soviet Union keeps a million troops on its eastern borders.

The Soviet government sees China's growing population as a grave military threat. There is always the knife-edge danger that the Kremlin will make a preemptive strike before China adds nuclear parity to population superiority — presently three-to-one.

That is the heart of the peril of a calamitous war.

China is moving steadily to develop nuclear military power and the means to use it.

At the same time China is moving steadily to contain its massive population. It is doing it, not just talking about it.

It is possible that nothing would do so much to calm Soviet anxiety as solid evidence that the Chinese have set zero population growth as their goal and are moving in that direction.

THE CHINESE government is not undertaking its stern population control measure to relieve Soviet fears. That is a byproduct and may well prove to be a valuable byproduct. It is undertaking these measures primarily to free the womanpower of China to play a bigger role in expanding its economy and improving the standard of living.

The American who probably knows most about Chinese family planning is William H. Draper, the honorary (more active than honorary) chairman of the Population Crisis Committee, who has recently completed an on-site study of Chinese population control and how it is working.

He points out that with a present population of approximately 800 million, China is now getting its growth rate down to between 1.8 and 2 per cent a year.

Draper found that through a highly decentralized but effective motivation campaign, and using all modern forms of contraception in its family planning program, the Chinese government "is having spectacularly successful results in city and suburban areas and is making reasonable but steady progress in the country districts."

He concludes that the Chinese, though they still have a long way to go, are well into "the most successful and promising family planning program I have ever seen in a large developing country."

For a nation with the largest population in the world, and where one out of every four of the 3.3 billion people on this planet live, that is commendation from a knowledgeable source.

DRAPER MAKES THESE fascinating observations about what he saw:

"China has become a puritan society such as we have not known since the days of the Pilgrims.

"In three weeks spent in five cities and some countryside, I never saw a beggar or a prostitute. No one would even accept a proffered tip in hotels or anywhere else. Marriage, by our standards, is rather long delayed — to 25 to 28 years old.

"It is on its way toward the 1 per cent growth rate possibly in 15 to 20 years — a goal the whole world could well set as its target before the year 2000."

Obviously the Chinese are not doing any of this to please the Soviets. But the Soviets have reason to welcome it. The Pill may be doing more for peace in Asia than the atomic bomb.

Petris Outdoes Marin Plan, Proposes 100-Year Control

By RUS WALTON

If State Sen. Nicholas Petris, (D-Oakland), has his way, the cocoon of a totally controlled society will soon be here.

Petris has introduced Senate Bill 672. If enacted, it would squeeze California into a predetermined mold from here on out.

His bill would establish a State Planning and Development Commission and give it the authority and responsibility to develop a 100-year plan for the state. Some systems are content with 5-year plans, or at the most 10. Not Senator Petris. He wants a 100-year blueprint.

The commission would comprise 17 members: sociologists, psychologists, economic planners, resource management experts, and health and education schemers. Membership of the commission "shall conform" to the "racial, ethnic and sexual balance within the general population".

As set forth by Petris, the commission "may hold hearings and conduct any investigations" to carry out the powers vested in it. "In addition to the powers and duties expressly given the commission" it would have "such powers as may be necessary or convenient for the exercise of such powers".

HERE ARE SOME of the "elements' Senator Petris would have the commission deal with and develop plans for:

— the function of regional governments and the delineation and establishment of regional boundaries; — the function of county government with an eye toward its abolition in favor of municipal counties with the same powers as cities;

— the various problems of "the lack of individual economic sufficiency", including but not limited to the possibility of a statewide minimum income, ways to create employment for all who wish to work (including large-scale state and regional building programs) and a region-by-region system of planning, budgets and finances to achieve such goals.

Petris' commission would also attend to a state zoning plan to control urban sprawl and to protect open space land. It would also get into a state policy on distribution of population to "direct economic activity and employment" to predesignated areas.

IN ADDITION to telling you where you could live and what you could do, the commission would institute controls on virtually every aspect of the environment — from water quality to chemical pesticides to minimum and maximum housing standards. It would establish standards for maximum time periods for travel between "any residence and certain essential community facilities such as . . . grocery stores and health facilities" and state standards for health and education (including, but not limited to, minimum requirements for curricula").

The 100-year plan, which would be updated periodically, would also deal with problems caused by "damaging patterns of consumption".

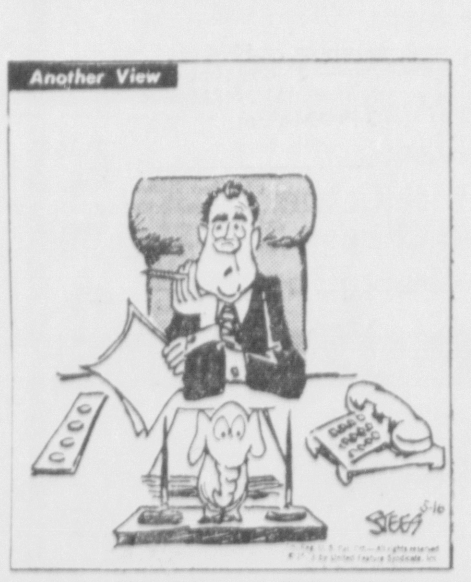
In this regard the commission "shall develop" a state policy of optimum population; so many, no more. As part of that goal, the commission could establish incentives to limit population and family size (tidbits such as limiting tax exemptions to two children) and methods of curbing in-migration from other states.

To conserve energy, Senator Petris' bill suggests such goodies as a tax on the use of electricity, and building codes that would outlaw "unnecessary" air conditioning or artificial lighting. Land would be taxed "on the basis of optimum social, not economic, use."

UP UNTIL NOW I imagined all that was simply part of social psychologist B.F. Skinner's by-the-numbers notions or George Orwell's dark forebodings of a future barnyard world.

But here it is, in a senate bill. And 1984 is still 11 years away.

Or is it?



"Let's see now — am I making everything perfectly clear?"

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

California's legislature is pondering a bill to license hitchhikers. It seems like only yesterday there was a bounty on 'em.

Considering the number of folks who travel by thumb, license sales could prove to be a big revenue producer.

Licensing might not reduce hitchhiking but it would assure us of a more affluent type of hitcher.

For identification purposes, hitching licenses should carry a picture of the licensee's thumb.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Beginning Of New American Revolution

Hurrah for Daniel Ellsberg, Anthony Russo and the American people in general. If what they did was truly wrong, it is indeed terrible that they go unpunished, but with the government's shady wrongdoings throughout the case, they are the only ones to blame in that whole mess. As the old saying goes: Two wrongs do not make a right.

I believe that we are on the road to a new American Revolution, in the fact that we are finally taking just recourse against the wrongdoings of the government. But there are many people who still won't take five minutes of their time to voice openly their opinions and ask questions concerning our democratic process. Remember we send our representatives and senators to Washington to do a job, not to take a continuing vacation. A piece of paper and a pen haven't gone up in price that much yet.

I truly hope that we don't have to impeach the President, but if there are still unanswered and questionable doubts about the alleged knowledge of the President concerning any beforehand activity or cover-up of the facts in the Watergate case, it is our duty and obligation to ask the Congress to lawfully impeach the President in order that he may be made to answer these allegations and ease our minds. I would like to believe he had no prior knowledge of anything, but I really am confused to the point where I don't really know and I do want to know.

I can only hope that Mr. Nixon or the next President can turn this horrible thing around and make that office once again one of desite and credibility. Perhaps the affair is just what the doctor ordered. Maybe the shock of this deplorable incident will make people think a little about how we are being governed. . .

Objections To Hunting With Bow And Arrow

In reference to an article entitled Fish and Game by Al Giddings which was published in the May 11, edition of the Independent-Journal, a point or two of clarification is in order.

The action of the Humane Society of the United States, as referred to in the article, was not an anti-hunting bit of legislation. The action was taken in question of the Department of Interior's move to open federal wildlife refuges to hunting.

It was maintained that such refuges were established as "refuges" and not as a place to collect game for hunting purposes. It was conceded that when the deer herd needed to be reduced, it should be done . . .

The Humane Society of the United States contended that the use of bows and arrows, antique muzzle-loading guns, and buckshot-loaded guns on the three specific refuges did not conform with principles of sound wildlife management . . .

It is true that the H.S.U.S. failed in its legal approach. However the Department of the Interior, as a result of that action, has changed its procedures for planning deer hunts on federal lands . . .

The memorandum confirmed the H.S.U.S.'s contention that the bow and arrow is an inefficient weapon. From 10 typical refuge archery hunts, including Chincoteague and Eastern Neck, the number of animals wounded but not immediately taken, averaged 44.5 per cent.

Space does not permit a review of the entire action, but it seemed as though the reporting of May 11 might leave an erroneous impression in the mind of the reader . . .

Difference Between Watergate And Other Government Scandals

(Commentary by Harry Reasoner on ABC News)

If the Watergate case is the most serious scandal ever to hit the American White House, and a lot of people think it is, it is important to know why. Teapot Dome was pretty good as scandals go. Shady fellows close to Ulysses S. Grant got away with a lot that never got to court, and there have obviously been many people through the years who played fast and loose with the dangerous power that attaches to the American presidency and its staff. So what makes Watergate worse?

I suggest that this is the first docmented time when the felonies and the lies were perpetrated for reasons of ideology rather than greed. So far as we know so far, no individual was stealing money; these men, up to a high level, were breaking and entering and perjuring to achieve what they believed to be something good for the country — the destruction of the Democratic Party, maybe, or the establishment of some general kind of thought control. You can sort of understand President Harding's Interior Secretary, Albert Fall — he wanted money, and human greed, if not acceptable in high office, is, at least, not a novelty. But what apparently has motivated the men in this administration was a deep desire to eliminate the untidiness of the American system — the slovenly tolerance of a loud opposition and a free press, the permission that the Founding Fathers carelessly gave people to hold wrong opinions.

That is what is dangerous. E. Howard Hunt, pleading guilty to a felony, said "Anything I have done I believe was in the best interest of my country." This is scary.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Textbook Patch Jobs For California Schools

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

California schools are going to get another patchjob as a textbook.

This time, the book to be patched is "Human Sexuality," by James Leslie McCary, which was recommended by the State Textbook Commission for adoption as a seventh and eighth grade sex education text.

The book has been widely criticized for its lack of scholarship, and for its "slant" in semi-approving treatment of pornography and perversion, and in favor of abortion. There also were many objections to the explicitness of some of the language and pictures.

Despite the objections, the State Board of Education gave it tentative approval (with three dissents) in January, suggesting that some revisions should be made. Members of the State Department of Education staff subsequently deleted one chapter and revised some of the more explicit language.

AT ITS MAY meeting, the board delayed final adoption until June to allow further revision. Members Tony N. Sierra, Clay N. Mitchell, and Eugene N. Ragle voted to reject the volume.

Among objectors were three state legislators: Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, and Assemblymen Floyd B. Wakefield, R-Downey, and Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach.

Ernest Schulzke, Senator Harmer's assistant, told the board that attempting to make the book acceptable by revising it would be "utterly futile." But that's what the board decided to do.

PATCH JOBS on California texts are becoming frequent.

Just six months ago, the state board authorized a patch job on a series of science texts proposed for adoption. These were attacked as anti-religious since they advanced as fact the evolution of the human being and all other animal life from a single-celled creature. The state board's response to the criticisms was to have the wording changed here and there to make the texts read "most scientists believe," "it is widely accepted," etc., rather than flat statements of fact. But the board refused to permit mention that there are other theories of the creation of man.

Patch jobs on text books have not turned out too happily in the past. Six years ago, there was wide outcry against a junior high American history text proposed for adoption, "The land of the Free." Objections arose for various reasons: lack of inclusion of accomplishments of minority groups, political slant, and — what would seem most important — lack of perspective which left great gaps in the history the book was intended to teach.

The state board's response was to have revisions made to include more mention of minority groups. The text was adopted despite its other faults.

IT WOULD APPEAR from these "patch job" decisions that the California Board of Education has only one possible choice in adopting a textbook, that it has one book which it must take or else go without a new text.

In fact, however, many textbook publishers are pushing their wares for California adoption. The huge sale made possible by adoption for the public schools of the biggest state means a lot of money in the till of the publishing company and a lot of royalties for the author. (That, no doubt, is why publishers and authors are willing to make revisions on the state's demand.)

The State Textbook Commission has many choices for each new text. If the State Board of Education were to turn down the recommended one, there would be others available from which to make a second choice.

That would appear a more logical approach than having a patch job done to cover up some of the flaws in the first-choice book.

IT MIGHT BE interesting to know what texts were passed over for "Human Sexuality," and what science series which include mention of the theory of creation went begging.

Could it be that the choice of our state texts is not quite so free from political influence as the State Department of Education would have us believe?

Marin City Library Closing Set

The Marin City branch of the Marin County Library will be closed Thursday evening, Friday and Saturday during rearrangement of the library's book collection.

The main change will be to combine in one area all nonfiction titles from the adult, young adult and juvenile sections. The book collection also will be updated, especially in the areas of black history and literature, according to Alice Littleton, librarian.

The public is invited to view the changes from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday during an open house which will include a bake sale and book sale.

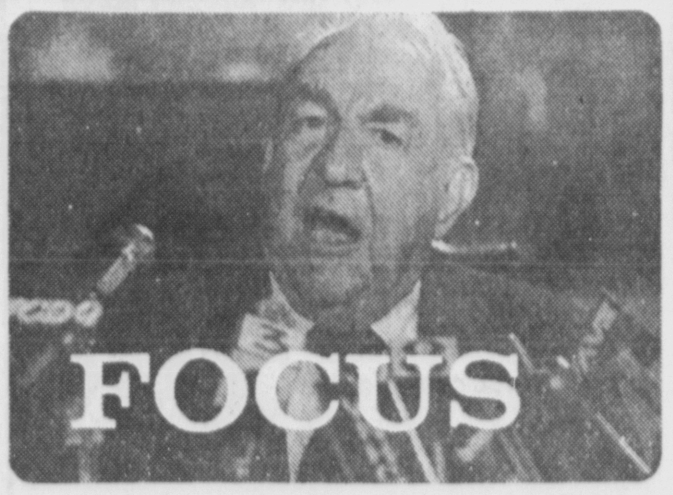
Proceeds from the bake sale will go to beginning a children's record collection. Profits from the book sale, sponsored by Marin County Friends of the Library, may be used to fund a youth film program, according to Margaret Galvin, regional librarian.

Former Inmate Sentenced For Visiting Illegally

A former San Quentin inmate convicted in a jury trial of illegally revisiting the prison has been handed a Marin County Jail sentence of 180 days with credit for the 101 days he spent in custody before and during his superior court trial.

Judge Charles Read Best imposed the sentence on Roy Ronald Cerra, 34, of San Francisco. Cerra was released from the prison in 1967 after serving time for forgery. A guard recognized him in March 1969 and arrested him for visiting a friend without the warden's permission.

Cerra subsequently disappeared, failing to keep court dates until he was rearrested early this year on a warrant.



Sam Ervin

North Carolina was among the last of the 13 colonies to ratify the Constitution because the document contained no guarantee of fundamental civil rights. Owing in large part to North Carolina's dissatisfaction, the first 10 amendments known as the Bill of Rights were added to the Constitution. It seems appropriate then, that North Carolina's Sam Ervin should hold the reputation as the Senate's authority on constitutional freedoms. He served in the state judiciary before going to Washington. Today Senator Ervin serves on the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee.

Change In Air For Middle East

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Is the United States, looking to its long-range interests in the oil-rich Middle East and taking a new, critical look at its policy toward Israel and the Arab world?

Two recent developments suggest the Nixon administration may be edging gingerly toward more even-handed, business-like approaches:

—For the first time in recent months a senior administration official has indicated that both Israel and the Arab states are to blame for "lost opportunities" for peace in the Middle East and both must do something to bring about a settlement. Implied is a criticism of the Israelis as well as the Arabs.

—President Nixon, in a foreign-aid bill now before Congress, has called for a cut in support assistance to Israel and at the same time proposed increased financial aid to Jordan and military-credit sales for Saudi Arabia. The amounts are small but the actions strike some observers as noteworthy.

In a little-noticed speech early this week, Joseph J. Sisco, Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, said that neither the Arab world nor Israel has defined its goals in terms of what it is willing to trade off. He said it is time, in effect, for the parties to sit down, set their options and priorities and decide what is most important.

The respected Middle East negotiator was addressing the American-Israeli Public Affairs Committee. Because the occasion was the celebration of Israel's 25th anniversary, his remarks took on added significance.

Sisco introduced no new elements and he reaffirmed Washington's continuing support for Israel's security. But he seemed to be telling the gathering that while Israel may be comfortable with the present situation in the Middle East the United States is not. That situation, he said, is "unstable and unsatisfactory."

Clearly making a conscious effort to be balanced, the high State Department official assailed certain "myths" on both sides which he said frustrated peace efforts. On the Israeli side, for instance, was the "myth" that the 1967 war was the result of a "calculated Arab plan to launch a war of destruction against Israel."

"In my view," said Sisco, "the most plausible explanation is that the six-day war resulted from improvised actions and reactions by each side."

These and other comments were not received with total enthusiasm by the gathering. Israelis were disturbed by them and Israel's new ambassador to the United States, Simcha Dinitz, reportedly discarded a prepared speech to respond to Sisco's allusions to "myths."

Administration officials say Sisco's speech does not represent any change whatever in U.S. policy although it may reflect a different style of approach. But within the lower levels of government there is a definite feeling that Washington must adopt more rigorous, practical criteria in its dealings with the Middle East.

Some officials believe the United States's overwhelming one-sided support of Israel is impairing its strategic and economic interests in the Arab world, whose wealth of oil is increasingly vital to the American economy.

Aid Israel is cited as one area where a more businesslike approach is in order.

This fiscal year the Israelis received about $500 million worth of military and economic aid, including $50 million in supporting-assistance grants. The administration asks that this sum be cut to $25 million in 1974 and that a $31-million grant in 1973 for the resettlement of Jewish emigrants — a grant put in by Congress — be dropped altogether.

Some U.S. officials believe that even the $25-million grant should be questioned on economic grounds. They note that Israel's foreign-exchange reserves have tripled in the last three years and now stand at $1.6 billion.

It is argued, also, that Isreal is a country with full employment and an economy growing annually at a healthy rate of about 8 per cent. It even has been able to reduce its income tax for the second year in a row.

Israel argues it has the highest level of foreign debt per capita of any nation in the world. But, Israel's ability to service the debt is excellent because of its growing exports.

Assessing the new aid request, U.S. officials say that purely domestic budgetary considerations dictated the decision to cut back Israel's grant. It is suggested that the acceleration of aid to Israel in the past few years is tapering off because Washington cannot go on indifinetely adding aid requirements.

County Illness Statistics Given

Streptococcus infections held its traditional position at the top of the list of communicable diseases reported in Marin last week with 79 cases, according to Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

Other diseases reported were gonorrhea, 20 cases; infectious hepatitis, three cases, and syphilis, one case.

Lodge Planning Anniversary Fete

Fairfax Lodge No. 556 of the Free and Accepted Masons will hold its 50th anniversary celebration at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Fairfax Masonic Temple at 1122 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur.

The occasion will mark to the day 50 years of club existence, according to Allan R. Jordan, the club Worshipful Master.

Dinner will be followed by an open meeting in the lodge room during which 29 past masters of the club will be introduced, he said.

Tokens commemorating the 50th anniversary celebration will be given to participants, he said.

Boys' Club Now Taking Signups

The Central Marin Boys' Club now is accepting signups for its summer recreation program. Further information may be obtained by contacting the club office at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael between 9 a.m. and noon Monday through Friday.

The club also announces that application for its provisional charter is on file with the Boys' Club of America. Boys who participated in last summer's camp program are now charter members, as will be the first 50 to sign up for this summer's program.

Nicasio 4-H Fair Set For Saturday

The Nicasio 4-H fair will be held Saturday at the Rancho Nicasio picnic grounds from 10 a.m. with a chicken barbecue starting at noon.

This is the 20th anniversary of the public fair, which includes a livestock show, a fashion show, project exhibits, a horse show, games for children and a plant and white elephant booth.

CONTOUR/35

The little known, highly beneficial natural ingredients in CONTOUR/35 have been used and recommended for many years by a famous plastic surgeon to help firm the contours and improve the color and appearance of skin of face and neck. I have had them combined into this unique night creme for the over-35 woman. CONTOUR/35 has been responsible for the youthful-looking skin of many of the world's most famous and attractive women, women to whom a youthful appearance is vital.

Remarkable results! Using CONTOUR/35 nightly as directed, their contours appeared tightened, dryness lines seemed erased, and a firmer, more youthful-appearing complexion emerged. CONTOUR/35, containing no hormones or steroids, goes on easily, penetrates deeply, disappears quickly. Start today and see for yourself.

Introductory gift offer! Purchase CONTOUR/35 and receive as a gift a ½-oz. jar of MOISTURE/35 to protect, firm, and moisturize over-30 skin, plus a 4-oz. bottle of deep, deep cleansing without drying FORMULA FOR CLEANSING (an 8.00 value).

Stop in at Macy's San Rafael today or fill in the coupon below and this valuable offer will be sent to you. Don't delay another day.

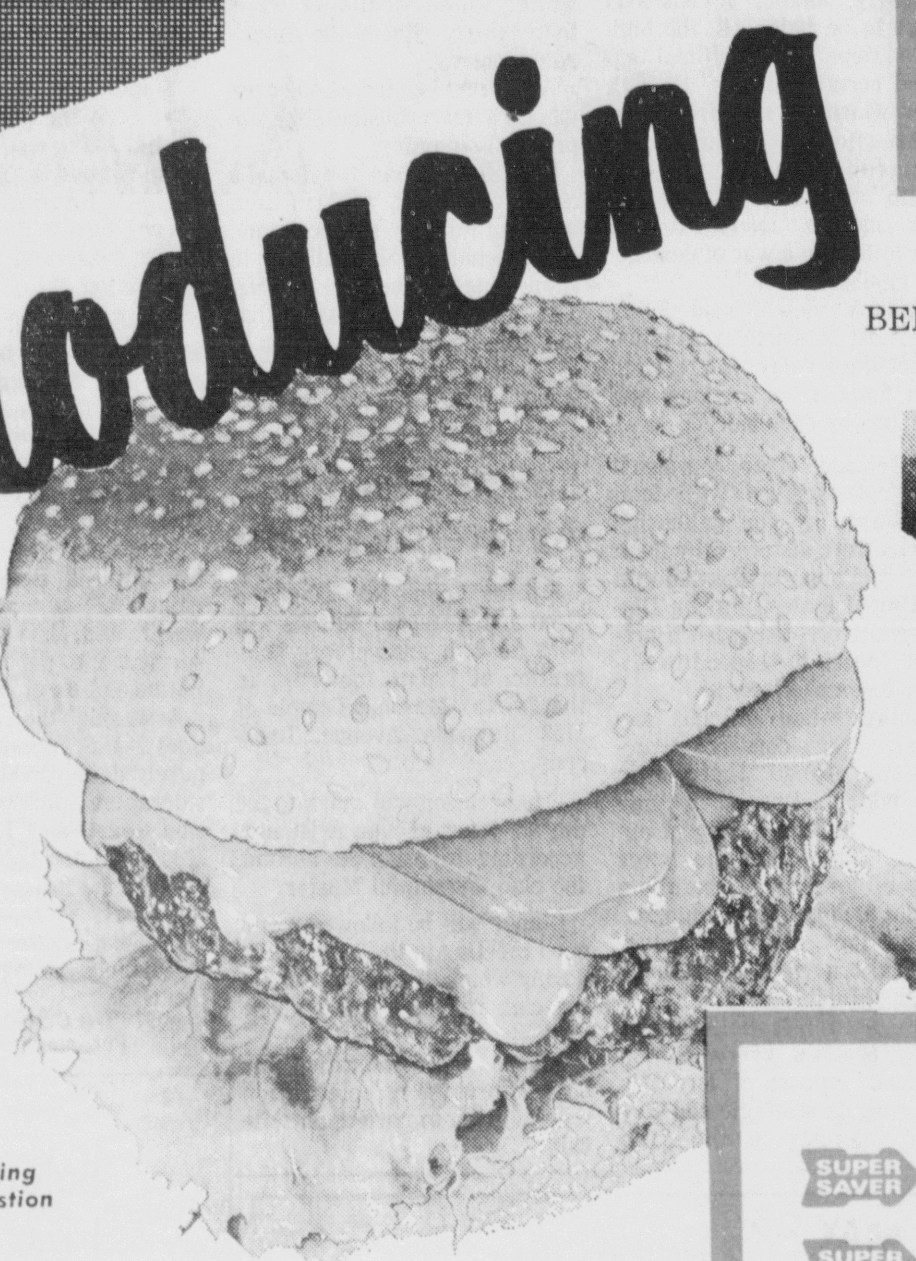
Introducing



BEEF PLUS can be used just like ground beef . . . In 'burgers, meat loaf, spaghetti sauce . . . in every ground beef dish, plain or fancy. We invite you to try BEEF PLUS with our money-back guarantee of satisfaction.

BEEF PLUS can save you money in two ways . . . It costs less per pound than ground beef. It holds meat juices better in cooking and so makes plumper patties, hamburgers and Salisbury steaks.

Serving Suggestion

BEEF PLUS BRAND

BEEF PATTY MIX...A BLEND OF BEEF & TEXTURED VEGETABLE PROTEIN

BEEF PLUS is a wonderful new Patty Mix being offered in Safeway Meat Departments. It's a blend of about ¾ Safeway ground beef and about ¼ hydrated textured vegetable protein which is delicious, nutritious and lower in cost than ground beef. It is high in protein, closely matching ground beef in this important characteristic. Many people who have tried BEEF PLUS say that it tastes better than ground beef. The vegetable protein in BEEF PLUS absorbs and holds much of the meat flavor and many of the juices which are usually cooked out of ground beef.

Apartments For Rent (Unfurnished)—2720

Is your apartment or house standing vacant — and losing you money?

Have you ever thought about how much money you lose each day or week your apartment stands vacant? Here's a chart to point out the drain on your income:

YOU ARE LOSING

If Your Monthly Rental Price Is:	Every Day	Every Week	Every Two Weeks
$150	$ 5.00	$35.00	$70.00
175	5.83	40.81	81.62
200	6.67	46.69	93.38
225	7.50	52.50	105.00
250	8.33	58.31	116.62
275	9.16	64.12	128.24
300	10.00	70.00	140.00
325	10.83	75.81	151.62
350	11.66	81.62	163.24

(Based on a 30-day month)

Add to this the cost of maintaining a vacant apartment and you have an even larger loss. Doesn't it make sense to: FIRST, run an I-J Classified ad, & SECOND, to take a little time and run a BETTER ad — more benefits, more discription, less abbreviations (82% of readers don't know the meaning of AEK).

Reagan Assures Officials On Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today assured city officials his tax limitation plan would not affect the cities' major sources of state revenue or saddle cities with costs of new state-mandated programs.

In a speech prepared for the Mayors' and Councilmen's Legislative Institute, Reagan told the officials: "You would still get your share of the gasoline and sales tax revenues. You do not have to worry that the state might saddle you with some new mandated services.

"Under our plan," he said, "if the state did mandate new costs on local government, the state would have to pay for it."

Noting his plan clamps a lid on state government spending, Reagan said city government in California "has been operating for years with limited tax rates and it has not meant an end to city government, even though I know many cities have difficult financial problems."

The governor said the limitation poses "only one major difficulty" for state government:

"It requires that the legislature or the governor exercise the kind of fiscal restraint that the people expect you to demonstrate in managing the state's affairs. I do not regard that as a handicap. It is why we have a system of checks and balances."

Resumption Of Drilling Has Governor's Backing

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has thrown his support behind a proposal to resume offshore drilling for oil, including in the scenic Santa Barbara channel where a 1969 petroleum spill befouled resort beaches for miles.

"I think we are going to have to explore and find and utilize every energy source that is available in the world," the governor told a news conference yesterday in response to a question.

"And I still believe this can be done without suddenly throwing all environmental and aesthetic considerations out the window," Reagan said.

The governor was asked whether he agreed with state Controller Houston I. Flournoy, chairman of the State Lands Commission, who last week said he was prepared to vote to lift the state's four-year-old moratorium on oil drilling on state-owned tide and submerged lands.

Flournoy, who voted to establish the moratorium in the wake of the Santa Barbara eruption on a federal lease in the channel, said he favored the resumption of drilling provided adequate safety measures were assured.

"I think modern technology makes it possible to do these things now with very little disturbance of the terrain and the ecology," the governor said. "We are beginning to develop, I understand, the ability to do underwater drilling with no surface structure whatsoever and underwater pumping."

By U.P. International

Today is Wednesday, May 16, the 136th day of 1973 with 229 to follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

American educator Elizabeth Peabody was born May 16, 1804.

On this day in history:

In a866, the U.S. Treasury Department was authorized to place in circulation the first five-cent piece, to be called "the hickel."

In 1929, the first Oscar Awards were announced. Janet Gaynor got the best actress award for her role in "Seventh Heaven." Emil Jennings was voted best actor for his role in "The Way of All Flesh."

In 1962, U.S. forces arrived in Thailand to bolster the Asian nation against a spread of fighting from neighboring Laos.

In 1972, Alabama Gov. George Wallace, critically wounded by a would-be assassin a day earlier, won the Democratic presidential primaries in Michigan and Maryland.

A thought for the day: Roman poet Virgil said, "Yield not to misfortunes but press forward boldly in their face."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Schistosomiasis Is Common In Underdeveloped Countries

Schistosomiasis is said to afflice 100 million people in Africa, Asia, and South America. If we can accept this estimate, it is the world's greatest unconquered parasitic disease. Schistosome worms enter the skin of the victim while he swims, washes clothes, works, or bathes in infested rivers. Once inside the body, the worms attack various organs, mainly the liver and urinary bladder. The outcome may be fatal.

THE BEST preventive measure is to kill the freshwater snails that harbor the parasites in their developing stage. No snails, no schistosomiasis. Eradication involves the addition of inorganic copper to the water. However, the ensuing water pollution also kills some fish and aquatic plants. These ecological side effects have led to considerable criticism and scientists now are trying to find a form of copper that specifically kills snails.

The adult parasites live in the blood vessels of the walls of the intestines and urinary bladder. They lay eggs that migrate into the intestine and urinary tract and the symptoms depend upon where the eggs accumulate. Liver involvement is common and many of the victims complain of abdominal tenderness, loss of appetite, headache, muscular pains, dysentery, and weight loss. The liver usually is enlarged.

SCHISTOSOME INVASION of the urinary bladder leads to infection of the urethra, bladder, the prostate in men, and the vagina in women. Urination is painful. All too often, the disease becomes chronic with ulcers and abscesses of the involved organ. Anemia, emaciation, and exhaustion follow. The irritation also predisposes many of the victims to early malignancy.

Antimony is the best treatment and various oral compounds are recommended for this purpose. Prevention is preferred and until something can be done with the snails, physicians must rely on the sanitary disposal of human feces and urine — difficult, at best, in the Orient and Moslem countries.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal.

STRESS DIABETES

Mrs. H. B. writes: After my husband died suddenly, I developed sugar in the blood. Could the shock of his passing do this?

REPLY

Diabetes may follow a period of stress but this usually is coincidental. Chances are you would have developed diabetes even if your husband had lived.

ARCH EVALUATION

M. T. writes: The shoe salesman said I have flexible arches. Is this another name for flat feet?

REPLY

No. There is more to the diagnosis of flat feet than a cursory glance at the size of flexibility of the arches when standing. It is important to know how the person walks and whether the body's weight is borne on the inner or outer aspect of the feet. Positioning of the tendon achilles also gives a clue, as well as studying the shoes to determine where they are worn down.

FLUOROSCOPE

D. G. writes: Will staying under the fluoroscope too long cause cancer?

REPLY

Not to the patient. The physician who works under the fluoroscope day after day is endangered unless he wears leaded gloves and apron.

SHINGLES

S. N. writes: Is shingles contagious?

REPLY

This is a moot question. Shingles is caused by a virus closely related to that causing chicken pox. Some adults have developed shingles when a child in the family had chicken pox and vice versa. On the other hand, we have no evidence that those who come into contact with a shingles victim will develop this condition. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on shingles.
